MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Quebec Markets.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, May 25, 1905.

TRADE during the week among the grocery jobbing, commission and provision trades has not been heavy. Interviews with several travelers of leading houses brought forth the remarks that "business was only fair—nothing especially doing—country merchants not buying heavily, etc." The recent drop in sugar has in a general way not stimulated extra buying as it is thought there is too much of a speculative character in the situation to warrant laying in stocks for the season's requirements. The foreign beet and raw sugar markets show an advance this week and firmer tone. Teas are quiet locally. New York reports heavy selling of Japans, principally low grades, also some Canadian points advise large orders, all of them last year's stocks. Molasses unchanged and trade quiet. Fish business has shown an improvement since dore season was opened. Provisions continue firm, and owing to light receipts no change to lower prices is looked for. Butter and eggs are a puzzler to dealers, and contrary to all expectations are firmer instead of easier. It is thought, however, that now that cattle can obtain full grass the make of butter will be better and more plentiful. Country buyers report having to pay high prices for eggs, too high to warrant free buying for pickling purposes. Flour shows a better trade. Bran and feed of all kinds are dropping in price rapidly now that cattle can be turned out to pasture. Cheese is in better demand, and market has steady tone. Foreign demand is small, as stocks in the United Kingdom appear to be sufficient until the new make gets on the market.

Sugar—Sugars, both beet and raw, have shown an advance, and the market is tending to firmer basis. The weakness shown lately is thought not to be of a permanent character, and certainly at present figures refiners must have shown a loss. The demand from the jobbing trade has but slightly improved, even the country buyers are not any too keen to load up. The speculative feature apparent in the business is causing hesitancy to purchase.

Syrup and Molasses—Molasses is quiet. No buying of any account going on. Prices remain firm and show no disposition to weaken. In some quarters it is thought that the strong situation shown by Barbadoes molasses is due to speculation, and in consequence no heavy orders have been placed by the trade. Syrups are in somewhat better demand this week.

Tea—There has been some considerable activity this week in Ceylon greens, also blacks. Several large contracts have been made with London houses during the past few days. China greens remain about as last noted. In Japans it is reported that some large transactions have been made in New York and some points in Canada, principally low-grade teas of last year's crop. Prices at which the deals were put through are not stated. Local tea trade does not show as much activity as is desired, and what business is doing is of a small character.

Canned Goods—The canned goods market shows no interesting features. Business is about as usual. Some demand has sprung up for tomatoes, but orders are small and easily filled. The reports from the coast of the salmon pack are conflicting, some reporting good run and possible large pack, while others say only fair. No changes in prices are noted.

Rice—Business continues as usual of a steady character. The late reduction in price had increased for a short time the demand from the country dealers, but as the opinion prevails that no

Fish—Fresh fish of all kinds is arriving freely including dore. A good demand prevails for all sorts of fish, and business is good for this time of the year. The new stock is of the finest quality. As season advances the trade is getting better. Prices for haddock are so high in the States that local dealers have to get their supplies from Nova Scotia.

Foreign Dried Fruits—News relative to foreign dried fruits is scarce. All lines appear to be steady. Some interest was shown in currants, due, no doubt, to the report of the contemplated action of the Greek Government to improve the growing and disposition of crop through the Greek bank. Firmness is the main characteristic. Nuts unchanged. Raisins, both Denia and Malagas, are featureless. Local trade is about as usual, no particular interest being shown in any lines.

BUTTER—Market continues firm, choicest creamery held firm 18¾ to 19c. Receipts not equal to demand.

CHEESE—Business quiet, at firm prices of 9½ to 9¾c., former for Quebec and latter for Ontario makes. Export trade light, poor demand from United Kingdom

EGGS—Situation peculiar. Prices should ease up now, but on the contrary are holding firm—16c. is asked in wholesale way. Country buyers say can't buy under 15c.

PROVISIONS—Easier tone owing to better receipts. Prices however, unchanged. Fresh abattoir-killed $9.75 to $10.00; bacon easier.

Beans—The market has shown a stronger front than for some time past and primary markets are firm and bullish in tone. Inquiries locally are better and several car lots were sold at $1.60 on track for prime.

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, May 25, 1905.

ABOUT the usual volume of city business is recorded during the week from the wholesale grocery trade. Conditions in the country, however, are not as satisfactory as might be expected. Times are good; the farmers are receiving top notch prices for all kinds of agricultural products, and yet trade is comparatively dull and money tight.

Canned tomatoes continue in brisk demand, as well as the run on canned pumpkin and pork and beans. A shipment of 1905 pack kippered herring arrived in the market this week, the first of the season. The refined sugar situation shows undoubted signs of looking up. An advance of 1-16 in raw and of 3d in beet is reported for the week; in view of the increased consumptive demand, which is almost certain to take place throughout the trade in the very near future, an advance in Canadian refined is not unexpected.

Fair business is reported in blend teas. Rice continues steady and a slightly easier feeling is noted in tapioca. A sharp advance at the coast in prunes is reported and as a result local dealers are basing their prices on present cost, which is ½c. higher than a week ago.

Canned Goods—Tomatoes continue the feature of the canned goods market, with importations of United States pack continuing on quite a considerable scale. Corn and peas are not meeting with special inquiry, and the general impression seems to be that there is ample to carry the trade through until the 1905 pack. Pork and beans and canned pumpkin are moving freely. Some new pack kippered herrings are reported on the market, an extraordinary feature for this season of the year. This pack is probably from a special catch. Quite a lot of salmon is reported to have changed hands during the week. Our quotations are as follows:

Sugar—Although no quotable change has taken place in the Canadian refined market, the situation has taken on a firmer tone since last week. Raws have advanced 1-16c. in the open market, and on May 22 raw beet was quoted at 12 shillings for May, an advance of 3d. over quotations on May 21. Up to the present the market has been in a loose condition. It seems, however, to be slowly recovering itself and an advance in the near future is not unexpected by the trade, especially in view of the increased consumptive demand, which is almost sure to follow during the next month. Coffees—A fair coffee business is reported for the week with speculative prices lower than a week ago. The trade are now beginning to abandon their extreme views of the decrease in visible supplies of coffee during May. Latest advices of the decrease are about 6,000,000 bags, which would reduce the world's stock on June 1 to about 11,000,000 bags, compared with 12,670,000 bags on June 1, 1904. The movement of the Brazil crop has continued at exceptionally small figures, and it is also understood that arrivals of mild coffee in America and Europe are reaching very moderate figures, which go to explain the expected rapidly decreasing stock of coffee. The fact remains, however, that there still exists a large surplus stock of coffee from which to draw, and that the season is now not far distant when the new Brazil crop will be coming to market. This serves to offset with many of the trade the improving statistical position which is expected to continue up to at least July 1, and the latter factor is, therefore, not having the favorable influence on market values that was expected.

Several well-informed members of the trade estimate the new Brazil crop at about 10,000,000 bags, or about 950,000 bags larger than the present crop. A factor that has developed during the last few days, and is beginning to receive increased attention, is the report received from Brazil recording unsettled labor conditions on the coffee plantations as a result of the recent advance in Brazil sterling exchange, and planters endeavoring to have colonists accept in wages a corresponding decline in millreis. The latest information received reports a scarcity of labor and states that unless the wage question can be satisfactorily settled in the near future an exodus of colonists from Brazil will soon begin. Rice and Tapioca—Steady business is reported in rice with Japan quoted a little below last week's level. Tapioca is also slightly easier in price, although an active demand is reported. Southern advices continue to report firm markets. A number of the mills in the Southern States are closed for the season and have no stocks on hand to market. We quote as follows:

Foreign Dried Fruits—A sharp advance is noted at the coast in 1904 prunes. The market is pretty well cleaned up and is holding for a 2¼c. bag basis f.o.b. coast for 1904 pack. Small sizes are almost unobtainable. There has been a corresponding advance in local quotations. Small-sized prunes, particularly 100-110s. are scarce on spot and almost unobtainable.

Following are advices just to hand re growing fruit crops:

Valencia Raisins—Though lacking rain, the vines are in good condition, and have bloomed well. Indications are for a larger crop than last year, and low prices are anticipated. Very little remains in Spain of the old crop.

Eleme Figs—Smyrna advices are that trees are in a good way. Weather lat-terly has been very favorable, and a large crop is anticipated.

Sultana Raisins—Stocks of 1904 crop in Smyrna are small, barely 1,200 tons. The vines are late owing to the severe weather, but in good condition, and give promise of a large production. The crops for 1903 and 1904 were 65,000 tons and 32,000 tons, respectively, while that of 1905 is estimated at 45,000 tons. Everything points to low prices.

Currants—Prices for old crop continue to advance, partly owing to the fact that stocks remaining warrant it, and partly because of the probability of the new legislation, proposed by the Bank of Athens, being carried. This will likely result in a higher range of prices for 1905 crop.

Tarragona Almonds—The crop promises to be large.

Malaga Fruit—It is too early to say much; but prospects so far are good, in spite of very dry weather. Indications are of a large crop of Valencia almonds.

Walnuts—Trees look well, and danger of frost is practically over. Reports from throughout the country point to a fair-sized crop, and prices are likely to rule at about the parity of those of last year.

Filberts—The severe Winter has been favorable to the trees, and a large crop is looked forward to.

Foreign Nuts—The fruit people report the usual increased demand for peanuts for May 24 trade. Firm markets rule, but, notwithstanding the fact that in certain quarters shading to the extent of ½c. is being done in peanuts, last week's quotations continue unchanged. Supplies of cocoanuts on the market are not as fine in quality as usual and quotations are slightly below the level of last week. Our quotations are as follows:

Eggs—An advance in the price of new-laid eggs of from 1-2 to 1c. is recorded during the week, the principal reason being that those interested in the pickling business throughout the country have taken it into their heads that eggs are going to be scarce, and that they must have supplies at any cost. Another item to be considered is the fact that the home consumptive demand is very large and increasing on account of the high price of beef, pork, etc. We quote as follows:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

Grain—An advance in Manitoba wheat is reported during the week, following a similar advance in Chicago. Manitoba Northern No. 1 and No. 2 are each up 4c., and No. 3 shows an advance of 3c. Red and white wheat are quotably 1c. higher than a week ago. Barley is offering to the trade at 50 to 52c. Oats are 1-2c. firmer, and will probably advance farther along with corn. We quote the following prices:

Flour—The flour trade is quiet and without special feature for the week; the advance in wheat has, however, had the effect of lending additional firmness to the market. In cereal circles American millers will probably advance their prices in the near future, owing to the high price and firm situation in oats and corn. Quotations are as follows:

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., May 22, 1905.

VERY little change is reported in the grocery trade. Dealers report business as fairly good, but not as brisk as they would like it. The effects of the hard Winter are still being felt, and it will be some time before money is put in freer circulation. The market is well supplied with fruits and green stuff, and the demand is good. Collections are only fair, but the dealers are not complaining in this respect, as they are fully acquainted with the existing conditions in the country.

Sugar—The sugar market is attracting more than usual attention at the present time, as prices keep coming downward. Another decline of twenty cents went into effect last week, making a decline of fifty cents in three weeks, and sixty cents since February 1. This total decline of a little more than half a cent per pound has not as yet resulted in any lower price in the retail market. This is due principally to the large holdings in the hands of these dealers. When sugar was advancing and the price promised to go still higher the retailers stored large stocks, and as a consequence, they cannot afford to reduce the price until their present holdings are disposed of. The result is that the consumer is obliged to pay more than the article is worth. The prices quoted here follow:

Molasses—The market remains pretty steady, and prices are unchanged from last quotations. It is stated here that the unusually heavy importations made by Newfoundland this year are responsible for the high prices in Barbadoes. Since the opening of the season eighteen cargoes have been entered at St. John's, and ten more are expected at that port. Two cargoes arrived here last week. The brigantine Sceptre, from Trinidad, brought 231 puncheons, 48 tierces and 24 barrels. The schooner Edith, from Barbadoes, landed 445 puncheons, 99 hogsheads and 44 barrels.

Eggs and Butter—The general tone of the market is firm. Receipts of eggs here last week were rather light, and with good buying demand the price stiffened. P.E. Island stock is quoted at 14 1-2c. and Nova Scotia at 15 to 15 1-2c. One dealer here who had a large order to fill was obliged to pay 14 3-4c. on the Island. The butter market is strong, and no perceptible drop in prices is expected before the middle of June. Choice dairy butter is very scarce, and the market is almost bare of small tubs. Creamery prints are unchanged at 25 cents for Nova Scotia make, and there is only a moderate supply arriving. Creamery in boxes is selling at 22 cents and dairy rolls at 20 to 21c. In Prince Edward Island the prices for fresh butter are 23 to 25c.

Flour—The market shows little change during the week, and prices are practically the same. Prices remain steady with the demand quiet. There is no immediate prospect of a change, but of course from now on to the harvest the chances are in favor of rather higher prices.

Fish—The prices of dry and picked fish are steady. There is only a moderate demand for fish at the present time. The market is well supplied with fresh cod, haddock, shad, halibut, trout, salmon and lobsters. Cod and haddock are selling at three cents per pound, and shad and halibut at eight cents per pound. Some large catches of lobsters have been made at points along the coast, and as a result the market has become a little easier. They are now selling at one dollar per dozen retail.

Potatoes and Oats—The demand for Prince Edward Island potatoes and oats is good, and some heavy shipments are being made. The steamer Campana, which sailed last week for Montreal, took among other cargo from Prince Edward Island 700 bags of potatoes, 225 cases of lobsters, 75 cases of eggs and 50 bags of oats. The Cacouna, from Montreal for St. John's, Newfoundland, which called at Summerside, took 2,000 bags of oats, 1,000 bags of potatoes, 120 bags of turnips and 130 head of cattle. One commission house at Summerside made a shipment last week of 3,000 bushels of potatoes to Ottawa. On the Island oats are quoted 55 to 60c., potatoes 20 to 25c., eggs 13 to 14c., butter, creamery, 23 to 25c., and tubs 20 to 22c.

Tea—Edward S. Stewart, of Calcutta, India, who represents a large tea house there, was a visitor to Halifax last week. He claims that Indian teas are supplanting to a very large extent the teas grown in China and Ceylon. In India the teas are manufactured entirely by machinery after they are grown in the usual way and the leaves plucked by natives. He thinks that the teas grown in India have better keeping qualities than those of Ceylon. Mr. Stewart says the crop for this year will not be ready for market until about the middle of June. The indications are that the crop will be a large one. Mr. Stewart remarked that it might be of interest to Canadian readers to learn that rubber trees were being planted in large numbers on the lower elevations of the tea gardens in Ceylon. If the venture proves profitable the production of tea will no doubt be materially lessened.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, May 25th, 1905.

IN all branches of the wholesale grocery trade there is considerable activity, and the movement of goods has been heavy. The heavy rains in the early part of the month have been followed by warm weather, and the conditions are considered most favorable for a heavy crop. The optimistic feeling caused by the bright outlook for the season's crop has had its effect on business and all branches are feeling a new impetus.

Price changes are few. Interest still centres in the falling sugar market. At time of writing there has been no further reduction since the decline to $5.90 for Montreal granulated, noted last issue in our "Last Minute Manitoba Markets." However, further declines are looked for, and the trade are buying only for the immediate requirements of their customers. The Manitoba Canning Co. are placing through the jobbing trade a high-grade line of canned meats, quotations of which will be found below. It is now reported that the California crop of prunes will be less than half the normal crop, and that it will run to large sizes. The small sizes will be scarce and expensive.

Sugar—A falling sugar market is the most interesting item in the wholesale grocery market. A decline to $5.90 in Winnipeg for Montreal granulated in barrels was noted last week in our "Last Minute Manitoba Markets," and at time of writing there has been no further reduction. However, it seems evident that the market has at last taken a decided downward turn and the trade are well advised in buying sparingly while values are apt to shrink. We quote:

When a Starch like

CELLULOID STARCH

Never Sticks—Needs No Cooking

is advertised to consumers in the right way and has unique and indisputable advantages over other laundry starches, its steady demand and sale are assured.

It is the only cold-water starch on the market. The superiority of a starch that can be used without boiling, cooking or mussing, appeals irresistibly to the better class of your trade, while one trial is sure to demonstrate that its gloss is more radiant than from any other starch.

Starch is not a high-priced commodity, anyway, and your trade is more concerned about quality than price.

Can you afford to be out of stock of a starch of proven demand and merit like CELLULOID ?

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., May 23, 1905.

BUSINESS is fair, with a better outlook than a few weeks ago. Then it was feared, owing to lack of water, a very small part of the logs would be got out, but rains have caused quite a rise in the river and the situation is brighter. The cut this year has not been large. Prices, however, are fair. This means a great deal to the entire province. There is no lack of work here for every one who wants it, as very extensive works are being carried on in the improvement of our water supply. There are not enough laborers here to supply the demand. When the work is completed our water supply will be second to none.

Our retail clerks are very anxious over the question of the half-holiday. There seems little chance of the retail grocers enjoying it. The hardwaremen will no doubt succeed, and perhaps a few others. The large dry goods houses would fall in line, but the trouble is with the smaller stores. The wholesale grocers and some others have the half-holiday all the year.

Oil—In burning oil prices remain unchanged at the low figures which have now ruled for some time. Lubricating oils have had a large sale. At first the saw mills were inclined to buy lightly, fearing the logs would not be got out. There is little doubt now, however, but that the larger part of the cut will be brought to the mills. In paint oils, both linseeds and turpentine are rather higher.

Salt—In Liverpool coarse and factory-filled salt quite a quantity was landed ex the Manchester steamer arriving last week. There is a fair sale reported at full figures. The opening of the dairy season has led to increased sale of Canadian bulk salt in barrels.

Canned Goods—In corn and tomatoes prices are firm at full figures. The importing of American is all that prevents a further advance, and that market is firmer. Peas are plentiful. In fruits there is no change. Salmon are quite a full stock. Lobsters are again higher this year, and the sale is light. Oysters are very firm. Meats are unchanged. In domestic fish new haddies are offered. Prices are rather higher. Scallops are very light pack. Clams are quite firm. Season for packing sardines is just opening. Kippered herring are unchanged.

Dried Fruit—This is always a quiet line at this season. Currants which have a steady demand are very low. Seeded raisins, which are also fair sellers, are low. Other grades of raisins are rather firmer. In prunes a fair demand. While prices are low, it is hard to renew stocks of small sizes. The outlook for the Fall is for higher prices, particularly for 90-100s. A few evaporated apricots and peaches sold, but prices are too high. Spot dates are rather firmer. Figs are dull. In citron the report favors full figures. Evaporated apples have but a fair sale. Onions are rather higher. Quality of Egyptians received this year is but fair. This has also been the case with Bermudas.

Sugar—With a further decline last week in price, meaning 60c. from the highest point, this line has less interest than was the case in the Winter. It has also affected sales. While present price is thought to be still quite high, a firmer feeling in the States has somewhat helped the situation.

Molasses—This is a line of interest. So far the situation has been quite strong. Barbadoes is in light supply. Porto Rico holds quite firm, and is being freely sold. While it is yet early, the tendency is to full figures.

Fish—Never has there been such a season. Codfish are very scarce. Owing to light sales, prices are rather easier. There are practically no pollock. Pickled herring are exceedingly scarce, and full prices are asked. Smoked herring are still low. In fresh fish supplies light. Gaspereaux are so far a failure. Shad, which should be now quite freely offered, are not to be had. While season is early there are a few salmon.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour, prices this week have remained unchanged at the low figures quoted. There is just fair business. Feed continues quite firm. It is said increased western demand is the reason. The fattening of cattle seems to demand it. Oats and oatmeal have just a fair sale, and prices are unchanged. Beans, while showing some range in prices, are firmer. Sales are very dull. Cornmeal is unchanged. In seeds, season is getting late. This is the first year for a long time when fine imported clovers were lower than Canadian seeds.

Green Fruits—Trade active. Oranges, Californias, which have been chiefly sold, are easier. Some Mediterranean fruit offers and prices are high. Lemons are firmer. Pines are but fair sellers and full prices are asked. Bananas rule hardly as low as earlier. Strawberries are of but fair quality. All green stuffs are lower.

MORE PROFIT FOR RETAILER.

In connection with the report of the annual meeting of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild in last week's Grocer, the following statement was made: "the manufacturer turns out an article which he decides should retail at 10c. per dozen, whereas the retailer should get at least 20c." The impression The Grocer intended to convey was merely that the Guild were in favor of insisting upon the manufacturer allowing the retailer a fair margin of profit and that the latter had a genuine grievance at the present time owing to the fact that he was forced to handle certain lines of goods on which the retail price was named but the margin of profit wholly out of proportion to the expense of handling the goods.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. B. Browne, formerly in the grocery business in Hamilton, is dead.

Mr. Wallace Anderson, of Anderson & Powis, Toronto, is in Montreal and Quebec this week.

Mr. Miles, of United Factories, Toronto, was a visitor to Montreal during the past week.

Mr. G. B. Smith, Stratford, was in Toronto this week calling upon the wholesale grocery trade.

Two large importers of Canadian produce, Messrs. E. Beer and C. Prince, of London, Eng., are on a visit to Canada.

Mr. Sam. Johnston, who has for many years been in the grocery business in Sudbury, has sold out to Fenson & McDonell. Mr. Fenson will move his fine stock into the Johnston premises, which are second to none in that prosperous mining town.

Quebec has a progressive, energetic and aggressive commission broker in the person of J. P. Thomas. Mr. Thomas at the present time has several good agencies and is in a position to successfully represent a few more first-class houses in his district.

Mr. R. H. Turver, head bookkeeper in the Toronto office of the Natural Food Co., has been promoted to the position of assistant sales and traffic manager in the head office of the firm at Niagara Falls. He leaves to assume his new duties next week.

W. H. Millman & Sons have been appointed agents for Toronto and vicinity for Evans, Coleman & Evans, Vancouver, one of the largest salmon concerns at the coast. They will have all kinds to offer, sockeye, red spring, cohoes and humpbacks.

Mr. Archibald Wilson, of Hamilton, has just returned from a business trip east as far as Montreal and Quebec, and reports that the grocery trade is taking an increased interest in Wilson's fly pads each year. Practically all the leading wholesale grocers now handle them.

Mr. Geo. Dalidet, of Geo. Dalidet & Co., Bordeaux, France, and Mr. R. U. Delepenha, New York, were callers upon the grocery jobbing trade last week. Dalidet & Co are packers of fine French conserves, alimentary pastes, ets. Mr. Laflamme, of Rose & Laflamme, who are the local representatives, introduced the visitors to the trade.

Mr. W. H. Halford, manager of S. H. Ewing & Son's tea department, Montreal, spent a few days among the trade in Quebec City last week and reports trade conditions fairly good. Jobbers there report satisfactory business from country points. Low-grade gunpowders, pin heads, mediums, with a few Ceylon greens and Paklings in boxes were principally called for.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Up to May 20, the increase in the output of Wilson's fly pads over last season is just 80 per cent.

The Distributors' Co., Toronto, are in receipt of one car each of Mexican and Californian late Valencia oranges.

Attention of buyers is called to Mr. E. D. Marceau's special offers in teas.

The Dawson Commission Co., Toronto, report the arrival of three cars navel oranges, one car pines and one car tomatoes this week.

The figures given in the "Salada" advertisement are most striking.

Lind, Kerrigan & Co., London, are making a very attractive offer to the trade in brooms.

Mr. H. Gilbert Nobbs, Canadian representative of Holbrook's Limited, has returned to Toronto from sampling the trade in London and Hamilton; he reports very satisfactory business.

SHIPS APPLES.

D. Cantelon, apple exporter, Clinton, Ontario, reports having shipped 15,000 barrels to Manitoba and the Northwest the last season and an equal number abroad. Mr. Cantelon also ships to the Lower Provinces.

OF INTEREST TO PORK PACKERS.

An inquiry has been received from a London, Eng., firm desirous of entering into negotiations with Canadian dealers in pork and pork offal, including kidneys, plucks, tongues, etc. Any wishing fuller information may procure the same by communicating with the Toronto office of The Canadian Grocer.

SUGGESTIONS FOR DEALERS.

IT is hardly a question any more whether it is an advantage or a disadvantage for the dealer always to have on hand facilities for the consumer to test his wares. Every one knows that to initiate such facilities is an expense, and that there are always "beats," no matter in what community, who are as quick to take advantage of taking a "free" sip of tea or coffee as of anything else that is "free." Nor can the dealer afford to deny any such, even though he knows they are imposing upon him. Notwithstanding all this, there is no advertising which he could adopt which for the returns would not cost him very much more.

The dealer who has instituted facilities for sampling his teas and coffees will find it a wise plan to always have a sufficient number of "cosies" on hand. These keep the coffee or tea-pot hot for hours. It is almost unnecessary to state how essential it is for the tea and coffee man to keep his store up to the very highest standard of cleanliness. One little hint in line with the foregoing. Many dealers expose samples of their coffees and teas on little saucers on the counter. Few of them cover these. Although, perhaps, there may be no great danger that they will attract germs, it would certainly look better for the dealer to cover the saucers with glass bells. It would indicate that he is scrupulous for the health and well-being of his customers, and would inspire them with a faith and confidence in him which could not fail to be of advantage.

ADULTERATION OF PEPPER.

The analysts of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, have recently concluded an examination of samples of pepper offered for sale throughout Canada. The results show adulteration to an extent that the Minister cannot allow to continue. An analysis was made last Summer of pepper samples, which showed the most flagrant violations of the Pure Food Act. The trade was then given fair notice of the Department's intention to enforce a compliance with the statute. Evidently no heed has been paid to the warning, so it looks as though stern measures will have to be taken to remedy the conditions now prevailing.

THE GROCER'S INFLUENCE ABROAD.

That The Canadian Grocer is not without honor abroad as well as at home was instanced in a striking manner lately. In March last reference was made in a small paragraph to an illustrated catalogue issued by Crosse & Blackwell, London. A few days ago, Mr. Colson, of C. E. Colson & Sons, Canadian representatives of Crosse & Blackwell, favored The Grocer with a copy of a letter which his principals received recently from Lutey Bros., wholesale and retail grocers, Butte, Montana. The letter speaks for itself and is a tangible evidence of how every paragraph and statement is studied by readers of The Grocer. It also speaks well for the up-to-date, alive and watchful firm across the line. The letter is reproduced as follows:

Crosse & Blackwell:

"Gentlemen,—We noticed in The Canadian Grocer that you have just issued a most attractive catalogue, and would be pleased to have you send us a copy.

"Thanking you in advance, we are,

"Yours truly,

"Lutey Bros.

"Butte, Montana, Mar. 24, 1905."

DISASTROUS FROSTS.

Two heavy frosts in the Niagara district during the week have practically wiped out the growing tomato crop. Great damage has also been done to strawberries, a great many of the earlier varieties being killed. As far as can be learned, other fruit is not much harmed as it is not far enough advanced.

FINANCE

THE Penny Bank, which was opened in Toronto in April, is an interesting institution. Its object is to encourage a spirit of thrift among school children. Educators never tire of telling how powerful are the habits of the child in moulding his future career. The habit of saving, which is developed in the child by opening a bank account, should be of inestimable value in later life. The name of "Penny" is justified by the fact that deposits as low as 2c. are received. No director or anyone associated in the work, can receive anything for his services. Only those in the actual employment are paid, so that the object of those interested in the bank is entirely philanthropic.

There are thirty-four chartered banks in Canada. The total authorized capital is $100,546,666. The paid-up capital is $81,431,491, and the reserve fund $54,711,209. The notes in circulation amount to $58,828,919.

A new fire insurance company has been incorporated in Canada, under the title of the Richmond and Drummond Fire Insurance Co. It is intended to begin operations with a subscribed capital of $250,000, 25 per cent. paid up. A further call of 5 per cent. will be made annually for the next three years, making 40 per cent. in all, or $100,000 cash capital.

The conditions in Chicago might serve as an object lesson not only to civic authorities but to the corporations who control the public utilities. By inefficient service and excessive rates, a company which has a monopoly may increase its dividends for a few years. But the public will not put up with these injustices indefinitely. An upheavel is bound to come sooner or later, and the corporations will be only subserving their own best interests when they recognize this and commence giving a fair service. The organization of independent telephone companies, and the taking over of franchises by municipalities, are outward evidences of the same condition. The public has become tired of being held up by these monopolies.

The probability of a serious loss by fire is materially reduced, and fire insurance rates are favorably affected, if the insured maintains a reliable private fire alarm system. In certain classes of buildings as large factories, hotels, public institutions where large numbers of inmates are housed, theatres, etc., the necessity for the installation of every type of apparatus, automatic or manual, which tends to hasten the turning in of fire alarms needs no emphasis. Alertness in the detection of fire outbreaks may save thousands of dollars' worth of property and perhaps human lives as well.

A customer who always pays cash for her purchases gave the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"I trade with Mr. Hardy because mistakes are seldom made in handling cash purchases. When I make a purchase a National Cash Register shows me the amount I have paid for the article and I know it is correct.

"If I hand a clerk a dollar to pay for a 25-cent purchase, he goes to the cash register in order to make change. A bell rings and an indicator shows that the amount of my purchase was 25 cents. Mr. Hardy and his clerks handle all cash sales in the same way. I am never overcharged. It is a pleasure to trade with a merchant who uses a complete system."

With a National Cash Register in your store you are equipped to handle the business of your customers to their perfect satisfaction.

A National Cash Register pays for itself in the time we give you for payment.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Bank of Toronto, held last week, Mr. W. H. Beatty, the vice-president, was elected president, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. George Gooderham, and Mr. W. G. Gooderham was elected vice-president. Mr. Albert E. Gooderham was also elected a member of the board. Mr. Beatty has been a director of the bank since 1882. He was one of the charter members of the Gooderham & Worts Co. He is senior partner in the law firm of Beatty, Blackstock, Riddell & Chadwick.

The application at Ottawa for incorporation of a new bank, with head office at Toronto, has excited little interest in financial circles. The granting of a charter does not necessarily mean organization and operation. It has been reported that opposition would develop to further granting of bank charters, it being argued that the interests of the present banks, as well as the public good, would be best conserved by increase in capital of present institutions rather than organization of new banks. There are now some bank charters in existence which have not been acted on.

"DON'T PAY FREIGHT ON WATER"

MERCHANTS OF CANADA—Has it ever struck you how much money you pay out for freight on water that you buy in your VINEGAR?

GERMAN CONCENTRATED GRAPE WINE VINEGAR is imported direct from the celebrated Rhine Wine District of Germany. Recommended by the highest medical authorities of Europe. Requires merely the addition of pure water—ready in two minutes.

Costs less than any Canadian Vinegar and quality is superior.

1—This is an absolutely pure product of Grapes, made in the famous Rhine Wine district of Germany.

2—It contains no Alcohol, consequently will not form the very objectionable vinegar eels, or "mother"

3—Being put up in concentrated form, no freight is required to be paid on Water and heavy barrels.

4—When diluted according to directions it is cheaper than other Vinegars.

5—For pickling purposes it is unequalled as it makes the pickles firm, and imparts a delicious flavor.

The foregoing are a few of the leading advantages of using Grape Wine Vinegar. A trial will be a revelation to you.

Made in Canada

These words are the key to the success that every true Canadian heartily desires for this fair Canada of ours!

Why should we buy goods of any description that are made in a foreign country? The making of foreign goods does not give employment to our artisans. It does not retain money in this country.

Why use Foreign Salt? We have CANADIAN SALT that is superior to any foreign salt that is made.

Why not help build up Canada by using and thereby employ Canadian labor, Canadian works, and Canadian capital?

Canadian Salt

Demand of your wholesale grocer Canadian Salt, and if he does not keep it write to us for prices and samples.

MONTSERRAT

A Summer Money-maker

"Montserrat" Lime Juice is the big hot weather seller. It makes money for the grocer during the dullest months of the year. It creates its own demand. It sells itself.

A retailer who does not handle "Montserrat" loses money—because everybody knows that "Montserrat" is the purest, finest lime juice—and they want it.

Start with a trial dozen just to see how fast it goes, though most grocers buy it by the gross.

The "Thistle" Brand Fish

The fact that for twenty years we have sold the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies, Kippered Herrings, etc., is pretty good evidence of the high standard of quality of the goods. By high quality we mean, first, the very best fish put up in the very cleanest way; second, the preservation of the rich, delicate, natural flavor by prompt action after the fish are caught.

There has never been any attempt by the owners of the "Thistle" Brand to produce their goods as cheap goods—quality has been their watchword first, last and always. They have never pretended to compete on the basis of price and they never will. The "Thistle" Brand is to be the best by every test and regardless of expense.

The Manager of the company is unsurpassed as a fish-curer, as his father was before him. The buyers of the "Thistle" Brand can be absolutely sure of perfection. It is the standard from which the quality of all other brands is judged.

QUEBEC LEGISLATURE TAXES FOREIGN TRAVELERS

HON. J. C. McCORKILL'S Act relating to the tax upon manufacturers' agents, brokers, and representatives of foreign firms doing business in the Province of Quebec, which was passed in the closing hours of session prorogued on Saturday, May 20, has caused no end of discussion and interest among the trade of Montreal. The imposition of the tax was viewed with particular alarm by the brokers and manufacturers' agents, and if the Act as it was first drawn and its provisions published, had been put into effect, the results would have been dire. In its amended state, and as it is explained by the provincial treasurer, it is more complacently accepted by the interests directly involved. The first reading imposed a tax of $300 upon all agencies and firms represented by the broker or agent. This naturally meant that where an agent represented say five agencies, it would impose a tax of $1,500 per annum; a figure which would practically kill the brokerage business in Montreal and the Province of Quebec. Protests were naturally sent in to the provincial treasurer by some of the leading brokers of Montreal, and the board of trade strongly protested against the imposition of such an unreasonable and unwarrantable tax upon an important branch of commerce. The provincial treasurer in replying to the board of trade's protest stated that: "It never was intended to place a tax upon resident manufacturers' agents, etc. It was by inadvertence that the law officer left out the word 'non-resident.' The law applies to non-resident commercial travelers representing foreign firms, who come to Canada, take orders for goods, and return home."

Applies to Non-Residents Only.

This explanation was somewhat more satisfactory, but still leaves the matter open to serious misconstruction and possible trouble. The provincial treasurer states that "the law only applies to non-resident commercial travelers representing foreign firms," etc. What is meant by "non-resident" is not quite clear. A traveler or agent whose office is in Toronto, Hamilton, or other western or eastern city, might be classed as a "non-resident" of the Province of Quebec, and consequently liable to the tax. It was with the view of securing the opinion of the trade interested that The Grocer interviewed some of the leading brokers identified with the grocery trade, and the opinions crystallized are practically the same, that the tax is unjust, the principle wrong, a hardship to the brokerage business, and practically a restraint of trade.

Mr. J. Alex. Gordon.

of J. Alex Gordon & Co., expressed himself as quite prepared to pay the present business tax of $50 imposed on all business houses, but thought the imposition of a tax of $300 a severe enactment. Mr. Gordon stated that as far as he had looked into the matter it was not meant to tax brokers or agents doing business at present in the city and province, and that investigation would develop the fact that it was only meant to apply to travelers from the United States, England, or continental countries who visit Canada, take orders, and return home, invoicing the goods direct. Any other interpretation and enforcement of the Act would mean the closing up of business of many foreign firms now working through local Canadian representatives.

Mr. D. Rattray.

of D. Rattray & Son, Montreal and Quebec, who represent a number of prominent foreign houses, stated that while he had been aware of the passage of the Act he had not looked into the case. He thought the tax an unnecessary one as far as local houses were concerned. He could understand foreign travelers, making periodical trips through Canada, being compelled to contribute something for the privilege of competing against local interests, though he was personally opposed to the principle of trade restrictions of this character.

Mr. A. Wills.

one of Montreal's oldest and best known brokers, who represents English, United States, and other foreign firms, said:

"I have looked into this matter, and from the first I was firmly convinced that there was some mistake in the published reports of the intent of the Act, and it develops from latest news that my surmises were correct. The Act is only intended to apply to such firms as are not represented by local firms or agents."

"Do you believe in the imposition of this tax upon even outside or foreign travelers?" Mr. Wills was asked.

"No, sir! Emphatically I do not. I am in favor of free business transactions not only between our several provinces, but also between Canada and other countries. I am of the old school of unrestricted business. If an American or other foreign firm sends its travelers into Montreal and gets business from the jobber, even against my own representation and work, why so much the better for the other fellow. And what about the jobber? Why should he not be put into a position to buy goods from my competitor? No, sir, I do not believe in taxing business transactions, and all such taxes are iniquitous in principle."

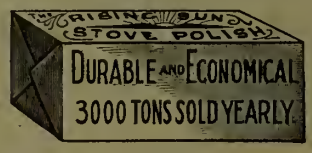
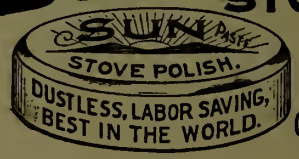
of Frank Magor & Co., St. Paul street, Montreal, said: "As I have read the Act it does not apply to us at all; it only applies to travelers coming in from foreign countries and soliciting business, then shipping and invoicing the goods from their own countries. I do not approve of the tax in any way."



Mr. W. H. Dunn.

"If the law is intended to apply to firms I represent it would be an injustice, but that is clearly not the case. If it were, as I represent some twenty different firms, I would be compelled to drop some of them, as the tax of $300 could not be borne by many of them according to the volume of business as yet obtained. I do not believe in taxing trade between our own provinces, as is being done by some of them now. It is not carrying out the idea of confederation, and certainly not in keeping with modern commercial principles. It will be found that the Act does not apply to local or provincial agents, but is aimed against foreign firms who now come or send their travelers here and do business direct. In a measure it will tend to increase the number of agencies in this city, as those American or other foreign firms who now visit Canada, and particularly this province, will be obliged, if they value their business here, to appoint local agents, and so do away with the paying of the tax."



Mr. S. W. Ewing.

of S. H. Ewing & Sons, was decidedly against the idea of taxing local representatives of foreign firms, though some features of the Act might prove a benefit. "It would," Mr. Ewing stated, "have the effect of keeping out some undesirable competition from the other side. Take the case of a glut in the market to the south of us, with prices abnormally below market value, American travelers visit this market with their panicky prices, take orders, and return home after upsetting normal and logical conditions of our markets here. If they desire, after the passage of this Act, to unload on this market, they would have to do so through local brokers and agents, or hy correspondence."

Mr. H. W. Wadsworth.

seeretary Dominion Travelers' Association, was of the opinion that it was a good thing for our Canadian agents representing foreign houses. "If these foreign agents eannot afford to pay the tax they will be forced to hire a representative here. and in this way our own travelers and agents will get the business. Restrictions of trade between the provinces of the Dominion is not desirable, and is a principle of taxation not within the Spirit of the Aet of Confederation."

of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., remarked that the principle was wrong : "If the other fellow can sell more goods than I can, or that we Canadians ean, that shows him to he the better man, and he should not be restricted or handicapped. We are quite able to hold our own, and do not ask to have the other fellow tied up. I don't helieve in this principle of restriction."

It is clearly the idea of the author of the Act, aside from the necessity of raising funds for Government purposes, to cause foreign firms freely trading in this province to do the business through local agents, and it is thought that those foreign houses now doing husiness here directly through their own travelers will be anxious to retain their hold on this market, and not ohject to the payment of the tax. The question naturally suggests itself : "Who in the end pays the tax ?" That long-suffering individual, the consumer, for if the tax is imposed on the foreign house it will naturally he added to the cost of the goods—the jobber will get it out of the retailer, and the retailer out of his customers—so in the end the people, the great public, will have to shoulder another tax—though an indirect one.

IMPORTS OF TEA INTO U.S.

The following figures represent importations of tea into the United States from all countries during the last three years. The consumption of tea per head averaged about 1.29 lbs. for 1904, and for 1901 about .94 lbs. Owing to the disturbance of trade through the abolition of the duty, the years 1902-03 are unreliable in forming an estimate of the progress of consumption:

	1904. lbs.	1903. lbs.	1902. lbs.

SUGAR INDUSTRY FOR WHITBY.

THE municipal by-law granting $25,000 honus to the Keystone Sugar Co., Whitby, was confirmed last week, and the establishment of a large beet sugar industry at Whithy is now practically assured. Financial arrangements have also been completed and the selection of a site and bids for tenders will be made immediately. Under the agreement with the town at least $500,000 is to be expended in the construction of the factory and its equipment with the most modern sugar-making machinery. Sugar is to be manufactured from heets at the rate of 500 tons a day before the bonus is payable.

It is expected that building operations will begin during the ensuing month and that the factory will be in operation by next year. The beet acreage will extend over the territory east and north from Toronto through the midland and central counties of Ontario, where already upwards of a thousand acres of heets have been successfully grown during the past two seasons.

OBJECT TO OUTDOOR DISPLAYS.

THE Cleveland Retail Grocers' Association are taking up and pushing a matter which should appeal strongly to retail grocers all over the country, particularly in the larger cities. It has been customary in the past for stores which handle vegetables and fruits to display the same on the sidewalks in front of the stores and so long as the dealer does not encroach upon the portion protected by the city as a sidewalk, there is nothing which will prevent him from using this space for displaying goods.

The Cleveland association believes that this practice is not in the best interests of the consumer as the goods gather dust, and it is reasonable to claim, imperil the health of those who purchase goods so displayed.

One bright grocer, realizing the difficulty, has a large sign, neatly painted, on the front of his store, in the place usually occupied by displays of vegetables. The sign reads, "Fruits and Vegetables, Inside from the Dust."

TEA IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The 1904 report of the Durban Chamber of Commerce gives the total area under tea in Natal as not less than 5,200 acres, including 400 acres recently planted, but states that owing to partial drought the outturn probably reached only about one and a half million pounds last season.

MEXICAN COFFEE CROP.

The estimated production of coffee in Mexico this year is 300,000 barrels. As nearly five-sixths of the coffee will be measured in barrels having a capacity of seventy kilos, the amount of the year's crop may safely be estimated at 21,000,000, or about 52,000,000 pounds. Of the 300,000 barrels of the year's crop the republic will consume from 50,000 to 70,000 barrels, and the balance of it will go principally to the United States, with a small portion to Europe.

LOW PRICES FOR LOBSTERS.

REGARDING the market for lobsters on the other side of the Atlantic, a Halifax exporter is advised by his agents in England that he will have to expect lower prices this year. English and continental dealers are setting themselves against paying prices equal to those which ruled a year ago. Their ideas are quite 2 to 3 shillings below what they paid in 1904. In view of this it would appear that Canadian fishermen must be prepared to accept a reduction in price, despite the fact that the crustaceans may be scarce. The same firm considers that the prices of lobsters should be brought down anyway to popularize them again. He points out that at the present market the retail grocer in England must pay 8½d. for a half pound tin, or 17c., roughly, and it is difficult to sell an article costing so much at a profitable figure.

HATCHERIES FOR ONTARIO.

FOLLOWING is a copy of a resolution adopted by the Sault Ste. Marie Board of Trade on May 9, regarding the establishment of fish hatcheries in Northern Ontario :

"Resolved that this board is of the opinion that one of the great resources is our fisheries; that Lakes Superior and Huron are among the greatest fresh water lakes and produce large quantities of white fish, sturgeon and salmon trout equal to any fresh water fish known; that the said lakes are capable of supporting many times the present stock, and were the spawn which is now wasted by fishermen hatched and returned to the waters, the supply could be naturally increased instead of reduced, as is being done; that numerous water falls are distributed along the shores of the said lakes which are convenient for fish hatcheries; that this board would strongly urge and recommend the Government to place fish hatcheries at or convenient to fishing stations along the shores of said lakes in such numbers as would hatch all the spawn obtainable from our fishermen."

FISHING IN 1906.

W. H. Barker, general manager of the British Columbia Packers' Association, does not think there will be much fishing for sockeye salmon done next year either in British Columbia waters or on Puget Sound: In his opinion the proposal of the American canners that a voluntary close season should be instituted next year will adjust itself in view of the probability that fishing will not pay on a large scale next year. Mr. Barker stated that, as far as the Columbia River pack is concerned, the future sale prices have all been confirmed. The Columbia River pack is always sold ahead of the season at prices which are subject to future confirmation. This season the prices quoted were the same as last year's selling rate, and they were deemed high.

POOR SALMON RUN.

According to latest reports the run of Spring salmon on the Pacific coast to date is away behind the record of previous years. On the Columbia River the early run was considerably in excess of last year, but on the Fraser there is a decided falling off and on the Skeena the fishermen are said to be doing practically nothing.

OYSTER FISHING OVER.

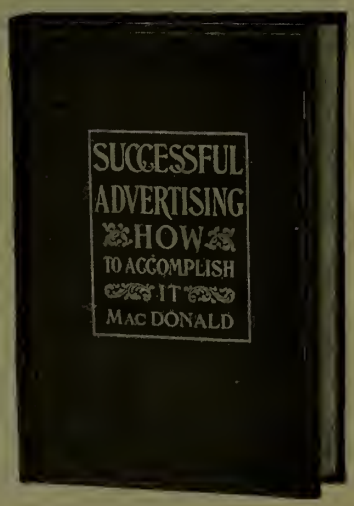
Oyster fishing in Prince Edward Island closed for the season on May 20. Owing to the late Spring, the cold and windy weather and scarcity of oysters, the business done this year was comparatively small. Prices ruled high, too high, in fact, to allow a fair profit to the shipper.

E. Kemp, the oyster expert, in his report to the Dominion Government, recommends that the minimum size limit of Maritime Province oysters be raised to three inches, as the present regulations allow too many small oysters of no commercial value to be taken. He also recommends that arrangements be made for granting areas of ground for the private cultivation of oysters as the best means of increasing the supply and of maintaining the productiveness of the natural beds.

FISH GOSSIP.

The cold storage plant under construction for Petrie & Co., Sydney, C.B., is nearing completion.

Mackerel have struck in on the Nova Scotia coast at last reports, and the seiners are all busy.



Up to date the prosecution of the lobster fisheries in the Maritime Provinces has been greatly impeded owing to the presence of drift ice. A serious financial loss to many of the canneries is probable.

The first salmon fish hatchery in Alaska is soon to be established by the United States Fish Commission. The Alaska salmon pack of 1904 was worth $3,000,000 more than Alaska cost the United States originally, but without Government hatcheries and supervision it is plain that the salmon fisheries will be steadily impoverished until ruined.

SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING

How to Accomplish It

By J. ANGUS MacDONALD

Competent critics have recognized this as the Best Book on Advertising yet published. It is a PRACTICAL work for advertisers and business men.

The Brooklyn Eagle says of Successful Advertising :

"Advertising is one of the biggest businesses—perhaps the biggest business—in the world. To treat of it comprehensively is as difficult as to treat comprehensively of military strategy or the making of a newspaper. Mr. MacDonald has succeeded. He has produced an admirable and exhaustive monograph.

"Perhaps the deepest pitfall into which an author might fall in writing upon such a subject as this is too much theory and not sufficient practicality. Most happily has Mr. MacDonald avoided this chasm : he writes from practical experience in the field, and his methods as presented have been given the thorough tests of time and circumstances.

"Any one with even a superficial knowledge of advertising cannot but perceive that in the many examples shown are evidenced a thorough knowledge of the subject and a businesslike and practical grasp of advertising which is far removed from the light, airy and entirely impractical and hare-brained stuff which is not uncommon in literature treating of the subject of advertising."

The General Advertiser, The Retail Advertiser, The Advertising Writer, The Mail Order Advertiser will find this work invaluable. The price is out of proportion to its worth. Cloth bound. 400 pages.

THE GROWING FRUIT CROPS.

ACCORDING to official bulletin issued by the Fruit Division, Ottawa, on May 27, the general conditions for fruit of all kinds throughout Canada are excellent. The Winter, though cold, has not resulted in exceptional damage to trees and vines. The only serious losses are from tree-girdling by mice, and the mutilation of trees by the heavy snowfall in the Maritime Provinces. Minor losses by Winter killing in Eastern Canada are reported in cases of trees injured but not killed outright by the Winter of 1903-4, as well as in cases of trees that were overloaded in 1904.

Apples.

Reports are almost unanimous that the show for bloom is excellent. It must not be forgotten that the critical period of "setting" is not yet reported over any large area. The weather has been very unfavorable for pollination for the past two weeks in Western Ontario. It is also too early to report on fungus and the most destructive insects.

Plums.

The commercial plum sections all report the outlook favorable. The light crop last year as well as the good weather conditions for growth, has placed the plum trees in excellent condition for a large crop this year if insects, frost or fungus do not intervene. It is not too early to make preparations for an exceptional crop and prevent a repetition of the disastrous losses of 1903.

Peaches.

The new plantings have scarcely balanced the Winter-killing of 1899 and 1903, so that even with a favorable outlook for this season on healthy trees the aggregate crop will not be large. Cherries and bush fruits are all in good condition. Strawberries are reported in fair condition, but with some Winter-killing. The Spring frosts to date have not seriously hurt the crop except in very limited areas. Raspberries promise well, but no over-production.

Foreign Countries.

The report of the apple crop in the United States would indicate a medium to good crop. The English plum crop is medium with a prospect of being less than average.

STANDARD APPLE BOX.

Fruit growers and box makers should bear in mind the amendment to the Act regulating the size of fruit packages recently passed, legalizing a minimum standard box. This box has a minimum size of 10x11x20 inches, inside measurement. There is no specification as to the thickness of the material other than that it should be strong and seasoned wood. It is recommended, however, that the ends should be at least $\frac{5}{8}$ of an inch thick, and that there should be no objectionable odor to the wood.

There are no specifications as to what grade of fruit shall be packed in boxes. The market reports, however, would discourage the shipment in boxes of anything but apples of the very highest grade; the rest of the fruit can be more economically shipped in barrels.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENT.

Under the direction of the dairy division of the United States bureau of animal industry investigations are now being conducted at the Storrs Agricultural Experiment Station in Connecticut, which, if successful, will be of much importance to dairy interests. They have for their object the discovery of the method of the manufacture of the Camembert type of soft cheeses, which is now held as a trade secret by the makers in continental Europe.

The demand for cheeses like limburger, Camembert and Brie is rapidly increasing in the United States, due to the growing foreign population and the taste acquired by Americans who have traveled abroad, as well as to the growing appetite for them among others who have tried the new delicacies. This has led to the importation of soft cheeses to satisfy the market, which is increasing every year. The importation has now reached about a million pounds a year, with a value of about $150,000.

NEW BUTTER AND CHEESE STANDARDS

HERETOFORE the classification of butter and cheese has consisted of practically only two grades, "finest" and "under finest." The new classification, just issued from the dairy commissioners' branch of the Department of Agriculture, provides for three grades, the practical result of which is to divide the cheese and butter heretoforc classed as "under finest" into second and third grades. The first grade is with some slight modification equivalent to "finest" quality under the old classification. An important provision is that the weights shall be stencilled or marked with a rubber stamp on cheese boxes, which is practically a new requirement in the standard for the highest grade of cheese, although it has been adopted by a majority of the factories. Another important feature is the provision for having butter boxes contain only 56 lbs.

Standards for Cheese.

First Grade.

Flavor—Clean, sound and pure.

Body and texture—Close, firm and silky.

Color—Good and uniform.

Finish—Fairly even in size, smoothly finished, sound and clean surfaces, straight and square.

Boxes—Strong, clean, well made and nailed. Ends to be of seasoned timber. Close fitting. Weights stencilled or marked with rubber stamp.

Second Grade.

Flavor—"Fruity," not clean, "turnipy," or other objectionable flavor.

Body and texture—Weak, open, loose, "acidy," too soft, too dry.

Color—Uneven, mottled, or objectionable shade.

Finish—Very uneven in size, showing rough corners, black mould, dirty or cracked surfaces, soft rinds.

Boxes—Too large in diameter; top edge of box more than half an inch below top of cheese. Made of light material. Ends made of improperly seasoned timber.

Third Grade.

Flavor—Rancid, badly "off," anything inferior to second grade.

Body and texture—Very weak, very open, showing pin holes or pores, very "acidy," very soft or very dry.

Color—Badly mottled or very objectionable shade.

Finish—Anything worse than second grade.

Boxes—No question of boxes sufficient to make a third grade if other qualities are good.

Explanations.

It would be impossible to define exactly the qualities or defects which may appear in cheese. The standards given are intended to indicate the range of quality for the different grades rather than to establish hard and fast rules to guide the grader.

The expression "good color" means that the color must be of a proper shade. There are cheap, inferior cheese colors used which do not give the proper shade no matter what quality is used.

The expression "clean surfaces" in the definition for first grade does not exclude from that grade cheese with a slight growth of blue mould, although it is desirable that the cheese should not show any signs of mould. "Black mould" (see definition for second grade) is simply the advanced stage of the ordinary hlue mould.

The following scale of points will indicate the relative valucs of the different divisions of quality: Flavor, 40; body and texture, 30; color, 15; finish and boxing, 15. Total 100.

It is ohvious that a defect in flavor of a certain degree counts nearly three times as much in determining the grade as a defect in finish or boxing of the same degree.

Cheese which are strictly sour, or are otherwise inferior to third grade, will be designated as "culls," for which there is no classification.

Any lot of cheese shall be considered third grade if it shows three or more defects of second grade class.

If there are not more than 15 per cent. of defcctive cheese in any lot, the inferior ones may be sorted out and classed separately. If more than 15 per cent. are defective, the classification for the defective ones may apply to the whole lot. This does not apply when infcrior cheese have been properly marked so as to be identified, in which case the inferior cheese shall be treated as a separate lot.

Standards for Creamery Butter.

First Grade.

Flavor—Sound, sweet and clean.

Body and grain—Waxy; not too much moisture.

Color—Even, no streaks or mottles, not too high.

Salting—Not too heavy if salt butter. Salt all dissolved.

Finish—Good quality parchment paper lining, neatly arranged. Package well filled; bright, even surface.

Packages—Well made, of good material, and clean. Boxes to be of right size to hold 56 pounds of butter when properly filled. Parafined on inside. Neatly branded. Tubs to be lined with parchment paper of good quality.

Second Grade.

Flavor—Not quite clean, or other objectionable flavor.

Body and grain—Salvy; over-worked, too much moisture.

Color—Slightly mottled or streaky; too high, or objectionable shade.

Salting—Too heavy; salt undissolved, or unevenly distributed.

Finish—Very light or poor quality parchment paper lining; lining not arranged to protect butter; mould on parchment paper. Rough, uneven surface. Package not properly filled.

Packages—Rough, badly made, or of poor or unseasoned material, including sapwood. Dirty packagcs. Uneven weights.

Third Grade

Flavor—Very stale and strong stable flavor, or anything inferior to second grade.

Body and grain—Very salvy; "mushy"; mould in butter.

Color—Very mottled and otherwise inferior to second gradc in regard to color.

Salting—No question of salt alone sufficient to make third grade if other qualities are up to first grade.

Finish—No parchment lining. Very rough finish. Dirty surface.

Explanations.

It is difficult to define exactly the qualities or defects which may appear in butter. The standards which have been adopted are intended to indicate the rangc of quality for the different grades rather than to establish hard and fast rules for the guidance of the grader.

"Fresh," or saltless butter, will be judged on the same standards as for salted butter, by leaving the matter of salting out of the consideration.

A package is not considered well filled if the butter is more than half an inch below the top of the package.

It is very important that all boxes should hold only 56 pounds. No other weight should he marked thereon. Tubs should bc of uniform size and weight.

The following scale of points will indicate the relative values of the different divisions of quality: Flavor, 40; body and grain, 25; color, 10; salting, 10; finish and packing, 15; total, 100. It is obvious that defect in flavor of a certain degree counts nearly three times as much in determining the grade as a defect in finish, or packing of the same degree, and so on.

The expression "too much moisture" applies to all butter which contains over the legal limit of 16 per cent. of water, or to any butter that, according to the custom of the trade, would be described as containing too much water. (From many tcsts made, finest Canadian butter does not contain, or should not contain, over 13 per cent. of watcr). The Official Referee will not be expected to determine thc actual percentage of water.

"Too heavy salt" means more salt than is generally demanded by the trade for salted butter.

"Too high color" means over-colored, or too much coloring material used. "Objectionable shades," or unnatural colors are those which result from the usc of inferior or unsuitable coloring material.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Provisions—A firm market and active demand for all kinds of cured meats is noted this week. The range of quotations on beef hind quarters is 25c. lower than at last quotations, and hogs in street lots are quoted at from $8 to $9. Dressed hogs are selling this week at $6.50. A scarcity of beef, particularly good butcher beef, is noted, and local buyers are having to pay as high prices as those catering to the export trade. We quote the following:

Cheese—There has been no change in the market. Demand from the United Kingdom keeps up fairly well. The market is firm and the decline, which has been so constantly looked for, did not materialize to any great extent. Holders are asking 9 1-2c. to 9 5-8c. for finest Ontario, and 9 1-4c. to 9 3-8c. for eastern. The quality of the stock arriving is said to be very good, the weather having been favorable to manufacture.

Butter—The butter market is certainly interesting to dealers, and its peculiar position is hard to explain. Prices should, in all reason, be lowering; instead of that a stronger feeling and higher prices are noted. During the past few days 20c. to 20 3-8c. has been paid for choicest Townships at country points. Fresh-made grass Townships creamery cannot be quoted under 20c. to 20 1-4c., though the trade decline to buy at this figure. Exporters are also handicapped by the high prices prevailing.

Fine	0 19½	0 20
Medium	0 18½	0 19½
Fresh rolls	0 16½	0 17½
Fresh dairy tubs	0 16	0 17

Eggs—The egg market shows very little change, holders hanging out for 16c. in wholesale lots for straight-gathered stock, and some even are demanding as high as 16 1-2c. Jobbers think that 17c. to 17 1-2c. is about what eggs should bring, on account of the high prices they have had to pay to country buyers.

Halifax.

Eggs—The price is advancing and the supply is decreasing. During the week Nova Scotia eggs sold for 16 cents, and P.E. Island were quoted at 15 to 15 1-2c. It is expected that the price will go even higher before the close of the month. The local demand is good, but the receipts are not up to expectations. Large shipments are being made from the Island to Montreal for pickling, and this is said to be one of the causes for the stiffening of prices.

Butter—The market is becoming a little easier, and with the heavier receipts there has been a slight decline in the price. During the latter part of the week some small tubs of choice diary butter were offered on the market and found ready sale at 23 and 24 cents. Creamery prints are quoted at 24 cents, solids at 21 and 22, and rolls at 21. The destruction by fire last week of the Upper Stewiacke Dairy Company's plant will be somewhat of a handicap to the farmers in that locality. The creamery plant was one of the most complete in the province, and was valued at $4,000.

Beef and Pork—Prices rule high for these products. American fat backs are quoted at $19 to $20, and mess at $18.50. P.E. Island pork is advancing, and the prices now quoted are one dollar per barrel higher than they were a week ago. Choice mess is $17.50 and thin mess $16.50. There is a good buying demand for hams and bacon. The supply is only about sufficient for the local market. The prices now are about steady, but an early advance is looked for.

Cheese — Prices remain unchanged. The old stock is pretty well cleaned out of the market. Septembers are quoted at 12 1-2 cents here, and new fodder cheese at 11 1-2c.

WINNIPEG.

Provisions—Barrelled pork is rather higher, and sale is quiet. Beef shows considerable advance, but sale is likewise limited. Pure lard is very firmly held. Refined lard is low, but tending to higher figures, with sales quite active. Smoked meats are higher and firmly held. In fresh meats beef, both domestic and western, is slightly higher. Veal is unchanged. Mutton is scarce and good prices obtained. Lamb is still high and supply light. Pork commands full figures.

BACON SITUATION.

There has been considerable falling off in receipts of hogs during the week at Canadian packing houses on account of the drop in prices, namely ½c. This was occasioned by an easing off in the English market. Conditions there at the present time are not as favorable as might be expected owing to a surplus of Danish bacon which has been selling at a slight reduction. The price of Danish to-day ranges from 55 to 56 shillings. Best Canadian is quoted at 53 shillings.

FAVORS THE EMBARGO.

Mr. J. T. Gordon, the western cattle king, who has just returned from a trip to England, is of the opinion that it would be a very serious detriment to the best interests of Canada should Great Britain decide to permit the shipping of store cattle into that country for fattening. "We have the very best facilities for fattening our own beef in Ontario, Manitoba, Northern Alberta or Saskatchewan, and it will be best for us to take advantage of these facilities. We may be sure of this: that if the embargo is removed from Canadian cattle, so also will it be from American stock."

ENTERPRISING FIRM.

The business of Lind, Kerrigan & Co., London, Ont., has increased so rapidly that the firm are now on the lookout for new premises. They may have to build, but have not decided yet. This young firm owe their success to their up-to-date methods of business, their energy and the strict fairness that always characterizes their dealings.

ENDORSE CHANGES.

The Council of the Montreal Board of Trade at its meeting on May 24 endorsed the suggested changes in the rules respecting the weighing of butter and cheese, with the exception of rule 2, which was originally framed to ensure accurate weighing by the manufacturer and the marking by him of the correct weight on the package. The proposed amendment was to make provision for gains being applied against losses in the average. In order that due protection may be afforded to the manufacturer, however, in the event of an article weighing a pound under or over, the Board suggest that not less than five packages of butter and cheese, nor more than ten per cent. of each particular lot shall be weighed except in the case of discrepancies in the marked weights, in which case the whole parcel may be reweighed at the request of either of the parties interested, but at the expense of the party making the request.

CANADIAN MAPLE PRODUCTS IN UNITED STATES.

MR. W. H. CRABBE, of the Canada Maple Exchange, has just returned from a visit to New York and other American cities in the interests of his firm. In an interview with The Grocer, Mr. Crabbe reports having done a good business. The recent legislation on the subject of maple sugar and maple products Mr. Crabbe stated, was even more complicated and unsettled than in Canada, each state having its own peculiar methods of marking mixed, blended or straight goods. Mr. Crabbe stated that this state of affairs favored him considerably in doing business, he being in a position to offer the pure article under a strict guarantee. "So ripe is the best market for pure first-class maple products that price is scarcely a consideration, and I think you will agree with me," said Mr. Crabbe, "when I tell you that we are getting 20c. a pound wholesale for certain lines of our products on the American market, and as much as 13c. for plain sugar. A prominent New York broker, interested in the trade, reports that there is a steady and substantial increase in the consumption of maple goods, and this condition will no doubt be improved, provided the quality of the goods is kept up to a high standard."

Eleme figs are being sold at low prices by H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto.

Special Notice to the Trade

The Quaker is now out for the coming season soliciting your orders for "Quaker" canned goods. As usual we have added largely to the plant and we are also handling the pack this year of two additional factories, the goods in these two factories being packed under our own supervision. With this increase we expect, even with the most ordinary crop, to be able to do something this year that we have never done in the five years since we started, i.e., fill our orders in full. Our aim from the start has been to pack high-class goods and make the "Quaker" Brand of Canned Goods the Standard from the Atlantic to the Pacific. We have already succeeded in doing this, and now that we are in this position our further aim is to hold it. With this object increased modern machinery has been placed in the factory and increased care will be taken in packing the goods, all with the determination of holding the high opinion which we now hold with the great consuming public of the Dominion. Next week we will in the "Grocer" give a list of the wholesale trade throughout the Dominion, handling "Quaker" Canned Goods.

CONSULAR SERVICE INDICTED.

A RATHER severe indictment of the United States consular service appears in a contemporary American periodical. The charge is made that the service is afflicted with the dry rot of journalistic politicians. That is to say, pull, and not merit, seems to be the qualification for a position in the ranks of American consuls. Of course the writer is careful to explain that there are many exceptions or "a righteous remnant," but the sting of his attack is thereby none the less severe.

Government to-day is becoming more and more government by experts. Colleges and universities are turning their attention to the art of government and are arranging courses for instruction along these lines. But so far as the United States is concerned, there are few experts in the consular service.

We in Canada have a consular service and one, which for its size, is doing excellent work. The members of the service seem to be competent men with considerable business training. As the service grows, however, there will always be a danger that political influence will be brought to bear to fill the various positions with inferior men. This is a danger that must be warded off if our service is not to suffer from the same trouble as has manifested itself in the United States service. It would be worth while for the authorities at Ottawa to consider the advisability of instituting some sort of an examination which candidates for these positions would have to pass.

A COMMERCIAL RELIEF.

A CONDITION of suspense is not good for the human body, and it is quite as injurious for the commercial body. For some weeks uncertainty has hovered about the movements of the Japanese and Russian fleets in the Far East. Conflicting rumors, speculations and conjectures have all tended to excite the mind, and both hemispheres have been breathlessly awaiting the result of the inevitable encounter.

The result has been received with an undoubted sense of relief, for, while many people have admired the bravery and daring of the Russian admiral, the Japanese victory has brought peace within a measurable distance. Had the Russians succeeded in destroying the Japanese navy, thereby cutting the Japs' line of communications, it is impossible to realize what horrors of war must have resulted. Other nations would certainly have become involved.

From a commercial standpoint, the result must be hailed with relief. During the fifteen months that the war has dragged on Japan has borrowed $260,000,000 on the British and American market and Russia has raised at Paris and Berlin something like $200,000,000. When sums of this magnitude have to be provided on short notice for the destructive purposes of war, it will usually happen that many legitimate industrial enterprises must postpone their plans because not enough ready capital is left to advance to them.

OUT AFTER BUSINESS.

WHEN a grocer or general merchant complains to you that the big mail-order houses are trespassing unduly upon his territory, remind him for the nine hundred and ninety-ninth time of the necessity of getting out and hustling for the patronage he is allowing to drift into the hands of his competitors.

One great difficulty with the average retailer is that he doesn't pay sufficient attention to advertising. He sits and grumbles about the catalogue houses, and blames the editor of his town or county paper for running their full page ads, and if he advertises at all is content to run a stereotyped ad. month after month, something after this fashion: "John Jones, dealer in groceries, crockery, and produce." No one will presume to say there is anything in such an advertisement to induce the farmer to hitch up his team and come to town. An ad. that has stood the storms of years without blinking is more likely than not to act upon him as a "hoo-doo." He comes to the conclusion that John Jones' stock must have been standing on the shelves about as long as the ad. has been running; that the merchant is a back number and ought to be laid quietly away with his fathers.

The real live advertiser is the man that gets the business. He heads off the catalogue house by means of one of the latter's most effective weapons—an attractive advertisement. He sees the dollars in the distance, and loses no time in gathering them in.

IN THE COMMON INTEREST.

A FEW western retailers have been shy of the association movement because of a mistaken idea that a retailers' association is necessarily antagonistic to the wholesaler, and must meet with his opposition. Striking proof of the foolishness of this idea and of the active sympathy of the intelligent wholesale firm with the success of the new association has been afforded by the action of a number of Winnipeg whole-salers. As an evidence of their sympathy and support they are enclosing in all their letters to the retail trade a printed slip calling the attention of their customers to the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada, and asking if they have joined. This should set at rest forever all doubts as to the attitude of the wholesale interests.

And, indeed, it would be a strange thing if the wholesalers were to oppose a movement which has for its object only the maintenance of sane business methods. It would be strange if they were to oppose an organization which seeks to shorten credits, and thus facilitate collections. It would be strange if they were to oppose any legitimate movement to eliminate cut-throat competition among retailers, for they are interested in seeing their customers make a profit. It would be strange if they had not sufficient foresight to see that the future interests of all branches of the trade will be best served by a hearty co-operation. The retail association is in the common interest.

DISCRIMINATING AGAINST CANADA.

ON another page of this paper will be found a letter from a Canadian business man, who is at present making a trip round the world. Associated with one of the largest manufacturing firms in the United States, whose products have become almost a "household word" in the principal countries of Europe, Africa and Asia, he is in a position to speak with authority on foreign trade conditions. In commenting on Canadian trade in South Africa he instances the fact that the direct steamship line sailing from Canada to South Africa, subsidized by the Dominion Government to the extent of $146,000 a year, is offering special inducements to heavy American shippers which are denied to Canadian exporters.

It can scarcely be imagined that the Federal authorities had this in mind when the subsidy was originally granted. Their object was rather to encourage direct trade between Canada and South Africa, it being felt that South Africa offered a splendid market for Canadian foodstuffs and manufactures. A year or more under the improved conditions with gratifying results to Canadian exporters, and the steamship people direct their efforts to making a big "scoop" at the expense of those whom the direct steamship line was intended to benefit in the first instance. Naturally the owners of the line wish to make the service as profitable to themselves as possible; at the same time there is no denying the fact that they are abusing their privileges in discriminating against Canadian shippers. It is an injustice to our exporters, which, if it is allowed to continue, must ultimately strike a death blow to international trade between Canada and South Africa.

TO REPLENISH FISHERIES.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to establish hatcheries in Northern Ontario for replenishing the upper lake fisheries. The general impression seems to be that fishermen in these waters have been altogether too improvident for the good of one of Canada's most valuable resources, and it is on this account that a number of boards of trade and municipal authorities in the north country are bringing the subject before the Federal Government, hoping to receive from them the needed assistance. When the fisheries of Lakes Superior and Huron stand in danger of becoming depleted within a few years, it is in the interests of the nation from a commercial standpoint to introduce some such protective measure as has been outlined above.

MONEY REFUNDED.

EVERY retailer can give his quota of uncomfortable incidents arising from the insistance of irate and what-you-may-call-it customers, to have the "money back." This system has been carried to an extreme which in many quarters is pronounced unhealthy. However, though there may be a gleam of truth in such statements, a sound principle is involved in the retailer's argument to refund the purchase money. That this is true is attested by the experience of countless stores when the sign "These goods not returnable" is displayed. Nine times out of ten the purchaser will return the goods and demand an exchange or refund, and when an explanation is attempted it only acts adversely on the customer's mind.

It is the old story of the school teacher who forbade his pupils to sit upon the roof, and thereupon gave them a new idea which they at once proceeded to act upon. Human nature is much the same. Consequently the surest way to be bothered with returns is to say "You can't." To be sure there are many lines of delicate creations which constitute an unwritten code of non-exchangeability. Reference is chiefly made here to the many special sales tempting the purchaser.

Modern retail methods are chiefly designed to thoroughly satisfy every customer, and the return privilege is now generally accorded. That such a method is the surest way of pleasing the vast majority, and also the sanest method of retailing, is now almost universally recognized.

WEST INDIES FOR CANADA.

IF one is to judge from frequent expressions of opinion on the subject, sentiment in the West Indies is becoming more and more favorable to Canada. Only a few months ago a representative of The Grocer visited the islands; he found the trade there kindly disposed as a whole to their fellow colonists away to the north, so much so that they preferred to trade with Canada than with the United States, other things being equal. Prominent citizens went so far as to propose confederation with the Dominion as the most satisfactory solution of the future of the islands.

Such a move would hardly be looked at askance by the motherland. Only a week ago a speaker in the British House of Commons made the remark that he would "like to see the West Indian Government enter into negotiations with Canada, to find out whether at least some of the islands could not be better administered by the Dominion. If they were attached to Canada they would form something like a southern zone for the Dominion. The reorganization and revitalizing of the West Indies would result in an alteration which would add enormously to Great Britain's imperial strength on the strategic highway of the world and in the commercial centre of the Western Ontario." What is more, the British Treasury has just refused to continue the grant of $50,000 a year to the Agricultural Department of the West Indies, and the islanders are beginning to fear that Great Britain is losing interest in their welfare and progress.

Canada recently extended a substantial preference to all importations from the West Indies, with the result that a substantial and rapidly increasing trade has grown up between the two countries. From a commercial standpoint it is in the interests of Canada to cultivate the islands, and it is to be hoped that the Federal Government will not be so forgetful of this fact as to withdraw or even curtail the financial support to the direct steamship service between Canada and the West Indies, which it has extended for the past twelve years.

BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET.

WHAT was perhaps the most magnificent banquet ever held in Berlin took place on May 31 under the joint auspices of the Industrial League branches of Waterloo county towns and the Berlin Board of Trade. About 500 guests were present. Among the speakers were Hon. J. G. Jenkins, ex-Premier of South Australia; Messrs. F. D. Monk, M.P.; J. D. Allan, Toronto; George Clare, M.P., Preston; George Pattinson, M.P.P., Preston; G. B. Ryan, Guelph; J. P. Downey, M.P.P., Guelph; Watson Griffin, Toronto; besides local men. The theme of the speeches was the spirit of national co-operation among all classes of Canadians for the purpose of building up Canada. This is one of a series of similar banquets to be held under the auspices of the league in the different provinces.

In responding to the toast to the "Development of Canada," Mr. J. D. Allan said he believed Canada was on the eve of greater development than she had as yet experienced. The Toronto Board of Trade were about to celebrate their diamond jubilee. In this connection the speaker took occasion to review the past sixty years in Canada. In 1845 the seat of government alternated between Toronto and Quebec; sterling currency was then used; the distance from Toronto to New York was then, as regards time, greater than from Toronto to Liverpool at present. Mr. Allan reviewed the growth of Canadian trade from 1760. From that time until 1817 there were no banks. Then the Banks of Montreal and Quebec were established later. To-day 35 Canadian banks had branches all over the country. Of these 35 banks 20 had their head offices in Toronto. The total figures for the Toronto clearing house for 1892 were $326,000,000, and in 1904 they reached $842,000,000. This was but a fair sample of the growth all over the country.

Mr. Allan emphasized the necessity for the development of the facilities for distribution of trade as well as production, and expressed the belief that the Peace River Valley had more in store for Canada than had been shown by Manitoba. The Hudson's Bay had untold fishery wealth. The speaker referred to business as a science for which preparedness was necessary. This was to be had in technical education, and he was glad to see that Berlin had been one of the foremost towns to realize this. The brains of Canada were equal to any on earth. Mr. Allan asserted that British Columbia, instead of pushing its lumber trade to China, was wasting its time putting a tax on commercial travelers, which was described as a disgrace to the country, and should not be tolerated. From the Straits Settlement to Vladivostok on the Pacific Coast of Asia were countries with 500,000,000 people. They were not yet up in consuming power to civilized people, but were getting there. Canada should have a share of this great trade.

A SMART INTERIOR.

THE accompanying illustration shows one of Ingersoll's most up-to-date stores, owned by I. W. Kingswood. Mr. Kingswood has had considerable experience in the grocery business, having been actively engaged in the trade for fifteen years in St. Thomas, and at one time president of the St. Thomas Retail Grocers' Association. After leaving St. Thomas, Mr. Kingswood represented Edward Adams & Co. in Western Ontario for two years. His last move was to Ingersoll, where he has been successful in building up a first-class business.

Interior of I. W. Kingswood's Grocery, Ingersoll.

His stock is nicely arranged, an attractive china department being one of the features of his store. The interior is well lighted with gas and electric lights, the china department proper by a skylight, which shows the goods to the best advantage.

Mr. Kingswood makes a specialty of coffee, in which he has worked up a wide patronage. He believes in quality first, is opposed to price cutting, and is an advocate of shorter hours.

This is the Tea that pleases the people and pays the grocer better than any other brand on sale.

This is the Tea that is sold on the solid foundation of merit, and merit alone—hence its great sale.

This is the Tea that was awarded the First Prize and the Gold Medal at the World's Fair, St. Louis, 1904.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, June 1, 1905.

DURING the past week, and ruling at present, in wholesale circles is the feeling that trade ought to be better under the conditions prevailing in the country. This condition refers to the fine pasturing that is available now, and which permits of a large make of butter and cheese. Prices for all kinds of dairy products and provisions have been exceedingly good, and the farmer has been realizing better prices for eggs and butter this year than for many seasons past. All these conditions should make for better trade than is at present reported. Orders are not heavy as a rule, and country merchants should find most lines in their favor. This seems to be particularly true as regards values in teas. The Grocer has seen and tested teas, notably Japans, at prices that are really cents a pound better than the same class of teas have been sold at in former seasons. It is not too much to say, and no more than local facts warrant us in chronicling, that taking all things into consideration it seems that teas are good buying. Sugars are unchanged, and though both beet and raw are a shade higher no effect was noted locally. The recently-arrived shipments of Scotch granulated have somewhat unsettled the trade, and it is reported to us on good authority that sales have been made at 5c. for 100-lb. bag style, and one dealer stated that he had been offered it at $4.95. The refineries however, have not up to this writing made any attempt to meet these figures, preferring wisely to let the other fellow make the loss. As it is, there does not seem to be any too much money in it for refiners as purchases of beet and raws were made at high figures. Canned goods are dull and featureless. Though some orders have been placed for B.C. salmon, new pack, no prices were given, brands ruling the order. Unless all previous experiences fail, this ought to be a year for a heavy run of salmon, and it is difficult to judge the future in view of the changes that have been under way in the canning industry of the Pacific. Molasses was advanced 1-2c. in Barbadoes, but no effect was noticed in the trade here, and prices are unchanged. Some heavy shipments of Antigua molasses are expected per sailing vessel shortly. These goods rule about 5c. per gallon under Barbadoes make. Rice and tapioca show a somewhat better trade. Coffees and spices are firm, but dull trading locally. Fish business is reported better owing to freer arrivals of fresh lake catch. In foreign dried fruits business is opening up some interest in quotations for new Valencia and Malaga fruit, currants, etc. Special reference is made under the particular heading in our markets. Flour still shows a firm feeling, and the market kept up through the advance in wheat. No change in prices, however, is noted. Mill feed, which during the cold weather of last week showed some life, is dropping off as the pastures are in good shape and warmer weather prevailing. Provisions keep up firm. Live hogs are coming in better, but not in excess of the demand from packers, consequently prices remain high. Butter is high and a puzzle to dealers; it ought to get cheaper, but does not. Demand from abroad is good and local demand heavy. Eggs also are quoted high, through a drop may be looked for as soon as pickling is done, which period is about due. The high prices that have had to be paid by country buyers have largely restricted pickling this Spring. Cheese is quiet, but inquiries from abroad are expected more freely as soon as the United Kingdom dealers have worked down their surplus stocks. Hay is quiet and prices tending down. No. 1 hay is scarce, stocks of No. 2 fair. Maple products are slackening off.

Sugar—There is no change to report in the situation of the sugar market locally. Beets have advanced slightly abroad, and raws are also somewhat firmer. It is reported that the cargo of Scotch sugar which reached here about ten days ago is being sold at very low figures, some dealers stating that they have been buying it at 5c., while one manufacturer advised The Grocer that he had offered it at $4.95. At these prices the consignment certainly must show a heavy loss, and the present condition of the market does not encourage much importation. The steamer Yrobu is expected shortly from Antigua and St. Lucia with a cargo of West India sugars and molasses. The steamer Melrose, from Demerara, via Barbadoes and Antigua, for Montreal, is also expected shortly with full cargo of molasses.

Syrups and Molasses — Trade in molasses has been quiet and featureless during the last week. Prices are reported a half a cent. higher on the Island, but no change is made by the trade here so far. The schooner Palma, from Antigua, will be the first of the West India sailing vessels to arrive in Montreal with a full cargo of molasses. This shipment is consigned to J. Russell Murray, who reports that the molasses is a particularly fine grade this year. The Antigua molasses market is practically closed, the last cargo having been sold to Halifax trade. Syrups are in somewhat better demand. Trade has been rather quiet in the past few weeks, but seems to have had a revival.

Tea—The tea trade during the past week is reported as exceedingly dull. In fact some brokers and representatives say it has not been so dull for quite a few years back. In Japans it is reported that old stocks in the hands of agents are practically closed out at prices which are considered exceedingly low, and appear to be in buyers' favor. Prices for first crop fine new teas are lower than last year, but it must not be overlooked that last May's values were very dear and not at all in proportion with later pickings though last year's May and June pickings were high: July and August teas, on the contrary, were very cheap, for second and third crop teas, the class of teas that sell in Canada. A cable to hand last Friday from Yokohama advises that the market is somewhat easier, the lowest prices so far paid being 28 yen, or 19 1-4c. c.i.f. steamer and rail. The Kobe market rules one yen higher than Yokohama, with supplies coming in slowly. Settlements to-day at Kobe were 5,000 piculs, as against 20,000 on same date last year. This shows a very large difference, and one which would undoubtedly have an effect on prices.

Coffee—The coffee trade is quiet and only about as usual. There are no changes to report. New York prices are reported steady, with a tendency to easing off on spot goods. We call attention to Watt, Scott & Goodacre's circular to the trade under date of May 30th, which places the situation more fully:

"In spot coffees New York has been a little bit easier, speculators having taken their profits; and the higher prices of last week having checked the buying of the roasting interests. One further element: New York is not at ease carrying a stock of 4,000,000 bags of coffee, which is the largest coffee stock held in the world to-day; and while the load is neither too heavy or uncertainly placed, it keeps the market panicky notwithstanding that the best informed believe that the new crop, plus the visible, is 1,000,000 or 2,000,000 bags short of annual consumption.

"We can learn of no actual business between Brazil and Canada for this week and except for special descriptions, none for New York account, New York being the lowest-priced market in the coffee world, owing to above reasons.

"New York coffees, however, are not available for Canada, and we can offer through goods on spot, and to arrive."

Watt, Scott & Goodacre in their last report to the trade advise as follows:

Valencia Raisins—An expected normal crop and the disasters which attended farmers who carried their fruit late into the season of 1904 will make for the advisability of marketing the fruit at an early date for a reasonable price.

Malaga Raisins—The crop is expected to be a little larger than last year. A feature of the season will be a large development in the quantity that will be imported of No. 1 clusters, wrapped and ribboned, 20 to the box. The vines are looking well, and grapes are plentiful, but on the small size. Rain is needed to develop the fruit.

Shelled Almonds—The Malaga crop is now considered to be secure, barring hailstorms and other freaks of nature. The "Valencia" trees give excellent promise, but "Jordans," which chiefly come from Granada, are said to be small in quantity, as well as in size of fruit, owing to the prolonged drought which has practically destroyed the grain crops of that province.

Sultana Raisins—There are reports from the interior of Turkey stating that damages to the vines from frost have been severe. Conservative opinion prevails that the damage is not serious, and that a good crop will be housed, provided all goes well.

Hallowee Dates—For shipment ex first-tide steamers from Persia, via London, Hallowees are offered 12s. 6d; Kadrawees, 11s. 6d; Sairs, 10s. 6d per cwt. c.i.f. Montreal, or for shipment ex second-tide steamers at 6d per cwt. less. The shipments offered will not compare favorably in time with shipments by direct steamship to New York, but the low cost should prove attractive.

Sicily Filberts—Prices for new crop have been sent out for several months. Present speculative price for September-October shipment is 23s. 6d per cwt. c. and f. Montreal.

Currants—Too early to say more than that prices will not in any event be high. Market is firm.

Prunes—Much interest should be taken in California prunes of present season, the coming crop is reported much below half a crop and will consequently run to large sizes and high prices.

Several cars of northern fruit, 50-60's, 60-70's, equal quantities, were recently sold at 1 3-8c. bag basis, f.o.b. coast. Santa Claras 50-60's and 60-70's offered at 1 1-2c., delivery to be taken in bags, or 50-lb. boxes at 1-4c. advance, or 25-lb. boxes at 1-2c. advance.

Five cars of peas have been sold this week at prices between 95 to 97 1-2 cents. Peas are scarce and demand good.

Evaporated Apples — Evaporated apples are in little demand. The market is quiet and business smaller than last week. The market being flooded with green fruits is the cause of this poor business. Evaporated apples are still firm at 6 1-4 to 6 1-2c., and dried apples quiet at from 3 to 3 1-2c. per lb.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Flour—An interview with the leading dealers shows that a fair and slightly increasing business is done in flour. Buyers are holding their large orders back, and this is the cause of the slow increase of trade. Shipments, according to opinion of dealers, average, or at least are not much above those of last week. We quote:

GROCERIES.

Toronto, June 1, 1905.

STEADY business in assorted orders is reported by leading wholesale houses during the week; conditions in the country are beginning to show signs of improvement, and although not up to the standard as yet, country business is on the increase. There is considerable gossip among the trade as to the opening price of sockeye salmon, and, although it has not been definitely announced, the general understanding is that this year's prices will be lower than those of a year ago on account of 1905 being a big run. An increased demand is noted for canned meats, which means that the retail trade are beginning to anticipate their Summer wants. Sugar continues steady and unchanged. A few lots of raw sugar have been selling at reduced prices. Several transactions in West Indian molasses are reported during the week at prices below the ideas of Toronto brokers. A fair trade is doing in teas generally, with Ceylons somewhat stiffer in price. Owing to shortage in the 1905 crop of California prunes very firm prices rule. The local market is already pretty well cleaned up on prunes. A brisk demand is noted in 1904 crop Valencia raisins.

Canned Goods—Brisk inquiries for tomatoes with continued importations of American goods are reported this week; an improved demand is also noted in canned corn. One of the most interesting features of the canned goods market at this juncture is the taking of orders for future canned fruits and vegetables, which is reported on a large scale. Pork and beans continue to move very freely.

There is a good deal of gossip this week among the trade as to the opening price of 1905 pack salmon. It is generally understood that the price will be lower than last season, and one or two quotations have already been named on red sockeyes, viz., $4.50, as compared with $5.35 a year ago. The new price on haddies will be considerably higher than last year, and some will unquestionably be sold as high as $4.50 or $4.60. An increased demand is noted in canned meats owing to the approach of the picnicing season. Our quotations are as follows:

Sugar—The sugar market continues steady with an upward tendency, if anything. On Saturday, May 27, Arbuckle and the Federal, two of the New York refiners, advanced their prices 10c. There has also been an advance during the week of 1-32 in raws, leaving the margin between raws and refined 1.32, as compared with 85c. last year. Indications point to an increased consumptive demand in the near future, and it is thought that the market will be steadier from now on. We quote the following:

Coffee—Locally coffee business is reported quiet, with very little change from last week. A little weakness has developed in New York at the close of the market, but Brazil keeps firm and brokers report that the trade are waiting for lower prices.

The statistical position of coffee continues to improve. United States visible supply of Brazil coffee is now 3,972,709 bags, compared with 4,233,824 bags on May 1. The stock of coffee in Rios and Santos is 1,024,000 bags, against 1,121,000 bags on May 1, and Havre stocks are 2,690,000 bags, against 2,713,006 bags on the opening of the month. The general idea of the trade seems to be that the decrease in the world's stock of coffee for May will be about 600,000 bags; owing, however, to the large existing stock, the close proximity of the new Brazil stocks and the fear of an increase in receipts showing that the new crop was beginning to come to market, the trade has been holding back.

Teas—A seasonable trade is recorded in teas of all descriptions. The trade here shows very little interest in the Japan market as yet, although No. 7 grade May Japan tea is quoted this week at the low price of 20c. The quality of high-grown flavory Ceylon blacks has fallen off pretty much during the last two weeks, and orders for fine quality have been declined at Colombo for lack of suitable teas. London stocks of flavory teas, which have not at any time been plentiful, are almost exhausted, and teas now on the market are distinctly inferior to the corresponding grades of two weeks ago. Common teas have been plentiful and cheap in Ceylon, so cheap as to induce free buying, notwithstanding large weekly sales of about 2,000,000 lbs. The market last week went one farthing higher on this grade, but the tea is still cheap and receiving active attention from buyers, Ceylon being the only primary market in operation at the present time.

The Calcutta market will open next week, but it is unusual to get common tea from Calcutta before July-August, so that Ceylons on to-day's basis are considered absolutely safe for four months to come. Buyers of tea do not usually anticipate their wants for a longer period, since, besides the cost of carrying teas it must be remembered that they depreciate in quality if held longer.

Cables this week from Japan indicate values on about the same basis as this time last year. Beyond a few early teas at between 20 and 30c. there is nothing suitable for the Canadian market, nor likely to be for another month. On this account local buyers have barely commenced to take an interest in the fluctuations of the Japan market since the opening. We quote the following prices:

Foreign Dried Fruits — Valencia raisins are selling rather freely on the spot at exceedingly low prices, brought about by the refusal of growers in Spain to accept ruling prices during the heavy months of the season with the result that they have had to market fruit at about one-half the price they could have obtained had they been more reasonable. Shippers in Spain see a possible advantage in this, as they believe growers will be less inclined to take an unreasonable attitude in the early months of the new season, thus facilitating export business which was made very difficult during the past few seasons.

In currants the market continues steady with fair consumptive demand. Now proposals are being formulated in Greece for handling the coming crop, and the question of the Government forming a plan for making the export business a monopoly is again discussed. No one knows what the result will be, but every one knows that all previous legislation along this line has failed to accomplish its object.

Firmer prices for prunes at the coast are being quoted, the talk being for a 3c. bag basis at the coast for new crop Santa Claras. Chicago is the cheapest market for buyers at the present time, and the local market is said to be pretty well cleaned up of old stock. The coming crop of prunes in California is estimated at 70,000,000 lbs., with a carry-over from the 1904 crop of 80,000,000 lbs. The total 1904 crop was 120,000,000 lbs., with a carry-over from 1903 of 30,000,000 lbs.

Foreign Nuts—The peanut market is decidedly firmer on large stock, and supplies are difficult to obtain. At the present time there is an exceptionally heavy demand for fancy hand-picked, and the market shows, if anything, an easier tendency. Latest reports on Tarragona almonds indicate that much of the growing crop is falling from the trees, and that expectations as to the quantity of the new crop will have to be considerably modified. Fresh Fish—A seasonable trade has been doing in fresh fish during the week. There are no new varieties on the market, and although perch, pickerel and one or two other varieties have appeared on the market from time to time they are such an uncertain quantity that it is hardly worth while giving quotations. We quote:

Country Produce.

Eggs—An unusual condition of the market prevails at the present time, namely, an advance of 1c. per dozen in new-laid eggs. This is a result of buyers throughout the country offering the farmers 15c. a dozen straight for eggs for pickling purposes. There is very little margin of profit on eggs bought at this price. At the same time the wholesale provision people have got to stand the shot. We quote as follows:

New laid eggs, per doz	0 16 0 16½

Beans—At the present time stocks of beans throughout the country seem to be within narrow compass; at the same time the demand is not over brisk, and quotations continue as last advised. We quote:

Maple Products—The maple syrup business is decidedly on the wane and at the close of the market this item is without particular interest. The wholesale trade are of the opinion that considerably less maple syrup has been sold during the season just over than last year for the simple reason that so much stuff has been paraded on the Canadian market which is not pure maple syrup. We quote:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

Grain—Quietness has characterised the grain situation for the week. Slight declines in Manitoba wheat are noted, viz., 1½c. on Manitoba Northern No. 1 and No. 2, and ½c. on Northern No. 3. Red and white wheat have each advanced 1c. as well as oats. We quote the following prices:

Breakfast Foods—No changes are reported during the week, with steady trade in almost all lines of breakfast foods. The market on cereals in the United States exhibits additional strength this week without, however, affecting the price of local goods. We quote as follows:

B. C. Markets.

Vancouver, B.C., May 25, 1905.

RAILWAY building by the rival companies, the C.P.R. and the Great Northern, promises to make a lively Summer in the Similkameen district, into which the race will be made by the rival lines. Incidentally, the opening of the rich Similkameen, so long delayed, will now come with such a rush that the typical western boom is to be feared. There is sure to be the same feverish haste to grab town sites, and to set up business in mercantile lines, that has characterized other steps of development in the West.

But the "rich Similkameen" will stand a good deal of booming. It has long been proven the richest undeveloped area in Southern British Columbia, and its riches are not alone in mineral wealth, of which it has marvelous deposits. Its coal measures are equally valuable, and second in area and quality to none in the whole West. Its agricultural possibilities, particularly in cattle raising and fruit growing, are also capable of development on a very large scale, and many favorable tracts of land are now being got ready for the expected inrush of settlers.

Some time ago the announcement was made that the Great Northern, which has had its terminus in the Boundary country at Midway, since last Fall, would go ahead with its line into the Similkameen district this season, and preliminary work to that end is now being done. It has just been announced that the C.P.R. will this year build, or have built, the Nicola, Kamloops and Similkameen line from Spence's Bridge, west of Ashcroft, to Nicola Lake, a distance of 45 miles, which construction will be completed this year, it is anticipated. Mr. C. E. Loss, owner of the charter of the Nicola, Kamloops and Similkameen Railway and Coal Co., and president of the Atlantic Construction Co., will undertake the work personally, while the engineering will be under the supervision of the C.P.R. engineering staff, with Mr. H. J. Cambie as consulting engineer.

Until the waters of Lake Lebarge are freed from ice, and the melting snows of the upper Yukon have raised the level of water in the river, through traffic on the lower river, which is now open, is seriously handicapped. Many barges and small boats are stranded on bars below Five Finger Rapids. As is usual, large quantities of goods were taken across the ice of Lebarge and placed on scows and in small boats, ready to follow the ice down, but the stage of water is so low that there is little movement. None of the larger steamers tied up at Hootalinqua can move. The little steamer LaFrance got through Five Fingers, and is down to Dawson ere this, it is expected. She took on cattle which had been taken over the trail as far as Yukon Crossing.

In anticipation of the season, the C. P.R. has inaugurated a six-day service between British Columbia ports and Skagway for the Summer, to be maintained by the steamers Princess May and Princess Beatrice. The vessels will call at Port Simpson regularly, owing to the increase in passenger traffic to that part of the Northern British Columbia coast. Last Summer, not having to make the call at Port Simpson, the steamers made a five-day service.

Two six-storey warehouses are to be erected on Water street this year, one with 75 feet frontage for the wholesale grocery firm of Kelly, Douglas & Co., and which they are putting up themselves, and the other of six storeys also, and 50 feet frontage, which will be owned by Mr. Robert Kelly, and Mr. Frank Burnett.

There is to be a special feature at the Dominion Exhibition at New Westminster, put on by the Japanese merchants of the province. This week the home-grown strawberry is in plentiful evidence, most of the fruit being from the earlier plantations on Vancouver Island close to Victoria. The quality is excellent, and growers say that everything is in line for a bumper strawberry crop this season.

While the coast perhaps leads in small fruit culture, so far as quantity shipped, there are many Okanagan places where such industry would pay well, and already attention is being given to the matter.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Superintendent C. D. Bell, of the Ontario Sugar Co., Berlin, has resigned.

Mr. J. W. Maybee, of the Eby, Blain Co., spent a few days in Collingwood this week.

Mr. W. Joyce, of Oakville, was in Toronto on Tuesday, May 30, calling upon the wholesale grocery trade.

Mr. T. Blackwell, of the Park, Blackwell Co., Toronto, who is at present in England, sails for home on June 3.

Mr. G. W. Larkin, general merchant, Nobleton, was in Toronto on Monday of this week and paid a friendly visit to The Canadian Grocer.

Mr. Mulholland, general manager of the Distributors' Co., Limited, Toronto, has gone West to open up branches at Winnipeg and Portage la Prairie.

Mr. A. Macdonald, wholesale grocer, Winnipeg, and his brother, Mr. D. Macdonald, have purchased the K.W.C. Block in Nelson, B.C., for $55,000.

Mr. D. Mowat, secretary-treasurer of the Western Canadian Fish Co., Limited, Vancouver, was in Toronto last week making preparations for Fall trade.

Mr. J. H. Cross, Montreal, has been appointed agent for Albert Dubois & Co., Blanzac, Cognac, France, whose brandies, etc., are well known to the trade.

Mr. C. E. Kyle, grocery broker, Toronto, has acquired the Ontario agency for Thornett & Fehr, London, Eng., and The Baltic, dealers and importers of wholesale spices.

W. H. Millman & Sons, grocery brokers, Toronto, to cope with their steadily-increasing business, have engaged the services of Mr. Neil Carmichael, late partner of the firm of Smith & Carmichael, and formerly with H. P. Eckardt & Co.

Mr. Chas. H. Cochrane, of C. H. Cochrane & Co., the well-known Ottawa coffee and spice house, favored The Grocer in Montreal with a call on May 27. Mr. Cochrane was passing through the city on a sad errand,—on his way to attend the funeral of his mother at Hemmingford, P.Q.

Mr. F. D. Dewar, recently with the Ritchie-Hearne Co., has entered the employ of James Turner & Co., Hamilton, and will look after the territory formerly covered by Mr. Book. He is now at headquarters getting fully posted preparatory to commencing, which he expected to do about May 29.

Mr. F. Menzie has severed his connection with H. P. Eckardt & Co. to become manager of the sales department of the F. F. Dalley Co., Hamilton. Mr. Menzie, more familiarly known among the trade as "Dad" Menzie, has traveled for H. P. Eckardt & Co. west of Port Arthur to Vancouver for over a year.

Mr. John N. Creed, who has been with Jason S. Creed, Board of Trade, Montreal, agent for Lipton's jellies and table delicacies, has removed to New York. Mr. Frank Creed remains in charge of the Montreal office. Mr. Jason S. Creed reports business for Lipton's lines in the Maritime Provinces as good, while their western representative is also doing an increasing trade.

The Royal Crown Soap Co., Winnipeg, are making a thorough canvas of the Montreal trade. Black & Middleton, of Winnipeg, and Mr. E. R. Powell, who has been looking after Toronto, are all in the city and covering it most thoroughly. Mr. W. H. Dunn, eastern agent for the Royal Crown Soap Co., is also adding another salesman to the campaigning list, and it goes without saying that "Witch Hazel" soap will be thoroughly well introduced before these gentlemen get through with the territory.

Mr. David Greig, representing B. McDougall & Co., Glasgow, was a caller at the Montreal office of The Grocer last Friday. Mr. Greig, who is well known to the Canadian trade, is on his annual trip through Canada and the United States. Usually his visits are made in the Winter months, but owing to the protracted strike at the works, which has now been settled, and which Mr. Greig stated in no way interfered with the shipment of their American orders, owing to large manufactured stock on hand, his trip for 1905 was delayed.

Mr. Wallace Anderson, of Anderson, Powis & Co., brokers and manufacturers' agents, Toronto, paid a short visit to Montreal last week. The Grocer met Mr. Anderson and was pleased to learn that the new firm starts out with the best of prospects, and as both Mr. Anderson and his partner are well and favorably known to the jobbing trade of Toronto and the western cities and represent some of the most prominent foreign and domestic houses, a good share of import business should pass through their hands.

Mr. H. Gilbert Nobbs, Toronto, Canadian agent for Holbrooks Limited, Birmingham, was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer on Saturday, May 27. Mr. Nobbs, who has been so thoroughly and effectively pushing the merits of Holbrooks' sauce in Toronto and Western Ontario, is entering upon a systematic sampling and canvassing trade of Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa. He refers in high terms of appreciation to the manner in which the Western Canadian trade and consumer have taken hold of Holbrooks' sauce, and looks forward to an equally successfully campaign in Eastern Canada.

The disciples of Izaak Walton in the brokerage and commission business of Montreal are taking full advantage of the opening of the piscatorial season, and every week one or two are missing from their offices. Mr. A. H. Scott, of Watt, Scott & Goodacre, has just returned from a few days' outing at the club at Nominingue, and this week Mr. Goodacre, of the firm, is taking a fling at the speckled beauties in the northern inland lakes. Mr. J. Rose, of Rose & Laflamme, is also enjoying a rest and fishing this week. Mr. Alex. Anderson, sales agent for the Japan Central Tea Trading Association, is an enthusiastic angler and at every week-end brings home a string of fine fish.

Mr. Frank Stafford, of Frank Stafford & Co., Barry's Bay, Ont., was a visitor to Montreal last week. The Grocer had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Stafford and found in him one of the most enthusiastic of Canadians as well as an up-to-date hustling man of commerce. Mr. Stafford had just returned from a trip to Quebec to see the firm of Goulet & Garant, boot and shoe manufacturers, for, besides running several large stores in Barry's Bay and adjacent towns, his ambitions lead him to represent a boot and shoe house on the road. The territory covered by Mr. Stafford is G.T.R. west of Belleville and C.P.R. west to Sudbury. Mr. Stafford's reports of business are good. In his own immediate district the development of the corundum mining is proving a good feature. A thoroughly energetic and enthusiastic citizen and merchant is Mr. Stafford, and it goes without saying that he is doing well.

A MESSAGE FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

A CANADIAN who is making a trip round the world writes to the general manager of The Canadian Grocer from Lorenza Marques, Africa, as follows:

"Greetings from Delagoa Bay, from which place the writer is about to sail for India.

"Business generally in South Afriea is steady, but with increased gold output, general aetivity in mining interests and a return to normal conditions in the matter of stoeks, etc., the outlook for good business is very promising.

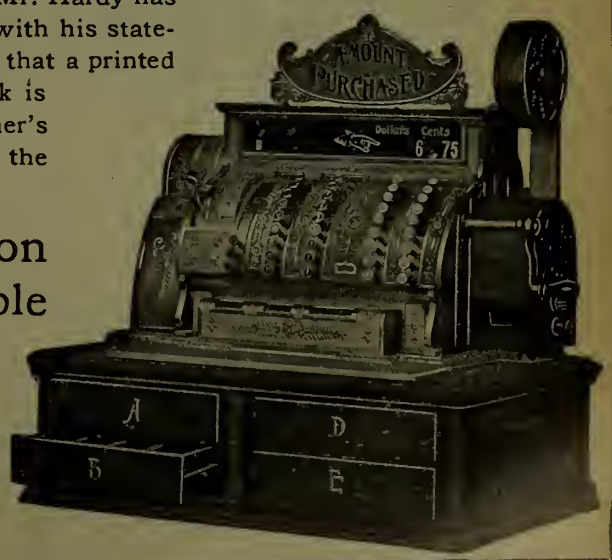
"Canada is slow in taking advantage of the favorable conditions, and complaints are heard frequently concerning disappointing conditions of repeat shipments.

"MacLaren's 'Imperial Cheese,' shown prominently everywhere and used in households generally, proves, however, the possibilities in the way of high quality of Canadian products.

"Re Canada direct line of steamships, it is a fact that heavy American shippers are securing a much more favorable freight rate than Canadian shippers.

"And now for Zanzibar, with its atmosphere heavy laden with the scent of cloves and vanilla beans; India, with its wealth of arehitecture and history; Ceylon, Siam, Singapore, Java, Philppines, China and ultimately Japan, in time to see the vietorious Japanese troops returning to Tokio."

BACK FROM EUROPE.



MR. W. INCE, SR., of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, returned this week from a three months' holiday in Europe. "Pleasure and not business was my object," said Mr. Ince in the course of a brief interview with The Grocer representative, "and I had it. Our itinerary included the Azores, Gibraltar, Algiers, Genoa, Naples, Rome, Venice, Florenee, Paris, a flying trip through Germany and a four weeks' visit to the principal cities of the United Kingdom. Taking everything into consideration, the trip was a thing of delight and one I ean heartily recommend to Canadian business men who have the leisure.

"What impressed me as much as anything was the up-to-datencss of European business methods. The average Canadian gets the idea that the European nations are in this respect behind Canada and the United States. A very short time on the Continent will suffice to cure him of this notion. True, the average Italian merchant may not be as aggressive as his confrere in Canada; it must be remembered, however, that conditions are entirely different in the two countries, and that many hundreds of years have elapsed since Italy experienced the novel sensation of being a new country."

The best thing that can happen for you and your customers is to insure the correct handling of every account.

A customer who settles her accounts at the end of each week said:

"When my bills come to me I know they are correct. Mr. Hardy has a National Cash Register and my pass book always balances with his statement. When I order anything and have it charged I know that a printed record is made of the transaction by the register. The clerk is compelled to make a record of the sale as well as the customer's name at the same time. I have a great deal of confidence in the system Mr. Hardy uses."

A National Cash Register is sold on easy monthly payments which enable you to pay for the register out of the money it saves.

IN THEIR NEW HOME.

THE Leeming, Miles Co., Limited, Montreal, have returned to the newly-altered and rebuilt premises known as the Mussen Building at the corner of Notre Dame and St. Lambert streets. The present home of the Leeming, Miles Co., Limited, replaces an historic landmark which had to be demolished on account of the widening of St. Lambert street. We publish a cut of the new block as it stands to-day. It is a seven-storey structure, the two lower being built of dressed limestone and the upper of "Glenarden" Scotch firebrick. It is thoroughly fireproof, of the protected steel type with ferro-concrete floors and roof and concrete staircases throughout, and equipped with standpipes and sprinkler system. Fireproof vaults are provided, and the finish of the offices is whitewood, with hardwood floors. It is heated by hot water, lighted by electricity, and the lavatories are of the most modern design and finish. Altogether it is one of the most striking and substantial business blocks in Montreal.

Home of the Leeming Miles Co., Limited, Corner Notre Dame and St. Lambert Sts., Montreal.

A short sketch of the Mussen Building will be of interest owing to its history. In 1841 the late Mr. Mussen purchased the site on which the present buildings are partly located. A very old stone building, erected with massive walls, limestone plastered outside, one storey high with French roof. This building, besides being very old, was also historical from the fact of its having been occupied in 1694 by Cadillac, the founder of the City of Detroit, Mich.

In 1842 this old structure was demolished and a first-class store and dwelling erected. It was considered in those days, on account of its expensive and elaborative finish, as the city's finest structure. It was opened for business by Mr. Mussen on St. George's Day, April 23, 1844, and was the first store in Canada in which English plate glass was introduced for windows, the late Mr. Mussen importing the plates himself direct from England. The size of the panes 36x33 inches astonished the citizens of that time, and it was with great difficulty people were prevented from scratching the glass to discover the joints in the plates, as it was thought impossible to make window glass of such a size. What would their shades think if they saw the enormous plates now used in store fronts?

In 1861 the building was practically demolished owing to the widening of the street by the city council. In reconstructing what was left after the widening of the street had been completed, heavy steel plate girders were used, the first of the kind to be used in buildings in Montreal. These girders were also imported from England by Mr. Mussen to strengthen the floors throughout the building. Again in 1904 a further widening of St. Lambert street necessitated the complete demolition of the historic old structure, and an entirely new and modern building has been erected upon the site. It is this building which the Leeming, Miles Co., Limited, are occupying as offices, warehouses and laboratory, and they could hardly be more conveniently located for the conduct of their large business.

The Leeming, Miles Co., Limited, are known throughout Canada, particularly in the drug and grocery trades and in the medical profession as agents for many leading foreign as well as domestic proprietary articles. Nestle's Milk Foods, Royal Baking Powder, Suchard's Chocolates, Kay Bros., Limited, Vampire Fly Catcher, are lines with which every grocer is more or less familiar, while the drug trade look to the firm for Seabury & Johnson's hospital supplies, Hoyt's Cologne, Ripan's Tabules and dozens of other well-known specialties.

MONTREAL

The Most Liberally Managed Firm in Canada

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., May 30, 1905.

THE holiday in the past week somewhat interfered with business. Even without it, however, trade is hardly satisfactory. The weather has been cold, making the season late. Money is not plentiful, and in some of the important lines declining prices have added to what have been rather unsatisfactory conditions. There is, however, a better tone manifesting itself. Sugar is much firmer. Flour is stronger, and with the opening of the Summer months better things are looked for.

The effort of the clerks in the retail stores is likely to be fairly successful in regard to the half-holiday on Saturdays, some only getting it, however, during July and August. It is now expected the hardware, dry goods and boot and shoe men will close.

Oil—In burning oil present sales are rather light. For consumption this is the quiet part of the year. To somewhat offset this dealers are pushing sales for Fall. The present low prices help in this. The future business is largely confined to the country dealers, as the city retail trade buy almost entirely from the tank wagons, saving the price of the barrels. In lubricating, there has been and is fair business. Paint oils have had a good demand. Linseed oil has been very low this season. Turpentine has been held at quite full figures. Both are firmer. Cod liver oil for medical purposes is much lower than last year.

Salt—A further small cargo of Liverpool coarse salt is expected in about a week. Buyers should book orders for arrival, as in this way there is a saving in price. In fine salt there is improved sale.

Canned Goods—Corn and tomatoes are very firm. American goods are quite freely sold. The tomatoes in particular give good satisfaction. It should always be remembered when comparing the two that the Americans pack several grades in both lines, and the cheapest are often imported because of the high duty. The Canadians, as a rule, pack but one grade. There are plenty of peas. In fruits a fair sale, prices unchanged. Meats have a good demand at even figures. In domestic packed fish, haddies are the firm line. It is not unlikely rather higher prices will rule.

Dried Fruit—This continues a quiet line. Seeded raisins have kept very low. Quite full stocks are held. Loose Muscatels are quite firm, but inquiry light. A few Valencias have been brought from New York. Price is very low. Currants which have continued sale are low. Market is chiefly supplied from New York. Prunes are cheap. It is difficult to get the small sizes, however. There is some call for evaporated apricots and peaches, but prices are too high for much business. Dates are quite firm. No sale for figs. Peels, particularly citron, will be high. Evaporated apples are quiet. Prices are rather easier. Onions are low. Egyptians and Burmades are offered; quality has not been very good.

Sugar -- Dealers are encouraged. While there has been no change, market is considerably firmer. It is thought that at least prices will not go lower. There is quite a large stock held.

Molasses—Two cargoes of Porto Rico are landing this week. While this is still a somewhat uncertain market, values are quite firmly held and sales freely made. Stock of Barbadoes is light.

Fish—Supply of fresh fish rather better this week. Gaspereaux and shad are a fair catch. The shad are particularly nice fish. Some few salmon are also offered. In dry fish inquiry is light. Stocks are very small and prices are high. It is thought quite high figures will rule. Pickled herring are very scarce. There is, however, little demand. Smoked herring continue low.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour, while prices are unchanged, the tendency is higher. In feed full prices are asked. Millers hold oatmeal firm. Our market is overstocked. There is no change in cornmeal. Beans are dull. Market seems rather unsettled. Split peas and barley are held at full figures. Seeds have had a fairly good demand. Season about over. Clovers continue very high.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, June 1st, 1905.

BUSINESS continues active in all departments of the grocery trade. Favorable weekly crop reports by the railroads are responsible for a marked feeling of optimism throughout the west, and the result is seen in more liberal buying. A bumper crop is expected to relieve the tightness of the money market.

The sugar market continues weak, but at time of writing there has been no further decline below the figures quoted in last issue. A decline applying only to certain points will be found below. The condition of the market is such that merchants are buying only small quantities for present requirements of their customers, believing that there will be further big reductions. Malta Vita has been reduced in price and is now being advertised to retail at 10 cents. Cornmeal is higher and new quotations will be found below. Coffee is also higher, and the expected advance has been made.

Sugar—Attention is still centred on the sugar market, but since last issue there has not been up to the time of writing any new feature of importance. There has been a decline of 10 cents in Regina and all points on the Prince Albert line, but there have been no general reductions. There is very little buying on what is still believed to be a falling market. Subject to further possible changes recorded in our "Last Minute Manitoba Markets," we quote as follows:

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., May 29, 1905.

A GOOD jobbing trade is reported for the past week, and the outlook for increased business is encouraging. There is a lot of construction work going on in Halifax at the present time. Labor is in good demand, and money is circulating more freely. The position of the laborer in Halifax this Summer is better than ever before, the city paying the unskilled workman 16 cents per hour, which is an increase of two cents over the amount formerly received by them.

The market is well supplied with fruits and green truck. Bananas (fair stock) are retailing at 15 and 20 cents per dozen, and California navel oranges from 40 to 50 cents. Pineapples are selling at 15 and 20 cents each. The apple season now being over, there is a good demand for other fruits. American cabbage, cucumbers, string beans and rhubarb are now in good supply, but the prices rule high. Native rhubarb was placed on the market on Saturday, and before the week's end it will shut the importations from the United States.

Molasses—The market is about steady at present. A large quantity of the new crop of Barbadoes has arrived here recently, and is quoted at 40 to 42 cents. The schooner Narka, which arrived here on Saturday from Porto Rico, brought 274 puncheons, 16 tcs., and 40 barrels. The same price as Barbadoes is quoted. There is no indication of a decline in prices.

Sugar—The sugar market was fairly steady during the week, and the prices remain about the same. According to advices to the refineries here, the London beet sugar market is firm. The demand for refined is on the increase, as the holdings of the retailers are becoming lower.

Fish—Dry and pickled fish prices are unchanged. The local demand is light, but a good export business is being done. The market is well supplied with all kinds of fresh fish. The first fresh mackerel of the season were taken on the Nova Scotia coast last week. The catch was small. The fish were large, and retailed at 25 cents each.

MANUFACTURING FRUIT JUICES.

W. H. Dunn, Montreal, has added another branch to his industrial tree, namely, the manufacture of fruit juices and fountain syrups. The consumption of these articles is increasing every season, and the field is a large one. Since the instalment of his plant and the introduction of the goods, Mr. Dunn has secured a good share of the trade. It is his intention to push the merits of his goods and as he has every facility and an active staff of salesmen, the new departure should meet with success.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

CO-OPERATIVE FRUIT-PACKING.

A E. SHERRINGTON, of Walkerton, submits a statement of the advantages to be gained by packing fruit in a central packing house and marketing it under the co-operative system:

1. All varieties of Summer apples can be handled successfully. Under the old system it usually took a week to ten days to put up a car of early apples, and frequently the first packed would be getting soft and unfit for market. Under the new system three days is the outside that is required to harvest, pack and load a car. In this way, fruit is got to the market in a much fresher condition.

2. By having the fruit picked and delivered at the proper time, each variety is matured.

3. By keeping the fruit under cover and not leaving it exposed to the weather, but cooled down before shipping, the keeping quality is improved.

4. A uniform quality is obtained because one experienced man has charge of all the packing.

5. Both packages and fruit are kept clean and dry, so that when they reach the market they present a better and more attractive appearance.

6. The packing can be done for from one-third to one-half less than in the orchard, because the men are continually at work. No time is lost in driving from orchard to orchard, nor on account of wet weather, and a more uniform grade can be put up.

7. Fruit can be loaded on cars with less damage to package and fruit than if handled from the orchard after being packed.

8. By using a common brand a larger quantity of uniform quality is obtained; in that way a reputation will be established for honest packing and fruit of a higher quality.

9. By selling under the co-operative system or straight sales f.o.b. at packing house (and this must be done) a saving is made. This will cause a deeper interest to be taken in the general care of the orchard by the producer, and thus a larger percentage of No. 1 fruit will be grown.

10. The system of consigning to be sold must be stopped. No other goods are sold or handled as the products of our orchards are, and why should fruit growers submit to what wholesale men, merchants and business men would not tolerate for one moment?

11. Packages and material for packages can be bought in a wholesale way, making a considerable saving.

12. By packing under this system a larger quantity of uniform quality of fruit is put upon the market, establishing confidence between producer and consumer.

As to the objections that have been raised against the system:

1. That fruit will be bruised in transit from orchard to packing house.—No loss has been sustained in this way. Apples have been drawn ten miles and no bruised fruit found, when spring wagons were used.

2. That it is a combine among fruit growers to force prices.—It is nothing of the kind, but aims, first, to establish a system whereby the packing and grading can be done at less cost; the fruit be better cared for and placed on the market in a better condition; a larger quantity of uniform quality obtained; the consumption increased, and the industry improved generally. Practically the same system has been in vogue for some years among fruit growers in the east.

Co-operation in cultivating and spraying of the orchard is now being taken up, and a general improvement is looked for in the industry.

FRUIT NOTES.

A California grower has a novel plan for extending the sale of prunes in eastern markets,—packing them in tin cans, hermetically sealed and sterilized.

The Alvinston Canning Co. met last week and elected the following officers: President, H. L. Bindner; vice-president, C. Wallis; secretary-treasurer, E. Warner. The work of securing a site and arranging for construction is being rushed with all possible haste.

Latest reports from fruit dealers throughout the country indicate that the prospects in Canada were never brighter than this year. Peaches, plums and strawberries promise to be an abnormal crop, barring unfavorable conditions until the fruit is harvested.

Extensive improvements are being made in the premises of the Canadian Canners' plant at Port Hope, formerly

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, June 1, 1905.

IMPORTED green fruits of all kinds are moving well this week. Bananas show decided firmness, owing to the merging of the smaller American banana importing firms into two, namely, the Atlantic Fruit Despatch and the United Fruit Co., which have also come to an agreement in regard to prices. The immediate result is that the Canadian wholesale trade have had to pay on an average 55c. a bunch more than ten days ago. Pines are quotably easier than last week. The first shipment of late Valencia oranges for this season has arrived on the local market. Strawberries are from 1 to 2c. below the level of last week's quotations. Supplies are arriving freely on the market, Delaware and Missouri stock being in evidence along with Baltimore. During the week several sales have been effected at a very close margin and probable loss to the shippers. Domestic strawberries will be on hand in about ten days. A fair to large crop is expected, notwithstanding the fact that this year's acreage is slightly less than that of 1904. Our quotations are:

Vegetables.

A scarcity of domestic potatoes and importations from Michigan on a considerable scale are reported this week. The vegetable trade has switched over to green stuff. Beets, oyster plants, greenhouse rhubarb, and domestic dry onions are out of the market. Bermuda onions are quoted 40c. lower than a week ago. Owing to scarcity, Florida tomatoes are up 50c. QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, May 31, 1905.

An interview with the leading fruit dealers shows that the trade is active and business in a fine condition. There is a specially good demand in oranges, which sell at a good price. Three cars of strawberries were sold Saturday, and on Monday a similar quantity was cleared at prices ranging from 10c. to 13c. We note but a few changes in prices, which hold firm in general. Limes are selling at $9.00 per barrel, or $1.00 per 100 for cases. Barrels contain from 1,100 to 1,200 limes. Bananas have advanced during the week about 50 to 60c. per bunch on jumbos, 35c. on firsts, and 25c. on eight hands. This was due to light receipts in New York, and prices are expected to keep high for some time. Two carloads of Florida tomatoes were sold last week, bringing from $2.50 to $2.85. California cherries selling at $3.00 to $3.25 per box. We quote as follows:

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Green Fruits.

St. John, May 30, 1905.

Bananas, which have been so cheap, are likely to be higher. In oranges there is no change, but prices are firmly held. While Californias are chiefly sold some Valencias and Sorrentos are offered. Lemons are still low. Pines keep quite high. Strawberries easier and better in quality. Cucumbers are firmly held, but are likely to drop off quickly. Tomatoes lower. Native rhubarb is quite freely offered.

LAST WEEK'S FRUIT AUCTION.

At last week's fruit sale held in Montreal, ex ss. Escalona, some 5,000 boxes of oranges and lemons were sold by auctioneer W. M. Kearns, for account of Consignees Hart & Tuckwell, Montreal, shipping agents. The sale was conducted at the docks. The fruit turned out fully 25 to 50 per cent. better quality than the Jacona consignments, sold the week previous. The lemons were not is as good condition as the oranges, as they were not selected, but farmer picked. Prices ranged from $1.50 to $3 for oranges and from $1 to $2 for lemons. There were no outside buyers present and local firms readily took all supplies.

AMERICAN FRUITS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

(From United States Consul Baker, Sydney, New South Wales.)

CALIFORNIA fruits—apples, pears, grapes, oranges, and lemons—are seen in the markets of Sydney throughout the year, but especially during the Winter months, beginning with May. Apples and other fruits are also imported from Tasmania. The climate and soil of New South Wales and all northern Australia is suitable for semi-tropical fruits, and American exporters must expect competition from these sections.

American fruits are imported into New South Wales, both green and preserved, and are generally in excellent condition. Consignments are made to dealers (wholesale), and are sent direct to the fruit markets, where they are offered for sale to retailers. Consignments are generally drawn against the bank, f.o.b. The method of packing California oranges, lemons, and grapes is commended by dealers. No improvement is suggested.

The terms of payment are according to agreement between the parties, either against documents at port of export or f.o.b. Sydney. The duty on canned fruits is 25 cents per dozen quart cans; on raisins and other fruits, 6 cents per pound; on peaches, green, 25 cents per hundredweight (112 pounds).

Pears, peaches, apricots, nectarines, quinces, plums, oranges, lemons, grapes, and all small fruits are grown in New South Wales with as little labor as in any other part of the world. There are, however, numerous insect enemies to the apple and peach.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

BUSINESS generally is good, but the big steamship owners are like the farmers, they are never satisfied. They claim that there is not so much grain going forward as there was last year at this time, and space to Liverpool is not so well booked for June shipment as it was at the corresponding period of last year.

Lumber shipments are now falling off and plenty of oats are offering from American points. Dairy produce is slightly behind and some awakening may take place any day.

A glance at the manifests shows that lumber and grain have held the cargoes up during the first month of navigation. The Laing Packing & Provision Co. are continually shipping large quantities of cured meats, lard and other kindred products.

One Allan steamer took 3,721 boxes cheese and 869 packages of butter. Thomson line SS. Cervona took 5,822 boxes cheese and 496 packages of butter, direct to London. A large business is being instituted in hay export, and an association of hay shippers was formed the other day. Quintal & Lynch, and James Scott & Co., also Ledoux & Bissaillon, have been among the big exporters. Mr. John Scott is the president of the Hay Exporters' Association, and Mr. Quintal is the vice-president.

The Chicago Tribune recently printed a statement that the Gates capitalists had purchased a fleet of ten whaleback steamers known as the Ore fleet, and they are to do business on the great lakes from Chicago to Europe. This would mean a great supplementary fleet for carrying grain direct. The fleet was formerly operated by the Pittsburg Steamship Co., which is a subsidiary corporation of the United States Steel Co. Some of the vessels have already crossed the ocean with cargoes of steel rails, and most of the steamers are now in dry dock at Detroit, where remodelling necessary for the ocean voyages is taking place.

What has been very noticeable in the grocery trade has been the small export of maple sugar. The make this year was large, and yet the manifests of the big liners do not show any large export. Perhaps, it is said, that the British and other Old Country buyers have been frightened by the nasty reports of continuous adulteration which have been scattered broadcast. On the other hand it is notable that the famous brand of Smalls has had an enormous sale owing to its unfailing purity.

The tonnage for sailing craft to operate later in the season is not so large as it was last season, but there are greater varieties of ships and of larger size.

These rates are for general information only, and are subject to change at any time without notice; it is therefore important that all contracts must be reported by wire and confirmation obtained before closing with shippers, and unless specifically stated to be prompt shipment, or shipped within ten days after date of contract from the west.

The above rates are exchanged on basis of $4.80 to £1 Stg., excepting that when freight is prepaid, the ocean proportion of the through rate must be collected on basis of $4.86 to the pound sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

It is understood that when reporting Sack Flour engagements, a carload is considered 28,000 lbs.

It is also important that shipper's name be given for every engagement made.

CANDIES IN SPANISH-AMERICAN COUNTRIES.

DEAN R. WOOD, consul at Ceiba, Honduras, reports that there is an excellent opportunity for manufacturers of candies and other sweetmeats to increase their export trade to Honduras and other Spanish-American countries. The people of these countries are, as a rule, very fond of sweets, and candies suitable to the market should meet with a ready sale. About the only article of the kind manufactured there is a kind of coarse brown sugar made from sugar cane and called "rapadura." It greatly resembles maple sugar in both taste and appearance. Occasionally some of the merchants purchase and import from New Orleans, or some other southern port, small quantities of candies, which generally sell well. As these candies are not suitable for the market, they can only be imported in small quantities. What is particularly desired is hard candy, which will stand the climate. Although limited quantities of candy are imported from the United States, English manufacturers control the trade, which is mostly in peppermint drops, conversation lozenges, etc. They pack these candies in tin boxes and glass jars, a very appropriate manner for this market. Any kind of hard candy which is pleasant and agreeable to the taste and which will not melt easily in a hot climate meets the requirements. The custom house at Ceiba makes no distinction in regard to candies of various kinds and qualities. All pay the same duty, namely, 10 cents per one-half kilo (kilo equal to 2.20 pounds) on the gross weight of the package, or 10 cents for a trifle more than a pound.

CONFECTIONERY NOTES.

Yeates & Thomas, of the Candy Kitchen, Guelph, have purchased the premises on Lower Wyndham street now occupied by J. Davidson and J. Pequegnat, and will shortly remove to the new premises, which will be entirely remodelled.

The old confectionery and bakery business known as Rankin's in Stratford is now installed in handsomely-fitted premises on the south side of Ontario street.

GRAIN CROP REPORTS.

REPORTS from thirty-five representative points throughout the Canadian West indicate that the growing crops are progressing excellently with absolutely no damage from frost.

Grain experts say the United States is on the basis of a fair to good wheat crop, but not a big one. This is true of the Southwestern States generally, including Kansas, with the exception of one important section. It is now a question of filling out, whether the crop will run 575,000,000 bushels up to 625,000,000 bushels, allowing 200,000,000 bushels for the Northwestern States. The Northwest has never been swept as clean of wheat as now, and supplies are so scarce that mills have closed down in a number of cases.

English crop reports continue good, although occasional complaints of drought and of damage from cold winds have come to hand. English wheat continues to be well spoken of, it being many years since an equally favorable prospect has presented itself at this season of the year.

Russian prospects on the whole seem to be good. There are now hopes that the area under Spring-sown grain will not be seriously curtailed because of the war, as was at one time feared.

The French crop is recovering from the effects of the recent cold, and the outlook is hopeful. Fears are entertained that supplies will not be sufficient to tide the country over until new wheat is available, and that the trade may be obliged to resort to importations from abroad. In the event of a bad Summer or of undue delay to the harvest this is inevitable.

The United States holds out but little prospect of export business to the United Kingdom on the old crop, the lowest quotation to-day for any of the higher grade flours being well beyond the reach of the British trade. The situation may become less stringent later on although at the present there is no indication that such prices will become possible as will allow of any important export business before the new crop months.

WILL CLOSE DOWN MILLS.

The American Cereal Co., Peterborough, have announced that after this week's run their manufacturing plant will be closed down pending a satisfactory adjustment of freight rates. According to Mr. Denham, the superintendent, the company find it impossible to handle the export business, the chief business of the Peterborough mills, while freights on this class of business remain as they are now—much higher than on the American railways. Not lack of orders for export consignments, but excessive freight rates, is assigned as the cause of closing down.

NEW MILLS FOR THE WEST.

Work has begun on the mills to be erected for the Keewatin Flour Mill Co., at Keewatin, Ont. The new flour mill will have a capacity of 3,000 bbls. per day, and provision will be made to increase the capacity to 5,000 bbls. The company will also erect storage elevators with a capacity of half a million bushels, and small elevators throughout the west for the purpose of wheat buying. The construction will occupy ten or twelve months.

BIG MILLING ENTERPRISE.

Another big milling enterprise is contemplated. Parish & Lindsay, the Kelly Milling Co., of Brandon, and McGaw, of Goderich, have organized into the Royal Canadian Flour Mills Co. They will expend $250,000 on a plant in St. Boniface if exemptions are granted, and will erect a 4,000-bbl. mill.

GRAIN AND CEREAL NEWS.

The dividend on Lake of the Woods common stock which was to have been declared on June 1 will not be declared until July 1, owing to the absence in Great Britain of Mr. R. Meighan, the president of the company.

The contract for the brick work of Ogilvie's big mill at Fort William has been let, and the work must be finished by September 1. The dimensions of the mill are 50x130, seven storeys high, with a warehouse 85x182, five storeys high.

The G.T.R. have let the contract for the erection of a grain elevator at Midland to the E. R. Baker Co., of Chicago and Midland. The new elevator will have a capacity of a million bushels and will be ready in time for this year's western crop.

Owing to the postponement of the date upon which U. S. manufacturers were to discontinue the giving of premiums, the whole matter is at a standstill, and definite action upon the part of the officers of the national association will be required to force the issue.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

TOBACCO SALES.

CIGAR and tobacco trade should show considerable strength under the influence of the warm weather of the past week. There is nothing which increases this department so much as weather which draws men out of doors. The warm evenings, when a man is tempted out into the open air, are the occasions when tobacco is most consumed. Considering this, the grocer should make a special effort at the present time to secure his share of the business.

Tobacco should be shown and pressed on the attention of the consumer. The great majority of the men whose families deal at the grocery store are consumers of tobacco. If it were put up to them properly they would prefer to buy quietly from the grocer than make their purchases in the publicity and glare of a tobacco store. The success of the tobacco department depends largely on the energy and persistence of the manager in educating the public up to buying from him. The business is being done and the grocer is letting some good profits slip through his fingers if he does not capture a fair part of it.

HOW TO BE A LEADER.

TO lead is much harder than to follow. Watch the man who has succeeded anywhere and then bring the same observation to bear upon your own business. The tobacco business is full of opposition. So is every business. Nothing is easy. Grocers are the easiest to discourage regarding the tobacco trade. They, as a rule, have kept the old square plugs of chewing and smoking tobacco ornamented only with the strong wooden boxes in which the goods came packed. There it stands from the time that a box arrives to the time that the man telling stories and sitting on the keg of nails whittling a stick agrees to buy the last plug and have it charged.

There are other grocers, and they are the men to whom we refer. The man who owns his own house and drives his own carriage, and is a leader in his district. Look at his store. He has a specially divided spot in it for tobaccos and cigars. He has a nice store anyway, and as a man of system and sense he does not want everything to "just happen." Tobacco, as every dealer should know, is most sensitive to its surroundings. It will absorb the smell of anything, no matter how good or ill it may be, provided that it is in the same environment.

As a leader in the community this man knows the habits of about all his actual or possible customers. He studies these habits, or even whims, by educating the people up to what they ought to buy because he supplies beautiful goods that are in consonanee with their undeveloped wants.

For instance, from another point of view. Women are the wealth distributors everywhere. Take the smaller towns where there are perhaps two cigar stores, and these are in the barber shops. A man's wife is at the grocery buying the family supplies, and she thinks of the tobacco and cigars for her husband. Does she intend to go to the barber shop? No! Not a bit of it. She orders tobacco and all the somker's accessories she may want, or not want, because the grocer keeps them and because a smart salesman tells her of something new that her husband is sure to like.

A RANK POISON.

Professor Starr, of the University of Chicago, in his search for a substitute for tobacco, "discovered" a drug worse than opium. An American correspondent from Mexico, who heard of the professor's discovery of mariahuana, writes that that plant grows wild in many of the southern sections of Mexico, and is one of the most dangerous drugs found in the country. So dangerous, in fact, that in the City of Mexico, and other municipalities, the Government keeps special inspectors constantly employed to see that the weed is not sold in the markets.

Its potency as an intoxicant has long been known among the natives, who go on wild orgies with it. A few years ago it was found that many of the prisoners in the Belem prison in the City of Mexico were losing their minds. An investigation was started and the discovery was made that they were all addicted to the use of mariahuana, which was smuggled in to them by the guards, who had been bribed for the purpose. Since then strict orders prohibiting the use of mariahuana by prisoners have been enforced.

THE FIVE CENT CIGAR AND RATE CUTTING.

There is no doubt that a five cent cigar is the very best business puller. Even in the cities the big cigar shops are fighting each other on their specials. Another scheme is to cut rates. That is most reprehensible. One dealer will make a bid for trade by selling four standard ten cent cigars for a quarter. Now, the buyer does not mind if the merchant sells six for a quarter, but the manufacturer does. It is a poor business to cut prices, and in Montreal just now the town is alive with signs "Four For a Quarter," naming and showing standard cigars that are usually fine value at three for a quarter.

There is an old saying, "Deliver the Goods," and if you deliver the goods you will in all respects be a leader.

ture of that remarkable institution, the Flat Iron Building Cigar Store, New York, during the past week. The display was for the purpose of advertising some of the snuffs of the American Snuff Co., more especially the new Electro-Mentho. The display of snuff boxes, which were hired from all sorts of queer places, is valued at about $7,000. It includes a genuine Robert Burns box, carried for years by the poet himself, grotesque and attractive Chinese and Japanese boxes; old English boxes; boxes made of shells and horns in quaint designs, and a multitude of like curios. An attempt was made to secure a box carried by the great Napoleon, but the price named by the owner, $100 a week, was considered too high. A number of window cards form part of the display, one of them humorously describing the Electro-Mentho as a cure for cerebro-spinal meningitis, and another pointing out the remarkable increase in the use of snuff in this country, the consumption having increased seventeen-fold in thirty-four years.

PURE-PURE-PURE

If you wish to find Purity in vinegar you will never find it while you use the commercial acid vinegars. They are not only unsatisfactory to the palate, but are extremely noxious to the system. Purity is to be found in CIDER VINEGARS—vinegars made from clean, wholesome, choice apples. In our is embodied all that is best in cider vinegars. It is made by a secret process of our own, by the latest machinery, and everywhere—in, out and roundabout—is stamped the one word "PURITY." If you use this vinegar once you will never use any other.

Provisioning Troops in the Field

THE fighting quality of an army depends on its stomach, one of the great military heroes is supposed to have said once, when he was upbraiding the chief of his commissary department for tardiness in bringing up the necessary supplies for sustaining his army in the field. Nothing is surer to lower the spirit of an army in the field than hunger, and how to always keep an army fed on the march or even in camp has given many sleepless nights and no end of trouble and vexation to those entrusted with this important part of an army's existence. The immense wagon trains, composed of thousands upon thousands of carts laden with supplies and drawn mostly by oxen, which used to follow an army in olden times have been mostly superseded by the railway supply train, which has made the problem of keeping an army's stomach filled a good deal easier; yet with the increase of the size of the armies in the field nowadays, the task is still of great magnitude and demands much executive talent and patient labor.

Field Bake Oven—Austrian Army.

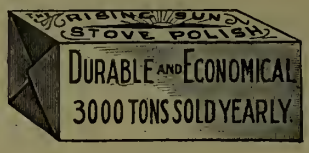
Railway Trains.

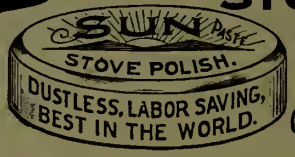
Professor Kleinpeter, the German authority on military matters, writing in a Vienna, Austria, paper with reference to the provisioning of troops in time of war, advocates the use of railway trains as bakeries and flour depots, for the purpose of supplying the army in the field with bread, a subject which has long occupied the attention of the various ministers of war. Formerly, he says, in the case of European wars, an army relied upon obtaining from the farms on the line of march the necessary supplies of grain, which the farmers were then accustomed to store for years. Those conditions no longer exist, each year's crop being disposed of as speedily as possible. It is, therefore, imperative that steps should be taken to procure some effective method of supplying an army with bread, so as to prevent in time of war the awful misery which would result to the inhabitants in the arena of warfare, were they suddenly deprived of their supply of grain for the benefit of the army. Up to the present the European powers have endeavored to solve the difficulty by introducing movable stoves, which were first used by the Prussian army. These, however, have proved unsatisfactory and are now only supplied to the flying columns of an army, while for general purposes the old stove sunk in the ground has been fallen back upon. The hundreds of horses and carts, now required for the purpose of bread supply, would prove an extreme obstacle in checking the rapid movements of a force, and would be in constant danger of falling into the enemy's hands.

Professor Kleinpeter maintains that the adoption of railway bakeries would effectively solve the difficulty. For example, take an army of 1,000,000 men, whose line can extend to, say, about 300 miles. With each train providing for 50,000 men, twenty trains would be required, which could be stationed at a distance of fifteen miles from each other. These fifteen miles could be covered by carts, one cart doing the distance easily twice a day.



One train would have to produce twenty-eight tons of bread a day, and the trains containing flour for a fortnight would have to carry about 250 tons of flour, which could be stored in thirteen wagons of twenty tons each. Every one of the "bakery wagons" would carry two stoves producing 5,000 loaves a day, so that for each train six wagons with two stoves apiece would be needed. There would also be required thirteen flour wagons, a water wagon, a wagon in which to make the dough, one in which it could ferment, three coal wagons, two bread wagons, one wagon for the administration and one for the working men, which would give a total of thirty wagons.

The bread could be distributed by twenty cars attached to each train. The cost of such a train would be very small, as only the stove wagons would have to be specially provided; for the rest, ordinary railroad cars would suffice, involving no additional expenditure. The train could be got ready within twenty-four hours; it could accompany the army corps to which it was attached, within range of the guns, and could withdraw quickly in case of danger.



Advantages.

This proposed railway bakery would certainly offer many advantages over the regular field bakeries now in use. The accompanying illustrations show the style of field ovens now in use in the Austrian and Swiss armies. In comparison with the old style field baking ovens, which were and are still to some extent built of stones, in a hole dug into the ground, and had to be torn down or abandoned in case the army moved too far away or was obliged to retreat quickly, these movable field ovens are certainly doing good service. Yet they require too much of an additional train to bring up all the paraphernalia and raw materials used in the manufacture of bread. They are also, in this age of sudden cavalry surprises, too much exposed to the danger of being captured or destroyed.

The flour, which is to be used, is under present circumstances also much in danger of being spoiled by unexpected thunder showers or long-continued rainy weather, being transported to the camping place in wagons, at the most covered with a plane, and kept in the same vehicles until used. On account of flour being a material needed in large quantities, it may also easily happen that the supply gives out, and while a fresh supply is being hauled to the bakery, the latter has to remain idle. All these drawbacks are obviated with the railway bakers. Enough flour to last two weeks, or even longer, can easily be carried along in one train; there is no possibility of the flour becoming spoiled through rain or other vagaries of the weather, and all the tools and other supplies needed are instantly on hand when the train stops at the appointed place. No muddy roads can delay the bringing up of supplies, and, if necessary, bread can be stored in large quantities for future use. Even in cases of sudden surprises or attacks, a railway train can be quickly moved out of danger and is not susceptible to capture by a flying cavalry column of the enemy.

No Time Wasted.

In the matter of provisioning of troops it may be of interest to know how well and how quickly a large number of men can be fed when some of the canned goods, now so largely manufactured for such purposes, are used. One of the most interesting experiments was recently made in a German garrison town where, under the personal supervision of a canned goods factory 600 soldiers were given a noonday meal, consisting of pork and beans, the bork being a double or so-called holiday ration. Punctually at twelve o'clock noon the 600 soldiers arrived; as the weather was unfavorable and there were large numbers of sight-seers present, the available room inside the factory building neeessitated the meal being served in two sections. The first section finished the meal within twenty minutes after entering the building, although at first greatly embarrassed by the presence of so many visitors. Fifteen minutes before the soldiers arrived the cans were heated in a hot-water apparatus; then they were opened and placed twenty-five in a box, one of the latter serving for a table seating fifty soldiers. As soon as the soldiers were seated, the box with the open cans was placed at the head of the table, and pushed from one to another until finally two men each divided the contents of one can and began to enjoy them.

The meal was highly praised by all who participated, and in consideration of the fact that a hot-water apparatus is easily placed anywhere in the field where an army is encamped, it can be seen that it is now possible to provide troops with a warm meal in the shortest possible time.—Bakers' Review.

TRADE NEWS FROM TRINIDAD.

GORDON, GRANT & CO., Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, report under date of May 16 an improved inquiry for most grades of flour. The cereal market has steadied perceptibly, although there has been no actual improvement in prices. Cornmeal is scarce and wanted. The demand for pork and lard is extremely light. Pork heads, loins, ribs, shoulders and all such articles sell readily, and invariably command full prices. Family beef is getting scarce, and values are steadily improving. The demand for imported yellow rice is steady, with the market beginning to show signs of improvement, nearly all descriptions being reduced in stock. Split peas are in over supply, and the demand for oats and oilmeal is slow. For Newfoundland cured fish there is hardly any inquiry at the moment, and prices are nominal. Good split herring and medium and large mackerel are saleable, but pickled salmon is no longer wanted.

All available molasses has been bought up, and only a few small lots remain to be exported. Supplies of cocoa are coming in steadily, and are likely to continue for the next few weeks, by which time the bulk of the large pods will be picked. After that only light gatherings are expected until towards October. The young cultivation looks well, and the trees are flowering vigorously since the favorable change in the weather. From October 1 to date exports of cocoa total 129,961 bags, as compared with 159,332 bags for the corresponding period a year ago. The demand for cocoanuts has subsided, but the large crops have nearly all been engaged for the remainder of the year at the equivalent of $20 per 1,000 f.o.b., and there are but few procurable.

AFTER THIRTY-FIVE YEARS.

MR. JOHN EVERETT, the veteran traveler of Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, Toronto, whose pleasant face and genial manner will be missed for some months by the trade in Eastern Ontario, passed through Montreal last Thursday June 1, on his way to England. Mr. Everett paid the Montreal offices of The Grocer a visit before sailing. It is 35 years since he left his home in Yorkshire to help build up Britain's greatest colony, and that he has prospered and made a name for himself in his own particular branch of trade and the Province of Ontario is attested to by the fact of his election as first vice-president of the Commercial Travelers' Association, Toronto, and the long period of service with Christie, Brown & Co., Limited. With the exception of a few years as traveling representative for the Eby Blain Co., Limited, wholesale grocers, Toronto, he has carried the name and fame of Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, abroad throughout the province. Built on solid John Bull lines, with that push that is associated with the character, it is no wonder that hard work and persitency have firmly established him as Canada's premier biscuit salesman. While he could sell almost anything, he prefers to sell biscuits, and Christie's at that—fulsome praise, but not undeserved, as the writer worked with him for several years and met him hustling on the road.

While across, Mr. Everett, who is accompanied on his trip by Mrs. Everett, will visit their childhood's homes in the north and south of England. A side trip will also be made to Paris and other continental points of interest. When The Grocer saw Mr. Everett off in the Allan liner Tunisian there was no more youthful and genial passenger on board than John. Both he and Mrs. Everett look forward to happy hours in the circle of their old friends in the old land. "Bon voyage" from The Grocer.

VISITOR FROM VANCOUVER.

MR. GEORGE A. STONE, one of Vancouver's leading grocery brokers and commission merchants, paid a visit to the Toronto offices of The Grocer on Saturday, June 3. Mr. Stone is an old subscriber to The Grocer, and has always taken a friendly interest in the development of "Canada's premier grocery paper."

Trade conditions in British Columbia are in a healthy state at the present time. The trade latterly have been interested in the preparations that are being made for the big run of sockeye salmon. When questioned by The Grocer as to the attitude of the average western business man on the commercial travelers' tax, which has just gone into force, Mr. Stone stated that with the possible exception of the Boards of Trade and the deputation of brokers and commission men who went to Victoria to protest against the imposition of the tax, there had been no organized opposition. "As it turns out, however," said he, "there will be very few eastern wholesale houses who will not pay the tax in order to have the privilege of doing business as they did before. In this way there will be very little opportunity for British Columbia houses to cultivate a monopoly of the trade."

Mr. Stone left on Saturday evening by the Richilieu and Ontario Navigation Company's steamer "Kingston" for Rochester and Montreal. After a fortnight's holiday in the east he will return to Vancouver over the main line of the C.P.R.

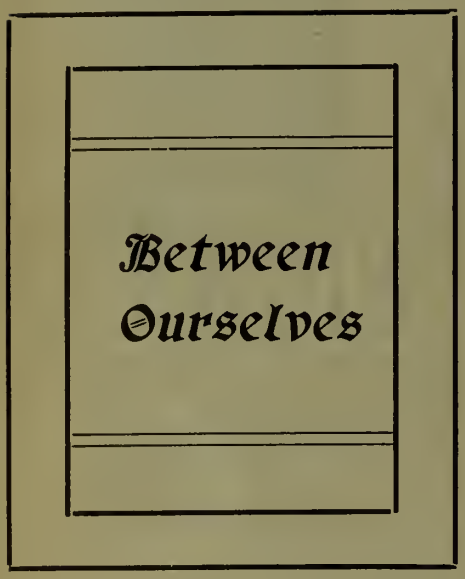
DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM



Edited by Our Ad. Expert, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send our Expert specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

TASTY PRINTING.

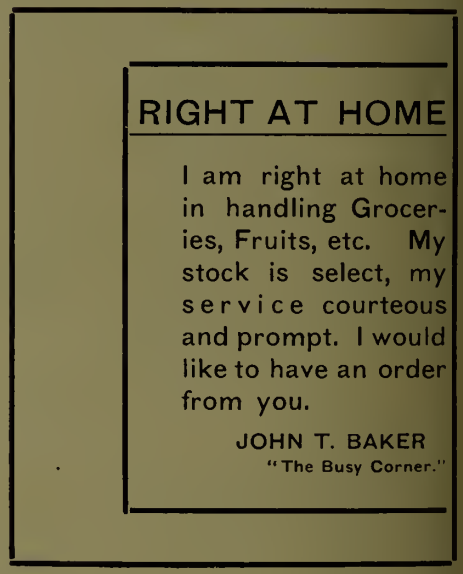
PRINTING is necessarily the source of much profitable advertising, and the grade of the printing is not a small agency in creating the profit. This is a fact too often lost sight of by merchants. No matter how small your store is, whenever you get out any literature see that it is gotten out well.

When I say get your literature out well, I do not mean for you to have lavish printing, but simply good, clean, tasty, modern printing. The difference in the cost has to be weighed, but if you can spare $10 for printing you can, I think, spare $15 for good printing. If you cannot spare $15 for satisfactory work you cannot afford $10 for unsatisfactory work, because the measure of its success will be gauged by the measure of its strength. Nicely prepared literature has the same effect as nicely attired drummers. Both, at least, merit your attention, and that is a big part of the fight in these busy days.

In preparing the literature itself rather choose something of the booklet style—4 pages and cover make a neat size—than the plain, short-lived circular. Most people toss circulars into the fire. The same people would preserve a booklet. Now, the booklet gives the compositor a finer chance to display the art than does the bare circular. Consequently your words are given far greater emphasis, and the story you have to tell is driven home with far more force.

The booklet may be made tasty by having as few words as possible on the front cover—say a line something like this: "Between Ourselves," "Of Concern to You," "About Prices," Mrs. Consumer," etc. The booklet is rendered commonplace by covering the whole page with data or your imprint.

If your business is very small and the booklet out of the question, use a neat folder in preference to the circular. Long and narrow shapes are the prevailing styles.



In preparing copy for the printer time and expense will be saved by writing in ink, legibly, and on one side of paper not too large. Do not put too much wording on a page. If you have any designs of your own outline them in the copy. Rule work predominates, and aided by "white" space and nice balance, a pretty effect can be produced.

Of course the main thing, after all, is: Why are you getting out literature? Are you getting it out on time? Will it pay you to get it out?

To be able to cover such a field advantageously it is necessary to have a clear conception of the actual conditions—trade, situation, stock, class of customers, etc. If the prospective advertiser will write in the full particulars, I will try to be of service to him, practically, as is the intention of this department.

Kirk Bros., of Bracebridge, know the wisdom of advertising one thing at a time, and of giving it just the proper degree of prominence. The "get-up" of their advertisements as seen in their local paper displays considerable ability on the part of the ad-writer; a thorough grasp of the goods advertised; a convincing line of argument; a coherency of style—in short, the writing is, in the main, clear, forceful, appealing. No devices are employed. The advertisements, too, are free from competitive cavil. I think, however, that the tone of some of them might have been a little less adulatory. In one or two there is an excess of "we." This is a tendency easily overlooked by a writer, and quite prevalent in our day. It is a question whether this sort of advertising is a trade-bringer. The firm name is apt to become more prominent than the goods, which is never the purpose of advertising, at least business advertising. There are only two things really essential to successful advertising: Argument, backed up by good goods. The argument is necessary to compete with rivals; the good goods are necessary to retain what the argument produces. Where competition is small, of course, an advertisement need not be argumentative, as long as it is lucid, for its function then is that of an announcer, not a convincer. In such a case, as comparisons are few and far between, all the public have to be told is what the sale consists of and what the prices are.

Another point in connection with Kirk Bros.' advertisements where, I think, an improvement might be effected, is in the matter of wording. If there were less wording it would do away with the necessity of having to adopt lines of reasoning not sufficiently differentiated in order to attract attention and hold it. To this end I would suggest, also, the using of less newspaper space in the one-topic ad. Larger type could be used and the ad. read in a very short time. I would employ some catchy headings and work out the subject matter from the headings, always, of course, running in detail sufficient to guide the trend of the ad. to the conclusion "That ours are the goods." If the subject was seeds, headings something like these might be used: "That which a man sows," "Remember it's the seed, not the soil," "If you would reap," "You, the seeds and us." A permanent heading might also be adopted—"In Kirk Kompany," "Kirk Ways," etc. With lots of white space this should be effective.

An Exploded Idea

Grocers used to think Fish an undesirable line to carry in the Summer season, and for that matter there are some who still think so. But the idea is an exploded one. Since the introduction of fish has become a popular Summer diet and as long as people can get these brands, there is a trade for the grocer in them in summer as well as in any other season of the year. Being put up in packages they are a convenient article for the trade to handle, and being such good sellers, there is every inducement to handle them.

FRESH and CURED FISH

CRUDE FISH OIL WANTED.

The Agricultural Department of the State of Victoria has recommended the use of the lowest grade cod or other fish oils for smearing the backs of sheep to prevent them being struck by the maggot fly. This fly has only recently made its appearance in Australia, and wool growers are exceedingly anxious to adopt strong measures to prevent a re-occurrence of the heavy losses of sheep during the last lambing season. There should be a quantity of low-grade oil available at the fishing centres in the Maritime Provinces for which there is practically no demand. If Nova Scotian fish packers will communicate with the Canadian Commercial Agency, at Melbourne, Australia, giving an approximate estimate of the quantity available during the coming season (if possible sending samples) and the price f.o.b. New York or Liverpool, England, fuller particulars will be supplied.

AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY.

The Australian market has been, for some time past, in very short supply of canned oysters, for which there is a constant and increasing demand. Hitherto a well-known Baltimore brand has had almost a monopoly of the market; but through the difficulty in securing regular supplies, there now exists an excellent opportunity of introducing new brands. Cases should contain four dozen round tins, the weight to be 8 lbs. per dozen or 32 lbs. to the case. The Commonwealth customs duty works out at about 16 cents per dozen cans.

SALMON SCARCE IN ENGLAND.

A Montreal advice of recent date states that during the coming season canners are trying to introduce the half-size tin of sockeye, but it is just a question whether this small size will take to retail at 10c.for half-pound tin, consumers naturally preferring to pay that price for full-size pink salmon.

A market letter from London, Eng., reports a strong upward movement in one pound and half-pound flats, and prices have advanced quite 1s. 6d. per case. The scarcity of best salmon in all shapes in absolutely unprecedented, and it would not be surprising to see an absolute dearth of all best stock some weeks before the new could possibly arrive overland. One pound tall of best quality is at the present time a very good proposition. Grocers and consumers are beginning to resent paying a comparatively fancy price for Alaska relabeled with labels that they have hitherto considered to be used only for best goods. The result is that the demand is going more and more on to British Columbia tall salmon.

POOR FISHING SEASON.

The St. John, N.B., Telegraph says: "This has been the poorest season for fish so far that St. John has had for many years. Fishermen say the only thing which can improve conditions will be a heavy freshet, which is not likely to come now. Scarcely any gaspereaux are being caught, as these fish in the present low water go up to the middle of the river. The shad season is beginning now, but the probability is they will be very scarce. The market is very well supplied with halibut, cod and haddock, and a few salmon are coming in. Pickled herring are very scarce. It is expected that codfish will soon take a drop in price. The prices prevailing through the Winter, $4.85 to $5, were the highest known in years."

The Newfoundland Government has chartered the whaler Neptune and commissioned her as a temporary cruiser to enforce the provisions of the Foreign Fishing Vessels Act against American fishermen.

GROCER LONDON LETTER

Special Correspondence.

THE Canadian Grocer has always endeavored by every possible means to keep before the notice of the trade the desirability of closer commercial relationship between this country and the motherland, and if these London (England) letters, which will appear from time to time, prove of assistance to Canadian exporters in their efforts to secure a better knowledge of the requirements of the British markets, both pains and money will be well spent. Our London correspondent hopes, by keeping a strict look out, to be able to furnish a few useful hints and pointers from time to time, as well as the gossip of the trade in Great Britain.—Editor.

The first shipments of Canadian butter have not yet arrived, so it is impossible to say anything about the condition of consignments, but it is encouraging to find that several London houses, which hitherto have been content to buy upon arrival of shipments here, are now launching out for themselves and developing into importers. This would seem to denote a greater confidence in the uniform good quality of Canadian butter, for one firm said that the chief reason why they had formerly bought upon arrival of consignments in London was that they could then inspect the quality and condition of the butter, and thus run no risks. This good feeling must be fostered, and too much stress cannot be laid upon the importance of shipping good quality butter. It has been a bitter complaint for years amongst importers over here that the quality varied so much that it was impossible to ever be sure that a ready sale would be secured. In this respect there was a marked improvement last year, but there is room for further improvement. The Canadian shipper should not follow up a shipment of good stuff with another of inferior quality. He should establish a connection with British importers, endeavour to learn their tastes, and make a point of sticking to old buyers, so that he may know exactly what each individual concern wants. Perhaps the chief reason why Danish butter has such a command over British buyers is that the manufacturers have always endeavored to suit their customers, and have always kept the quality up. Of course it is true that Canadian butter has a long way to come, and cold storage does not improve the flavor, but without doubt better packing will go a long way towards securing larger sales.

Complaints about packing of Canadian cheese are not common, but there seems to be some difficulty with butter. Although the temperature of the steamer may have something to do with this evil, there can be no doubt that many Canadian shippers make use of an inferior grease-proof wrapper. Not one, nor two, but several London butter importers have made this remark to The Grocer representative. The reference was to salt butter in every case. Unsalted butter was found on the whole satisfactory last season. There is likely to be a good demand for salt and unsalted butter, although at time of writing (May 25) prices rule too high. There is room for plenty of fresh (by which is meant newly-made) butter, but this, it would appear, is detained in Montreal for speculation purposes. Large quantities of Australian butter have been received, and prices are right, so that until there is a fall in the price of Canadian stuff very little, or nothing, can be done with the latter. There is, however, a whisper about that quotations on French butter are going to rise, and it is said that the price will remain away up for some considerable time. If this is the case, there will be a chance for Canadian shippers.

"What we want just now is Canadian bacon," said a London importing house. This was A. C. Doughty & Co., 20 Eastcheap, London, who have good connections with Canada. Canadians can do a large business with Britain in bacon, particularly the cheaper meat, but in the higher-priced bacon the Danish exporter gets the bulk of the trade. His methods of curing are preferred on this market to the Canadian method, and it would be well worth while to Canadian exporters to learn a little more about the Danish method of curing.

A little cheese has been received, but not much. On the whole consignments received last season gave every satisfaction but there is no doubt that both the flavor and appearance of Canadian cheese undergo considerable change for the worst during transit. A little more may be said about this later on.

Before concluding, it must be mentioned that there are many London importing houses who are going to try to do business with Canadian produce exporters this season, who hitherto have been content to buy on arrival here. Give all inquiries from new importers special and careful attention, for the Englishman is not easily pleased, and, as one man said, there is other produce besides Canadian. But he is staunch to his business connections, provided they are satisfactory. There are many advertisements of good British produce importers in the Export Number of The Grocer, and Canadian shippers would do well to get into communication with some of them.

Criticisms and inquiries are welcome at The Grocer office.

MONEY IN SELLING CHEESE.

GROCERS complain from time to time that "there is no money in selling cheese," giving as their reason the fact that there is unavoidably so much waste in cutting that it eats up all the profits. The Standard Computing Cheese Cutter, recently placed on the market by the Walker Pivoted Bin and Store Fixture Co., has changed all this. It cuts any amount of cheese wanted at any price per pound, and computes the price of the piece cut at the same time. An additional advantage is that it protects both cut edges of the cheese from drying out, shrinking, or getting musty, and keeps off flies and dust. Grocers will make no mistake in communicating immediately with the Walker Pivoted Bin and Store Fixture Co., 510 Board of Trade Building, Toronto.

BUSINESS FOR CANADA.

H. Kayu, a wealthy Japanese merchant, of Tokio, and his interpreter, Wijina, are studying the dairy industry. Mr. Kayu will take back with him to Japan shortly a herd of 50 Ayrshire cattle, the first shipment of Canadian cattle to the flowery kingdom. Before the war Japan got her supplies from England, and since the war began cattle have been shipped from the United States. He stated his belief that Canada would soon be doing a big business with Japan in this line.

REPORT ON CATTLE EMBARGO.

The Federal Committee on Agriculture will shortly bring in a report on the question of the embargo on Canadian cattle, which will contain a number of recommendations. The committee will probably point out that as there is no pleuro-pneumonia among Canadian herds the embargo ought to be removed. In the next place the committee may suggest that the period within which cattle have to be slaughtered after landing should be extended from ten to thirty days. Addition of other landing places to those now permitted may also be recommended.

"THE FAIRBANK PLAN"

LOOK INTO IT

and see just what "The Fairbank Plan" is. While we spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year advertising the six great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

and educating the public regarding them; and while we intend to continue doing this, we realize fully that advertising alone has not accomplished the splendid results we have enjoyed in the sale of these goods, but that "the man behind the counter" has been an important factor in extending and increasing our trade. It was the realization of this fact that gave birth to "The Fairbank Plan," as a method of rewarding the retail clerks for their earnest co-operation in selling these goods and, consequently, a portion of our immense advertising appropriation is now set aside for the recognition of the dealer and his clerks.

"The Fairbank Plan" is an absolutely fair method of rewarding the clerk in direct proportion to the interest displayed in pushing the six specialties, as each package of these goods is couponed in such a manner that the coupon can be easily removed before the goods pass into the hands of the consumer. For these coupons we offer many valuable articles.

If you will send for an illustrated premium list of "The Fairbank Plan" it will convince you that this is no cheap trading-stamp scheme.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Provisions.—The cool weather has interfered considerably with the sale of cured meats, which otherwise would be very brisk at this season of the year. A fair demand, however, is noted in almost all varieties of smoked meats, the price of backs being up 1-2c.; a slightly lower range of quotations is noted in lard in tierces and tubs. During the week arrivals of farmers' supplies have been free, although hogs have only been coming fairly liberally. The price of live hogs ranges from $6.40 to $6.50 f.o.b. at outside points, and from $6.75 to $6.80 delivered in Toronto. Live hogs are quoted from $8.50 to $9, and indications point to higher prices. We quote the following:

Butter—There is plenty of butter arriving on the local market at the present time, with supplies in tubs coming more freely as the warm weather approaches. Owing to the consuming public requiring grass tub butter the price ranges even higher than for large dairy rolls. Dairy prints are down from 1 to 2c., and large rolls are slightly easier than a week ago. We quote:

Cheese—A good demand is noted in new cheese, and the price of large cheese is down 1-2c. this week. The quotation for export markets ranges about 45s., although very little business is doing as yet. Our quotations are as follows:

Provisions—Provision market is easier. Live hogs are arriving more freely, and were sold at $6.80 to $7.25 on foot, off cars. Dressed hogs are selling at $9.50 and going fairly freely. Hams 8 to 12 lbs. at 14c., 12 to 18 lbs. at 13 1-2c., and 18 to 25 lbs. at 13c. Breakfast bacon 13c., Windsor backs at 14c. Lard is a little easier. Eggs—Eggs are arriving in such quantities that prices are kept up high. Following all precedents of past years, the prices should be much lower than they are, and dealers are puzzled to account for this state of affairs. The cool weather prevailing during the past few weeks has had considerable to do with the holding up of prices, but when the weather man deals out a spell of warm weather supplies should be available in larger quantities. In a wholesale way straight-gathered stock is held at 16 to 16 1-2c., single cases 17c.

Butter—Butter market keeps up firm tone, and prices show no tendency to weaken. Supplies are coming in somewhat better, but the local demand seems to be able to cope with it. Export orders are slow of coming, and there appears to be a disposition on part of the English buyer to hold off at the high prices ruling.

Cheese—Market quiet. Shipments during the week have been fair, though not as heavy as last week. Export orders are commencing to assume larger proportions, but there does not appear to be much in it for dealers in the way of profit. Stocks abroad are getting down in compass, and shortly it would appear that more exporting trade will result. Local prices: Quebecs 9 1-8 to 9 1-4c. and Ontarios 9 3-8 to 9 1-2c.

Hams and Bacon—The demand is good, but there is a scarcity of both. Hams have advanced one-half cent per pound, being quoted at 13 1-2 to 14 cents.

ST. JOHN.

Provisions—Pork sells very slowly, and prices show little change. In beef, sale is also light. Canadian packers are selling more goods. Both the quality of the goods and of the package show improvement. Pure lard is very firm at full figures. Refined lard is still low and has a good sale. Smoked meats are very firm at full figures. On fresh meats full figures also rule. Little western beef is being received, not only is the price too high, but some particularly nice domestic is offered. Mutton has a fair demand. Veal is rather higher than usual at this season. Lamb, while a little lower, is still high. Pork holds firm.

PURE FOOD LAW.

THE Inland Revenue Department at Ottawa is showing commendable zeal and some energy in prosecuting infringements of the Pure Food Act. Hon. Mr. Brodeur, since his appointment as Minister of Inland Revenue, is deserving of commendation for the manner in which he has taken hold of the responsible duties of his office. His assistants and inspectors, we regret to state, appreciate only in a measure their responsibilities, and in many instances "do those things they should not have done" and in others "leave undone those which they should have done." The Grocer's attention has been called to remissness in duty of inspectors and superficiality in their work, and documents are in our possession which reflect in anything but a creditable manner upon the inspection of certain officials of the department. In the case referred to, where a serious injury was done the manufacturer, it is to the credit of the Department that the error was acknowledged and rectified as far as possible, though not before a certain amount of damage was done the manufacturer.

The passing of the Pure Food Act was one of the best moves made by the Government towards protecting the merchant and the consumer, principally the latter, in securing healthy and pure food, and it goes without saying that an improvement is apparent already in certain lines of food products made in Canada. The manufacturers themselves evince a desire to live up to the requirements of the Pure Food Law; retailers are getting more critical in their purchases and insist upon getting pure goods when they buy them as such, and salesmen are more particular in handing out guarantees of purity. All this is deserving of credit and on lines The Grocer has advocated for years in its columns, and is still strongly advocating. But there is a feature of trade conditions prevalent in the large cities such as Montreal, Toronto, Halifax, and other distributing and buying centres, that is entirely overlooked by the Inland Revenue Department, and we call the Hon. Mr. Brodeur's attention to the cases. We refer to the sale by public auction of food products that have been damaged through water, fire or other action of the elements. It is not more than a few months, more correctly weeks, ago that the Allan line steamship Parisian was run into in Halifax Harbor and partially sunk at her docks. Amongst the salvage was a large consignment of shelled walnuts and other eatables. These were brought to Montreal and sold by public auction at prices ranging from 3½ to 4½c. per pound. And who bought these damaged goods and where did they find an outlet to the consumer? We are informed that certain candy and biscuit manufacturers were the principal buyers. Were these nuts inspected before being allowed to be used for manufacturing purposes, and were they found fit for consumption? We doubt it. If fit for consumption why were they sold at 3½ to 4½c., when the import market price was nearer 17 to 18c.?

Who guaranteed, or could guarantee that these goods, which had undoubtedly been soaked with bilge water, or possibly been contaminated by other more injurious goods and possibly even deadly chemicals loaded in the hold of the vessel, were fit to be offered for sale to go into consumption? It is easy to picture the frightful possibilities of contamination in the hold of a submerged vessel, loaded with all kinds of goods, possibly chemicals and other lines affected by chemical action through contact with water. If the damaged goods went into confectionery and biscuits, it is natural to assume that the most of the stuff went into the mouths of innocent children, thus striking at the very tenderest of the public and the least likely to be on its guard.

Another feature, and the commercial one, though the lesser, should be considered before goods damaged by fire or water should be allowed to be sold. What about those merchants carrying healthy and salable walnuts (as in the case referred to) in stock? It means that these damaged goods come into direct competition with and kill the sale of legitimate products.

The main point, however, we desire to bring out and one that the Inland Revenue Department officials should see to, is that no food product intended for consumption should be allowed to be sold either by public auction or private sale. All such suspected and damaged goods should be immediately seized and destroyed. Undoubtedly the goods were insured, and if so, the loss should fall upon the insurance companies who get fully well paid for the risk. We call the attention of the Hon. L. P. Brodeur to this phase of the Pure Food Act, and in the interest of the trade as well as the more vital interest of the consumer, we ask for an investigation into cases of goods damaged in the manner referred to in this article, as well as analagous cases. If there is no provision in the Act covering cases of this sort no time should be lost in incorporating strong clauses and enforcing the letter of the Act. By doing this the interest of the public is served, and an evil done away with that is all too dangerous to the public and too prevalent in the trade.

THE NEW EDUCATION

THE last half century has seen a remarkable development of nearly all the arts of agriculture, commerce and manufactures, and it would he strange indeed if some corresponding change did not appear in the schemes of education that are to fit our young men and young women for the new order of things.

Formerly, students who wished to acquire the elements of a liberal education were required to spend their time on Latin and Greek, with some algebra and geometry, and, perhaps, a foreign language, such as French or, later, German. Years were spent in the study of works of ancient writers who would have been most of all astonished had they known to what uses their works were to he put. The unhappy schoolboy had his mind crammed with declensions and conjugations and few there were who ever rose heyond this to a grasp of the Latin or Greek tongue sufficient to enable them to read with pleasure or profit the works of classic authors. This was the case for hundreds of years in England. He was a hold man who first drew public attention to the fact that boys and girls had not only memories, that they had human bodies which they might learn how to care for, that their own country had a history and a literature as honorahle and as interesting as those of Greece or Rome. Moreover, it appeared that ninety per cent. of students were not going to be gentlemen of leisure or professional men, hut were going to earn their livings in commerce or mechanic arts. Could not some scheme of education be arranged that would meet their wants?

The answer has come in many ways. Little by little dead languages have given way to living tongues, chemistry and physics have found their way into the curriculum and more and more attention has been paid to the art of writing and speaking fluently our own language. Greek has been dropped from the course of study in most of our high schools and Latin seems to be following it.

No better evidence of the growth of the new ideas can be offered than the remarkable popularity of technical and commercial schools. The growth of the movement in Toronto is an illustration. A beginning was made about twelve years ago when the Trades and Labor Council persuaded the city fathers to give a grant of $3,000 to assist in the establishment of night schools where apprentices and artisans might study mathematics, architectural drawing, machine drawing, chemistry, etc. At first about 200 students gathered together in old Wycliffe Hall on College street.

As year by year the work expanded new courses were added and the attendance grew very rapidly. In twelve years the number of students had increased tenfold. A larger building and a larger staff became necessary, and the Technical School Board got from the city the use of the large building on College street, formerly the home of the Toronto Athletic Club. In 1901 a day school was started with an attendance of about fifty. To-day the average attendance of the day classes is over five hundred and the night students number about one thousand. About a year ago the Public School Board, Collegiate Institute Board and Technical School Board were amalgamated as the Board of Education for Toronto, and the Technical school was reorganized as a fourth collegiate institute for special purposes under the name of the Technical High School.

The students of the day school are of the same standing as those who attend the collegiate institutes. They must have passed the Entrance examination. They have the same hours as in the collegiate institutes, and the teachers are legally qualified specialists in their departments. A full commercial course is given. There are departments of domestic science and art, architectural and machine drawing, applied mathematics, physics and chemistry, and English literature and composition, history and commercial grography are required with every course, and there are large classes in commercial French. The idea throughout is to make the student as efficient as possible in every way, and to use for this purpose those arts and sciences which will he directly useful to him in after life. A good heginning has been made and its success is vouched for by the large attendance. In the day school alone the attendance is half as large again as that of any collegiate institute in the city and the night students are twice as numerous as the day students.

But much remains to be done. Practical technical education is bound to be expensive. Apparatus and supplies must he furnished. Business offices are required and shops for illustrative work in mechanics. It is certain that the citizens will respond to the needs of a department of education which ministers specially to the needs of those who intend to enter commerce or to pursue mechanic arts, for these number at least ninety per cent. of the people in Toronto to-day.

A DRAWBACK.

A FIRM of Canadian manufacturers of a line of goods which experience considerable competition from the United States recently opened up a branch office in London, England, and appointed a United States man as their representative. This man has considerable interests in the competing United States industry, and does not confine his attention to the Canadian agency, so that the latter is not pushed as it ought to be. It is to his advantage and the advantage of his country to keep the Canadian agency more or less in the background, and to give the preference to the United States goods. Doubtless he sends some business to his Canadian people, but the bulk of the orders go to the United States concern.

This is not an exceptional case. It is done in a number of cases in all the markets where Canadian goods compete with the United States. Citizens of the latter country are to be found who take up the Canadian agencies more with the idea of keeping the markets open for the United States products than with the intention of pushing Canadian industries. Wherever they can offer United States goods they do so, but if these are not available they fall back on their Canadian agencies.

When appointing agents abroad, Canadian firms should see to it that they get the full benefits of their representatives' labors, and that their agents do not carry other lines which might compete or prevent the best results being obtained.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

THERE is little doing in many quarters, and the shippers are in no shape to confess great prosperity. Grain is not going forward as rapidly as formerly, and the reports from the dairy produce section shows that there has not been as large a quantity moved as was expected. Large quantities of grain are now booked from the business is developing strongly. On May 23 a very large cargo was shipped from Montreal to South Africa by the Wyandotte. There were three distinct destinations noted on the manifest, namely, Durban, Cape Town and Algoa Bay. It was notable that to Durban Arkell & Douglass and Peabody & Co., both American shippers, held a fair portion of the cargo.

The Ogilvie Milling Co. shipped 4,000 bags of flour direct to Durban, and the Lake of the Woods 1,000 bags. A. F. MacLaren's cheese was shipped in great quantities, also Armour & Co. and Swift & Co.'s meats. The Sylvester Manufacturing Co., of Lindsay, had a shipment of 34 packages of agricultural implements. The Pedlar People had some very substantial shipments, too, of their fine lathing. The Imperial Export Co. had some wall paper and desks and leather. The Cockshutt Plow Co., of Brantford, shipped 144 packages of agricultural implements, and it was noticeable that to every port the Sylvester Co. had some implements shipped. The Goold Shapley Co. had seven packages of windmills, and Strong & Trowbridge eight cases of blocks and skewers. Altogether the shipments from Canada to South Africa were not as encouraging from a purely Canadian point of view as they might have been.

Chicago to Buffalo at three and three-quarters cents.

From Fort William to Montreal rates on wheat are quoted at 5 3-4 cents. The latest reports show that grain is being booked at 4 3-4 cents from Chicago to Montreal, and this is owing to the unusual demand which has set in. The price will no doubt remain at the present figure for a week at any rate.

Hay exports have been very good, and

The lake trade is very active, and business is growing into Summer proportions.

BRANTFORD PREPARED CORN STARCH is no commonplace staple. Unique methods of manufacture and a fine discrimination in selecting the right kind of corn, have produced a better grade of corn starch than the trade has ever known before.

Based on merit and backed by heavy advertising, the inevitable result has been a DEMAND, and progressive dealers should be prepared to supply it.

The dainty food prepared from Brantford Starch brings the customer back again many times. The common-sense recipes on the packages delight the cook.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

GROCERIES.

Montreal, June 8, 1905.

TRADE during the week has not shown any great improvement, and while jobbers generally do not complain they are prepared to do a larger business, and look for a change for the better. The weather conditions have not been of the best, and the backward season is making itself felt in commercial circles. In conversation with a prominent merchant, who makes regular visits to Quebec and the eastern part of the province, it was learned that dullness also seemed to prevail in the east. Lumbering operations in the Quebec districts have this year been restricted, and not nearly so many men sent into the woods during the Winter, the consequence being that much less money was put into circulation, with a consequently restricted buying capacity. The situation of the sugar market is looked upon as bearing too much of a speculative character, and instead of prices advancing, declines have been made during the past five or six weeks. A further drop of 10c. was made by the refiners on Monday. These drops have had the effect of keeping country merchants, as well as the jobbing trade, from purchasing in any quantity. The arrival of early fruits will necessitate somewhat heavier buying, and with anything like a good crop, conditions will improve. New Japan teas are looked for shortly; samples to hand show splendid value. Yokohama market advanced 1c. per lb. since last week. India tea market opened this week at lower prices than last year, though, owing to poor and cold weather conditions, the quality is in doubt. Molasses and syrups are unchanged. Canned goods business only fair, and in some lines easing off, particularly fruits. No new salmon quotations have as yet been given to the trade, and though many good orders have been placed, these were principally for established brands. Lower prices are looked for by the trade as the B.C. salmon run is expected to be a large one. Fresh fish are coming in well, and owing to the cool weather are showing good business to fish dealers. The provision market is easier. Receipts are heavy and buyers getting all the supplies they want. Butter and eggs continue firm, in spite of all precedent. The demand is stronger than the supply. Cheese, principally for export, is getting more attention, and though no heavy business is done, it is expected that the English market will shortly be obliged to buy freely, as stocks there are thinning out fast. Flour and feed unchanged, and little of interest to note. Evaporated and dried apples are practically dead on account of the arrival of fresh new small fruits and vegetables. New potatoes are on sale among the fruit and vegetable importers. The market seems to be loaded with Jamaica pineapples, and prices are easing off on same.

Sugar—The refiners made a reduction of 10c. per 100 lbs. on hard sugars on Monday. This was no doubt due to the weak position of the beet and raw foreign markets. On Tuesday beets recovered fully 9d, and a better tone was apparent. The uncertain condition of the market is having a bad effect on the trade, as no large orders are being received by the jobbers. In view of the fact, however, that the small fruit crop will shortly require attention, buying cannot be put off very much longer. Usually at this season of the year prices are higher and market firmer. It is hard to get any one interested to give any opinion as to how long the present unsettled condition will last. In the meantime buying is of a hand-to-mouth character.

Tea—Business locally, while not extremely active, shows a tendency to bettering itself. New season's Japans are expected shortly, advance musters of which have been in the hands of the trade for some days. The Grocer was shown a sample of first pickings Japans by a prominent importer, which for style, bouquet and cup quality certainly augurs well for its selling powers. Cables from Calcutta received on Monday advise opening of the Indian market, and quotations are very reasonable. Owing to the cold weather prevailing in the Indian tea districts, the quality of the crop is somewhat doubtful. Prices open lower than last year. Ceylon greens continue firm, with supplies small on the London market. China greens and blacks are unchanged, and little inquiry is noted.

Coffee—Coffee stocks show large decrease, with a fair demand in all lines. Prices are firm locally, and in New York last week's easiness has vanished owing to shortage, and prices will probably go higher shortly. Watt, Scott & Goodacre report quiet New York market, "with demand for actual coffees of a hand to mouth character, owing to lack of faith in present prices. The facts of the case remain unchanged. Statistics posted in New York show a decrease in the visible for April-May of a million and a quarter bags. Bulls are confident of higher prices on a basis of decreasing stocks, and the fact that production will be below consumption, plus boom on expected U.S. tariff changes. Bears do not deny natural strength of the situation, but claim that prices fully discount this condition. We hear of no Canadian orders placed abroad for coffees this week. In Brazil, part of the new crop is already marketed, but in limited quantities."

Spices—Dealers report a good demand for peppers, and prices are expected to harden shortly. Ginger and cloves are also in fair demand. New York advises that harder prices are expected in peppers and that great shortages will be met with in new crop. Local prices are not affected by this bad condition of foreign trade, and are firm and unchanged as yet.

Canned Goods—There are no special features noted. Business generally is good, though the arrival of new fruits, berries, etc., has checked the consumption of canned fruits. Vegetables are also affected by new crop arriving. Canned salmon in fair demand. None of the B.C. packers representatives have quoted any definite figures for new pack, though this year lower prices are looked for on account of the expected big run of fish.

Fish—Dealers report a brisk demand for fresh fish of all kinds. Gaspe salmon is beginning to arrive in small quantities, but in the finest condition, which is the case for all new fish as well, owing to cool weather. There is not much doing in salt fish. Skinless cod is at present on the market, and meets with a steady sale at firm price—$5.50 for 100-lbs. cases. Smoked fish is also in fair demand. Large quantities of fish are consumed, and business is in a fine condition. We quote:

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, June 8, 1905.

TRADE conditions this week continue very much as recorded a week ago. A fair assortment of orders is reported by the wholesalers without any particular outstanding feature. The drop of 10c. in sugar on Monday came as a surprise to most of the trade, who are beginning to look upon the market as having reached a stable basis. Since the drop there has been an advance of 8c in beets in Europe, and a considerable advance in canes, while New York refiners have shown no desire to drop prices. The local demand for sugar will improve as soon as the canning season gets under way.

In canned goods, the principal item of interest is the arrival of new pack lobsters and kippered herring on the market. Brokers are also in receipt of new season Rio coffee direct from Brazil. A sharp advance in Valencia raisins is recorded, equivalent to ¾c. from the lowest point this season. Some interesting information in regard to new crop Persian dates will be found under the head of dried fruits. The Manitoba grain market is in an excited state owing to the effort on the part of certain interests to corner the market.

Canned Goods—Indications point to short supplies of Canadian tomatoes before the 1905 pack arrives on the market; weekly shipments of American goods are now helping to supply the trade. During the week several houses have received consignments of 1905 pack lobsters and new kippered herrings in tomato sauce. New pack lobsters, 1 lb. flats, are selling 10c. higher than a year ago. No change, however, is recorded in kippered herring; $4 is the lowest price quoted on haddies, and there are some brands selling as high as $4.50. A fair demand for sockeye salmon is noted and canned meats are moving freely in anticipation of Summer trade. One prominent meat packer remarked during the week that his sales of canned and prepared meats during the month of May, 1905, were fully 150 per cent. in excess of sales for the corresponding month a year ago. There is nothing new to report on opening prices for canned salmon. The lots that were quoted at $4.50 a week ago were small, and in any event could not influence the market materially.

Sugar—The refined sugar market is in a very uncertain state, following the unexpected decline of 10c. early this week. The reason of the decline is difficult to discover, especially when it is remembered that the price of cane sugar shows a substantial advance, that beets have gone up 8d in Europe, and that the New York refined market continues unchanged. The season of Summer consumption can scarcely be said to have started as yet. When this does take place an improvement in the local situation is inevitable. We quote the following prices:

Coffee—The coffee market continues practically unchanged from last week. Several firms have been busy supplying steamship and navigation companies with Summer supplies, but with this exception trade has been quiet, and is expected to continue so from now on until the Fall, when the buying season begins again in earnest. An unusual occurrence on a local market this week was the receipt of samples of new season crop Rio coffee direct from Brazil. We quote:

Teas—A steady trade in all staple varieties of teas is reported this week at unchanged quotations. There is a rumor on the street hailing from Montreal that there has been an advance in Japan tea of 1c. in Yokohama. The report is neither confirmed nor denied.

Latest figures of exports from all India during the past season show considerable expansion in foreign markets. The six million increase in the total output was placed entirely outside the United Kingdom, America taking some 33 per cent. more than last year, Turkey and Persia 50 per cent., and other countries about 8 per cent. Trade with Russia has been stationary, but this has been counterbalanced to a great extent by a welcome improvement in the shipments to Germany, which nearly doubled the quantity sent during 1903-04.

Foreign Dried Fruits—During the week there has been a sharp advance in Valencia raisins equivalent to about ¾c. from the lowest point of the season. In answer to an inquiry as to the reason for the active demand for Valencia raisins on the local market during the last fortnight, we may say that it is the result of several recent shipments which arrived in Toronto and sold at prices favorable to buyers. The scarcity of large and small sized prunes continues, 30-40's being scarce on the spot. Elemes figs are about off the market.

Messrs. Landauer & Co. are quoting new Persian date to their agents, Watt & Scott, at prices on about the same basis as opening prices last year, which buyers will remember were the lowest that prevailed during the whole season. These steadily advanced, and the highest prices realized for dates, both on the spot and from London, were for the last goods sold. This review of last season's prices, perhaps, requires some explanation, in view of the fact that dates arriving on the first direct steamer are always sold at higher prices than on the second steamer to New York. The reason for this is because it is impossible to get dates from Bussorah by any other route to arrive until some weeks after the first New York boat. On this account the latter has the early market to itself, and naturally takes advantage of the circumstances to sell dates at higher prices. Dates, however, have been selling freely during the whole season. A considerable quantity was imported this year from London after the holiday trade was over, and it is likely that a still greater quantity will be sold during the coming season, as arrangements have been made for through shipments from Bussorah to Canada, which will, it is hoped, materially reduce the laid down duty paid cost. Certain houses are paying a top-notch price in the country, and the result is prices are from 1 to 1 1-2c. higher this week than they were during the corresponding week a year ago. There is a considerable diversity of opinion as to what should be the proper range of prices. Some dealers quote as low as 15 1-2c., others name 16 1-2c. as the highest quotation. N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., June 5, 1905.

THERE is no very marked change in the grocery trade. Business shows but little improvement. A fairly good jobbing trade is being done, and the general tendency of the market seems to be slightly stronger in some particulars. Prices, however, rule about the same as last week. Collections from some sections are a little more satisfactory. The beef, pork and sugar markets are still very firm, and molasses has advanced one-half cent at Barbadoes, due to the unusual demand.

Fish—Scale fish of all descriptions are in pretty liberal supply, and prices are a little easier. The last sales of new bank cod here were at $6.00. The price for Spring-made Nova Scotian fish is from $5.50 to $6, according to quality. Haddock is quoted at $4.75; pollock at $4, and hake at $3.50 and $3.75. The indications are that high prices, especially for cod, will prevail for some months, or until some reliable calculations can be made regarding the operations of the fishermen. This is due principally to the very light supply of old fish in the hands of the exporters, and the fact that early landings from the Lunenburg banking fleet have all been sold and delivered. The high prices which have prevailed during the past year for cod have induced many fishermen to give up other branches of the pursuit and devote all their energy to the cod fishery. The herring market is about cleaned up of last year's stock. Several small cargos of fresh herring were imported from Newfoundland during the week, and the fishermen on the Cape Breton coast secured several fine hauls of fish of excellent quality. Herring have also appeared off Canso, and the Scotch steam trawler "33" at one setting of the nets secured fifty barrels. The export markets are reported to be in fair condition.

Butter and Cheese—The butter market is becoming easier and the receipts are increasing. The demand here is good, but the quality and supply are only fair. Creamery prints are still quoted at 24 cents, but dairy butter and rolls of fair quality have eased down to 20 cents. Stocks of cheese held here are very small. The price quoted for new cheese is 11 1-2 cents. The demand is fair.

Eggs—The market continues firm. The receipts during the week were only fair. Montreal dealers are still buying largely in Prince Edward Island, and this has a tendency to keep the price. Island stock are worth 15 to 15 1-2 cents, and Nova Scotia 16 to 16 1-2 cents.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

J. M. Douglas & Co., Montreal, manufacturers of Blueol, call the attention of buyers to their system of valuable premiums for merchants, and will be pleased to answer any inquiries re same.

An announcement of importance is the first car Florida watermelons for the season to White & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The "Salada" Tea Co., Toronto, report that they shipped out more "Salada" tea during the one week ending May 27 than their entire output in the year 1894, which was the third year they were in business. Their green tea trade alone for that week was more business than they did during the entire first year they had "Salada" green tea on the market.

Buyers of Fard dates may procure same from H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, are selling pure maple sugar at an interesting price.

Alexander MacLean, Canadian agent in Japan, reports that Canadian exports in 1904 to that country show an increase of seventy per cent. over those of the previous year.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Members of the trade in Toronto were glad to meet Mr. David Greig, of D. McDougall & Co., Glasgow, this week. Mr. Greig is paying his annual visit to the Canadian grocery trade.

"That Grocer of yours has a wonderful circulation," remarked Mr. Cowan. "It beats any other paper I know. I see it in practically every store the whole way out to the coast."

Mr. D. McL. Brophy, who represents John Taylor & Co., Toronto, with offices at 449 St. Paul street, Montreal, has just returned from a trip to Quebec, and reports very satisfactory business.

Mr. Sam'l J. Mathewson, of Mathewson Bros., wholesale grocers, Montreal, has left with his family for his Summer residence at Little Metis, and during the next four or five weeks will enjoy the healthful breezes of the eastern St. Lawrence.

Mr. A. J. Williams, Canadian representative of Messrs. Crosfield, Lampard, Clark & Co., London and Colombo, has returned from a week's fishing at St. Gabriel, P.Q. Mr. Alex. L. Lockerby, of Lockerby Bros., also enjoyed a week's outing at Lac Racquette Club fishing preserves at St. Gabriel. Both gentlemen report good results.

A caller at the Toronto office of The Canadian Grocer last week was Mr. Chas. Corby, general manager of the Pacific Selling Co., of New York. Mr. Corby, who until recently had charge of the Pacific Coast end of the company's business, is a Canadian, and Upper Canada College boy, and a brother of Mr. Harry Corby, of Belleville. Mr. Corby, in addition to calling upon trade in Toronto, had the pleasure of meeting a large number of old friends.

Mr. W. Field, for the past sixteen years associated with James Turner & Co., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, has severed his connection with that house to go into business with Mr. A. R. McFarlane, broker. On Thursday of last week a number of his personal friends gathered at the offices of James Turner & Co., and made him a presentation of a valuable gold watch, suitably inscribed, and accompanied by their best wishes for his success in his new venture.

Mr. George Dalidet, of George Dalidet & Cie., Bordeaux, France, packers and exporters of fancy canned goods, alimentary pastes, etc., was a visitor to the Toronto wholesale grocery trade during the past week. He was introduced "on the street" by Mr. R. U. Delapenda, New York representative of George Dalidet & Cie., and Mr. W. T. Merrick, Toronto representative of Rose & Laflamme, Montreal. They paid a flying visit to Hamilton, and report a number of "nice" orders.

Mr. L. E. Morin, of Montreal, is dead. In 1872 he was a delegate to the Dominion Board of Trade to represent the Board of Trade of Montreal. In 1873 he was appointed Government agent for the purchase of rails for the Canadian Pacific. In that year he was also appointed inspector for fish and oils in the district of Montreal. In 1884 he was elected president of St. Jean Baptiste Society, and next year became quite well known through the publication of a series of articles on the Canadian fisheries. The following year he became mayor of Longueuil.

Mr. H. N. Cowan, of the Cowan Co., Limited, Toronto, called at the Winnipeg office of The Grocer last week. Mr. Cowan travels the territory as far west as the coast, but has been spending some three weeks or more in Winnipeg. "This city is growing so fast," he remarked, "that it takes longer every time to cover the trade." Mr. Cowan has arranged for demonstrations of Cowan's chocolate in Winnipeg grocery stores to commence about July 20, at the opening of the Exhibition. They will be in charge of Mrs. Lloyd, an expert demonstrator, and will be continued for two or three months and, perhaps, will also be conducted in Portage la Prairie, Brandon and other towns.

FRUIT GROWER IN TORONTO.

An interesting visitor to Toronto this week is Mr. John P. Sperco, of Pascal, Sperco Fils & Cie., Smyrna, Turkey, packers and exporters of figs and Sultana raisins. Mr. Sperco, who was introduced to the trade by Mr. W. H. Millman, is enjoying his first trip to Canada. He will make a number of side trips to Western Ontario points, returning to New York on Monday, June 12.

In conversation with The Grocer, Mr. Sperco remarked that his firm were shipping fruit direct on a large scale this season. Previously a considerable proportion of their trade consisted in packing for other houses to export. Latest cables from Smyrna indicate "weather not very normal for growing fruit crops." Mr. Sperco's headquarters while in Toronto are the King Edward Hotel.

GROCERS' PICNIC.

The Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association will hold its annual picnic this year on July 19 at Queen Victoria Park, Niagara Falls. Excursionists will go by G.T.R., and will be accompanied by the 91st Highlanders' Band. The Hamilton travelers intend to put on an attractive list of games and arrangements are being completed for a grand concert on the American side in the evening. The Brantford Association will join in the picnic again this year.

ADDED ANOTHER BRANCH.

Guillet Bros., Cobourg, Ont., have secured the coal oil business of that town recently by special arrangement with the refiners. Guillet Bros. have been so long and systematically established in Cobourg that this new departure will undoubtedly be handled to the satisfaction of their customers.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' ACT.

THE following letter from the Canadian representative of a prominent English manufacturing firm, who has met with gratifying success in placing their goods on the Canadian market during the past year, represents an interesting phase of the new Act in Quebec respecting foreign commercial travelers: Editor Canadian Grocer—

What can be the real cause of the fever which seems to be spreading in this country of placing impossible taxes upon the shoulders of representatives of foreign manufacturers? Is Canada getting scared of the traveling sons from the Mother Country, who are already overburdened by heavy duty, that she should stoop to grip him by the leg by the imposition of such an exorbitant tax? This country is begging for men to come in and develop her land. Why then should she attempt to stifle commerce?

Does not the duty which foreign houses have to pay on the goods their representatives sell contribute to the expenses of the country? If all the provinces take up the same position I fear to estimate what it would cost the poor representative who travels from coast to coast each year.

Is this country becoming afraid of fair competition? Again I ask, is Canada getting scared?

AMONG THE BOARDS OF TRADE.

The Port Hope Board of Trade has appointed a special committee to inquire into the question of discrimination in the price of sugar. Their contention is that the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild decides what the freight rate (or price for sugar with rate added) shall be to every village, town and city regardless of Summer or Winter freight charges by railway, etc., and without considering the location of the place as to distance. Next week's issue of The Grocer will contain a detailed statement of this phase of the sugar situation.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., June 5, 1905.

THE special Spring number of The Grocer is to hand. The most favorable comments are made in regard to its general appearance. Particularly is the enterprise of the publishers in reference to the bringing together of the West India and Canadian interests a subject of commendation. It is felt, particularly by those who have visited the West Indies, that our manufacturers have failed to appreciate this market, which our American friends find so profitable. The manufacturers are especially criticized in that they do so little to meet the wishes of this trade in the matter of style of packages and other things which in themselves are small matters, but apparently of great importance in the securing of this business. Two of our merchants are leaving this week to join the manufacturers' excursion to England—Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, packer of Red Rose Tea, and Mr. R. B. Emerson, of Emerson & Fisher, Limited. In markets there is little of interest. There is improved feeling generally. Prices in many cases ruling firmer, and a fair volume of business doing.

Oil.—In burning oil there is steady business at low prices, but this is the quiet season. Lubricating oils have had a large sale; the dealers are rather pleasantly surprised. There was some little anxiety earlier in the season. In paint oil Spring business was good. Linseed was still quoted low.

Salt.—Importers of Liverpool coarse salt are very favorably placed at present, owing to special direct steamers from Liverpool and Manchester. Prices are held quite firm. There is a good demand. In fine salt, Canadian is being freely sold. At this season there is a large demand for dairy and cheese salt in barrels. Shipments come to hand slowly.

Canned Goods—Corn is scarce. Prices are no higher, however, as American is being imported. Tomatoes tend higher. The grade of American which is being imported has been advanced by some packers. Peas and beans are selling freely. Prices are unchanged. Fruits are plentiful. Salmon has a fair demand. Lobsters are very high. Meats which now sell freely are unchanged in price. In domestic fish, haddies will be a light pack. It is early to speak about kippers, but the outlook is poor. Sardines are likely to be plentiful.

Dried Fruit.—There is but little business. Prices are in several lines firmer, but in the local market few changes have been made. Seeded raisins are low. Other lines of raisins very light stocks. Currants are low. New prunes are quoted. Prices are higher than last year. New peels for Fall shipment are freely offered. There is a wide range in price. Figures are, however, higher than last year. Dates are firm. Figs are very dull. Evaporated apples are unchanged, just a fair sale. In both Bermuda and Egyptian onions demand is but fair. Prices are low. Quality not up to the usual standard.

Sugar.—Dealers have large stocks. The situation seems changed for the better. While there has been no gain here in price, market is considered much firmer. This is the season of increased demand.

Molasses—The situation is still one of interest. Three more cargos of Porto Rico are about due. In this line prices are perhaps easier, chiefly due to local competition. Barbadoes, which is not a large stock, quite firm.

Fish.—There has been a fair catch of gaspereaux the last two weeks, but taken as a whole the catch has been small. Shad have also been scarce. It is still early for salmon. The outlook is but fair. Dry fish are still high, and it looks like continued high prices. Pickled fish are a very light stock. Full prices are asked. Smoked herring are low.

Flour, Feed and Oats.—While flour is unchanged at the lower prices quoted, the market is considered quite firm. Feed is held at full prices. Oats are high. The large stock of oatmeal held, bought well below present prices, tends to lower prices than the present situation warrants. Cornmeal is unchanged. Barley and peas are high. Beans dull and show some range in price. Sale for seeds about over.

ANOTHER AGENCY.

C. E. Kyle, grocery broker and manufacturers' agent, 27 Front street east, Toronto, has been appointed agent for the Pacific Selling Co., in the following cities and towns: Toronto, Owen Sound, Windsor, Collingwood, Stratford, Belleville, Napanee, Peterboro, Guelph, Berlin, Sarnia, North Bay and Lindsay. Mr. Kyle will be pleased to give prompt attention to all inquiries for "Clover Leaf" and "Arrow" brands of sockeye salmon.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, June 8th, 1905.

ACTIVITY still marks the wholesale grocery trade of the west, and the local houses report that they have about all the orders on hand that they can conveniently handle. As has been the case for some time, the only complaint is as to the slowness of collections, but with every indication pointing to a vaster crop than has been, it is believed that this difficulty will be removed in a few months.

Since the opening of navigation large supplies of import goods have come to hand, and the wholesale trade are in a position to supply fresh stocks of imported English sauces and similar goods. The sugar market has been steady for a fortnight, and some of the brokers are talking of a probable recovery of the high values maintained two months ago, but nevertheless the general trade are buying very sparingly in the expectation of a further decline. In this they are probably well advised. Since the opening of navigation good supplies of evaporated apples have come to Winnipeg, with the result that there has been a decline in prices. Fruit is being offered at prices lower than those quoted below, but it is not up to grade.

Sugar—The sugar market continues steady at the price which has been maintained for more than a fortnight. Some brokers are predicting a recovery of the market, and as the determination of the price seems to be in the hands of a speculative element this is not impossible. The trade are, however, buying sparingly in the anticipation of further reductions, and as the future of the market is very problematical their attitude seems well advised. We quote:

WALL PAPER

WHILE many departments of business have been suffering from a depression as a consequence of the unfavorable weather, the wall paper man has nothing but enthusiasm to show for his season's trade. The manufacturers who laid their plans for a big season in most cases fell short of the actual demand, and every day brings in sorting orders from all over the country for lines which are closed out. The sales have far exceeded the expectations of even the most hopeful dealer.

This encouraging condition is directly attributable to the progressive methods of manufacturer and retailer alike. The former saw the competition which the United States manufacturers were offering and they have met that competition by putting on the market superior designs and better paper for the money than the American manufacturers can do. The advance in the quality of wall paper manufactured in Canada during the last year is remarkable. It has become an art. As a consequence the imports of American wall papers into Canada, which steadily rose in quantity and value up to the year 1903, showed a marked falling off in 1904. This in itself is sufficient to show the growth in this industry in Canada.

Side by side with the advance in quality and attractiveness of Canadian-made wall papers has gone an advance in the selling methods of the retail distributors. What was till recently a side line of a paint shop, has become an integral part of up-to-date house-furnishing departments. Its place has been fixed as belonging to the store which sells carpets and curtains and drygoods-men are taking it up each year with greater avidity.

Having become established in the house-furnishing department, wall paper is now being treated as a part of the whole interior decorations. Any kind of paper is not permitted with any kind of carpet or curtain. The expert decorator suggests suitable designs and the sales accordingly receive an upward impetus. The more the idea of art in interior decoration becomes diffused, the greater will be the business in wall paper. Each store should have one salesman who pays special attention to the house-furnishing department. Expert suggestions on such matters are of invaluable benefit, first in making sales and secondly in satisfying the customer.

1906 Prospects.

Urged on to greater efforts by the success of last year's designs, the wall paper manufacturers have developed patterns for the 1906 trade which promise great favor. The beginning of June will see the travelers on the road with the new samples. It is impossible to give any general features of the new offerings at this date, but another month will unfold the whole scheme. In anticipation of a greater business even than the present season's, the Canadian manufacturers are putting themselves in readiness to meet the utmost demands. As a consequence of the exceptionally strong season this year, the manufacturers will start out with an absolutely fresh line of stock for next year's business. The sorting orders which are daily coming in are clearing out the last of this year's manufacture.

Prospects are bright for the new year's business. The travelers are taking their samples to men who have had a good season behind them. The public has been educated up to the demand for high-class papers. With designs of the attractiveness of the present samples no dealer should find difficulty in satisfying his wants.

The Cataract Wine & Canning Co., Niagara Falls, expect to begin work immediately on a $35,000 factory, to be completed by August 1.

The United Fruit and Produce Co., of Winnipeg, have made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. It is thought that the assets will be almost sufficient to meet the liabilities if they can be realized upon to advantage.

A. McNeill, chief of the Fruit Division, Ottawa, leaves this week for the Pacific Coast, where he will make a thorough study of the various methods of fruit packing in vogue in the west. He will endeavor to secure a thoroughly experienced man to come east and instruct packers how to pack fruit for local and export trade. It is hoped to bring about uniformity in packing, especially for export, throughout the whole of Eastern Canada.

Thos. Clark, Lytton, B.C., writes to The Grocer that the apple, peach, pear, plum, and apricot trees, as well as grapes and small fruits, passed the Winter safely, and that indications point to a large fruit crop. In fact, at the present time farmers are picking surplus fruit off the trees in order to prevent damage from branches breaking, and to improve the quality of fruit. Lytton, which is situated at the junction of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, in the dry belt of British Columbia, is an ideal location for fruit, melons and beans. During the present season there will be shipped no less than 250,000 lbs. of fruit in addition to melons and beans.

According to A. W. Donly, Canadian commercial agent to Mexico, in a recent report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, Canadian Winter apples will find a good and growing market in Mexico. To give satisfaction, however, they must be carefully selected and packed. If these conditions cannot be met they might better not be sent. Only the firmest and most carefully selected stock can be transported, in good condition, south to Mexico through and into the warm climate of the tropics. The market prefers a large, rather than a small, apple, and those who are not posted in regard to northern varieties prefer generally a bright colored fruit.

As for packing, it is recommended that apples of the same variety be selected as nearly as possible to one size, that each apple be wrapped in tissue paper and be packed invariably in medium-sized boxes. One concern in Mexico City received last Fall a carload of apples from Ontario. The instructions had been explicit as to selection of fruit and packing. They were not carried out, especially as to the selection of the fruit, and the result was that the importers were unable to clear themselves on the shipment; whereas had they been followed, not only would the importers have been encouraged to repeat their initial order, but Canadian apples would now be favorably known in Mexico.

The success of this trade would, undoubtedly, depend to a large extent on the establishment of a direct fast steamship service on the east coast, and it would be materially helped had the boats the advantage of cold storage accommodation.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, June 8, 1905.

NOTWITHSTANDING unfavorable weather conditions, a brisk trade in all kinds of green fruit is reported. California navels are still arriving on the market, although the season is rapidly drawing to a close. Pines are moving actively, particularly Havanas and Floridas. Bahamas in bulk have been noted on the market during the last few weeks. The price of bananas continues high on account of the controlling interest of the new banana combine. QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, June 7, 1905.

Fruit dealers report that trade is fair, but not as good as first expected. There is a brisk demand in bananas, although they are not very plentiful, and stocks are only medium in quality. They are quoted in Baltimore for Jamaicas from $1.80 to $2.40, and for Cubas from $1.80 to $2.20, according to size and quality. This is lower than local prices this week. Pineapples have dropped 50c. per crate on account of heavy receipts. Canteloupes are arriving in small lots and selling at $7.00. Five cars of strawberries were sold on Friday and three cars on Saturday, prices ranging between 9c. and 12 1-2 cents. Some California cherries are also on the market, though in very small quantities, but of the finest quality and selling at from $2.75 to $3.00. We quote:

Demand is very fair, and trade is considered good. According to opinion of dealers the crops will be late this year, especially in tomatoes; this is on account of cold and unsteady weather. Canadian asparagus is still arriving in small lots. New potatoes are selling well enough from $3.50 to $4.00 per barrel. There is a good demand for tomatoes at 35c. to 50c. per crate higher. Florida celery in small demand sells at 75c. dozen. Beans, cucumbers and cabbages brought small prices at a fruit sale last week, owing to small demand and poor quality of stock.

NOVA SCOTIA.
Green Fruits.

Halifax, June 7.

The market is well supplied with all seasonable fruit. The quality of the oranges, bananas, pineapples and strawberries is excellent, and the price very reasonable. During the week the market was overstocked with strawberries, and dealers, rather than let them rot, retailed them as low as fifteen cents per box.

Vegetables.

There is a marked improvement in quality and decrease in price in the vegetable market. American garden truck is disappearing, and the local product is taking its place. Native-grown lettuce, spinach and rhubarb is in good supply, and the price moderate. There is a good stock of splendid Bermuda onions on hand.

ST. JOHN.

St. John, June 5, 1905.

Higher prices are the rule. In oranges, stock gets wasty at this season. Some quite good valencias are offered. Lemons are higher. The price, however, is still low. Bananas, which are such a large business at this season and have been very low, have also been advanced. Apples have little inquiry. Pines sell but slowly. Strawberries have been coming in very freely from Boston, and are much lower. Native rhubarb is quite freely offered at a low price.

SAMPLING RIPLEY PINEAPPLES.

The old saying that there are horses and horses may be easily metamorphosed into "there are pineapples and pineapples." Through the courtesy of Mr. Hart, of Hart & Tuckwell, Montreal, The Grocer representative had the pleasure of sampling a Ripley pineapple, and experience was as satisfactory as it was novel. A Ripley pineapple is an improvement on the ordinary wooden, fibry pineapple of the trade, and connoisseurs of fruit have no hesitation in admitting that a Ripley, while a slightly more expensive luxury, is in every way an epicure's delight. Somewhat longer in shape than the ordinary Jamaica and Florida pineapple, without the hard, thick skin of the ordinary fruit, it has a distinctive richness and mellowness and delicacy of flavor all its own.

FAVORABLE CROP REPORT.

THE C.P.R. crop report, issued June 1, may be summarized in one word—excellent. There is not a point on the whole of the C.P.R. system through the wheat-raising country of the great west from which complaints are made, and as for the weather conditions, the only variation noted from the word favorable is the phrase, "very favorable."

The rapidly-growing wheat caries from two to six inches in height, and forms a thick mat on all the fields where seeding was well and carefully done. There have been several small showers in some localities, but they have been appreciated and by no means excessive. Even the districts in which the subsoil is gravel and sand, and which usually are the first to complain of dry weather, are extremely confident. Farmers and country merchants are enthusiastic, for the grain is now at a stage where it will take extremely bad weather to do serious damage. With a reasonable amount of rainfall during June and July the amount of wheat grown will create a new record.

FOOD PRODUCTS OF MEXICO.

WHEAT in Mexico is not the staple that it is in other countries, says A. W. Donly, Canadian commercial agent, in a recent report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. The bread of the masses is the tortilla, which is made of corn. The total yield of the principal cereal crops in the year 1902 was as follows: Rice, 39,877,354 pounds, value $1,270,000; corn, 74,000,000 bushels, value $39,206,000; wheat, 8,430,000 bushels, value $12,260,000.

Besides the cereals above mentioned, beans take an important place as a staple article of consumption. The kind most generally used is the brown bean (Mexican frijol) with considerable black. The white bean is grown in very limited quantities and is very little in vogue amongst the native population. The crop of beans of the various colors in 1902 amounted to 7,785,000 bushels, value $6,665,000.

Although Mexico is the original home of the potato, instead of reaching perfection there, it was left to other countries to develop its quality, while for many years the quality of the domestic article deteriorated. In very recent years, due to a demand for a better article and the introduction of new seed of improved varieties, the quality has improved. Still the domestic article does not compare with the imported. In the year already quoted the total domestic production amounted to 370,000 bushels, which, with a limited amount of the imported potato, represented the total consumption. The average retail price of potatoes on the Mexican market is $1.40 per bushel, the minimum and maximum being about $1.12 and $1.68; the cheapest price obtaining during June, July and August and the dearest from January to April 30th, when the new crop begins to be placed upon the market. The duty in Mexican money is two cents, Mexican, per kilogram, or about 26 cents Canadian per bushel. The freight rate to Mexico City would depend more or less upon origin of shipment. Given direct transportation from Canadian ports and with the superior article produced in Canada, a good and profitable business might be developed in this article which is yearly in much larger demand, due to increased and ever-increasing immigration from those countries where it is a staple and practically an article of prime necessity.

Owing to the very high freight rates by an all-rail haul the only way that Canada is connected commercially with this republic is via New York and the water routes that connect said ports with Veracruz, Tampico and Galveston. As will readily be seen, this is not a desirable way of handling shipments between the two countries, and more so as through bills of lading cannot be issued from point of shipment to destination. This makes it necessary for all shipments to be consigned to a commission house in New York for re-shipment, thus causing additional expense for brokerage, clearance, etc.

CEREAL NEWS.

TOBACCO PROSPECTS.

WARM weather has had a beneficial effect on tobacco sales during the last week. Conditions in the trade have noticeably improved. Weather conditions influence the tobacco business to a greater extent than is generally supposed. When the tobacco consumers can live out of doors in the Summer there is an upward bound in the sales of that commodity.

The successful retailer must be on the alert to see opportunities in his own line of business and to make the most of them. It will be of small benefit to him to have holidays and warm evenings and the other conditions which increase the sale of tobacco if he does not use special means to attract some of the custom to him.

Attractive displays are as possible in the tobacco department as in any other. Cigars and tobacco permit of great variety in show. To these may be added the accessories in the way of pipes, tobacco pouches, cigar cases, etc., which are not only profitable in themselves, but help to sell the regular goods. There is no class of goods which the manufacturers have gone to more expense to make attractive and salable than tobacco goods, and the retailer should adopt the devices offered to him and make the most of them to push his business.

EXPORTS OF CIGARS FROM CUBA.

Since April 1, 1904, the statistical bureau at Habana has published monthly statements of the exports of cigars, which shows the name of the manufacturers and the destination of the product.

According to these data the exports during the last nine months of 1904 were as follows:

Exports of cigars from Cuba during the nine months ended December 31, 1904.

Whither exported.	Exported by trust factories.	Exported by independent factories
England	33,740,000	32,801,000
United States ..	28,446,000	16,976,000
Germany	11,562,000	12,525,000
Canada	2,530,000	2,540,000
Other countries.	10,348,000	17,242,000
Total	86,626,000	82,084,000

These figures show that 51.3 per cent. of the total exports came from the trust factories and 48.7 per cent. from the independent concerns. When the trust was formed the trust factories supplied about 75 per cent.—according to the statement of the trust itself, 85 per cent. —of the total exports. It is therefore evident that the trust, up to December 31, 1904, has lost at least 30 per cent.—more than 50,000,000 cigars—in trade. The Frankfurter Zeitung says that while the exports of the independent factories to the United States are not very great, it should be borne in mind that the trust, in consequence of its almost complete monopoly of the trade in cigars, cigarettes, and smoking and chewing tobacco, exerted great pressure upon American importers and dealers, and, besides, shipped several millions of so-called reciprocity cigars and cigars of very low grade. If these millions of trust cigars had been deducted, the showing of last year would have been in favor of the independent factories. From all appearances the attempted monopolization of the cigar trade of Habana is not a success.

NO RECIPROCITY TREATY.

The announcement of the German Government that it is its intention to assess maximum rates of duty on American products after March 1st next unless the United States in the meantime negotiates a reciprocity treaty, has drawn from Secretary of Treasury Shaw an expression that such a treaty will not be negotiated. This treaty might prove of great advantage to American tobacco exporters. The increased duties on American tobacco will not be pleasing to German manufacturers, who have a fixed price, beyond which they will not go if they can possibly avoid it, and they will search the world over for substitutes which can be purchased cheaper.

MARRY MAN WHO SMOKES.

At a woman's club the other day an elderly matron said to some young girls: "Never, on any account, think of marrying a man who doesn't smoke. I have had a good deal of experience with men, and I have found that non-smokers are invariably peevish, querulous, full of a nervous ill humor.

"Especially in the evening, after dinner, when he should be at his best, the

Letters to Tom, the Grocer.—No. XI.

Dear Tom:

Put a little money in better store fixtures—better shelving, counters, scales, glass cases, mirrors, and such things. Don't try to do it all at once, and don't put it off until you can. Do a little regularly. By and by your store will be the finest in town, and you'll begin to get back every cent you spent in making your store such a smart one. Don't forget this advice.

Your tobacco department looks much better than it did a year ago—and we are very glad to see the T. & B. sales so good.

Yours truly,

GEO. E. TUCKETT & SON CO., LIMITED.

Per J.

non-smoker is hard to put up with. The smoker, after dinner, lights his cigar or his cigarette and at once falls into a placid mood, a happy, contented, angelic mood. But the non-smoker paces the floor restlessly, finds fault with this and that and everything, and at a word flies into a nervous and hysterical rage.

"I am convinced that Providence intended men to smoke, and for that reason placed tobacco on the earth. With the man who doesn't avail himself of this kindly gift of Providence there is something wrong, there is much wrong, and if you want to marry happily reject every non-smoker who proposes to you."

TOBACCO EXTRACT MONOPOLY.

From Ottawa it is learned that the consul-general of Italy has notified the Canadian Government that the Finance Department (Monopolies Division), Kingdom of Italy, will receive tenders for exclusive right for six years of the sale abroad of tobacco extract, produced in the tobacco manufactory at Turin. The quantity to be purchased yearly runs from 2,500 to 3,500 cwt. The ordinary extract is stated to be "an extract adulterated with carbolic acid at one per cent., and containing from eight and a half to nine per cent. nicotine." Further particulars may be obtained from the consul-general of Italy, Montreal.

Protect Your Customers and Increase Your Business

A customer who occasionally pays on account gives the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"I would go out of my way to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register. I have had so much trouble because my account has not been credited when I have paid money on account and I have been asked so many times to pay a bill which I knew had been paid.

"The National Cash Register owned by Mr. Hardy records all money I pay on account at the time I pay it. It is impossible to credit that payment to anyone else. For further protection I receive a receipt printed automatically by the register when the money is received and recorded."

A National Cash Register increases your trade and your profits by preventing mistakes and avoiding disputes with customers.

Let our representative call and explain our system to you.

The "Thistle" Brand Fish

The fact that for twenty years we have sold the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies, Kippered Herrings, etc., is pretty good evi dence of the high standard of quality of the goods. By high quality we mean, first, the very best fish put up in the very cleanest way; second, the preservation of the rich, delicate, natural flavor by prompt action after the fish are caught.

There has never been any attempt by the owners of the "Thistle" Brand to produce their goods as cheap goods—quality has been their watchword first, last and always. They have never pretended to compete on the basis of price and they never will. The "Thistle" Brand is to be the best by every test and regardless of expense.

The Manager of the company is unsurpassed as a fish-curer, as his father was before him. The buyers of the "Thistle" Brand can be absolutely sure of perfection. It is the standard from which the quality of all other brands is judged.

THE FUTURE OF THE COUNTRY STORE

By C. M. Harger, in the Atlantic Monthly.

STANDING before the door of his long-established but modest emporium, his ample form flanked by windows displaying hose and pancake flour, boys' suits and writing paper, washboards and cigars, while a garish sign, "General Merchandise," creaked above, the pioneer proprietor pointed to a heap of freight the train now disappearing over the plains had dumped on the depot platform.

"More work of the catalogues," he commented bitterly. "Three sacks of 'em came to the post office last week,—now the folks are sending for the goods. Think they are saving money, I suppose."

"Perhaps they are"

"Not much. If they will give me all their orders and pay cash, as they have to do with the catalogue mail-order houses, I'll get 'em just as good stuff, and just as cheap. Some things they may buy cheaper, but they're cheaper goods."

"Why do they do it, then"

"Because it's the city,—it sounds better, somehow; and the catalogues make everything look so fine. Why, the other day a farmer came here to borrow wrenches to set up a windmill he had sent to Chicago for. Then they expect me to take what's left,—or when they haven't the cash to send away. It's getting so that the farmer can live ten miles from town and even buy his groceries in St. Louis or New York and have 'em delivered without leaving the place. It means that we might as well shut up shop."

The Favored Visitors.

A few years ago I visited the largest mail-order store in Chicago, where millions of dollars' worth of merchandise is sent out every year. Its dozen floors are crowded with goods and employes—and some customers. Few of the latter are from the city. At the door stands a clerk, who carefully inspects every visitor.

"From out of the city, sir?"

If the answer be "No," you may enter or not as you please,—little does the well-trained employe care.

"Yes,—from Iowa," and how the hand goes out in greeting!

"Glad to have you come in; look over the store,—and here is a ticket for the elevator to the tower."

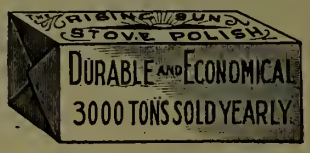
The ticket is marked "25 cents," and you are told it costs that sum to a resident of the city. The store caters only to out-of-town visitors. Of course you go to the tower,—you had paid gladly to reach lesser heights elsewhere. In the elevator you find people who are evidently strangers to the big town: some are farmer-folk making their first visit to the metropolis. "We bought all Kate's housefurnishing from here," is overheard as a group is pressed against the iron railing at the top. They are overcome by the wonders spread out far below them, and will go back home with marvelous tales of the greatness of the city and of the magnitude of this supply house in particular, the bestower of a free elevator ride.

A Plea For Free Buying.

A representative midwestern farmer addressed his State's agricultural society recently, making this plea for buying wherever he pleased. The farmer is able to sell as well as can the man of whom he buys, and he sells for cash, hence he is entitled to buy where he can buy cheapest. He went on: "Your nearest merchants claim the right to buy where they can buy the cheapest, whether it be of you, from Kansas City, or New York; it is also true that they exercise this right, for one day I happened in one of our home stores just as a town lady was buying some cabbage. The merchant was, of course, praising his wares, and would use his set form of speech by saying that those cabbages he had had shipped in from Wisconsin. Knowing that there were plenty of cabbages for sale by farmers, we put in our oar to the extent of asking why he did not buy his produce from those who bought goods of him. 'Well, you see,' he explained, 'we can get Wisconsin cabbage laid down in our store for the same as we pay for home stock, and these'—giving the crate the vegetables were shipped in a kick with his foot,—'are solider than any we can buy here.' How hollow their cry, 'Buy of your home merchant, the man who takes your products,' sounded to us after hearing this bit of talk from the dealer himself.

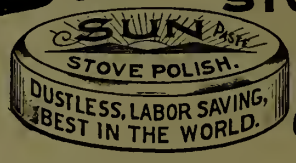
"But does the merchant you pay money to for goods keep it at home any more than you do when you send to Kansas City or Chicago for what you want? Let us see. Suppose you want a sack of granulated sugar. Your home merchant sells you a sack for six dollars, puts a dollar of it in his own pocket for handling it for you, and sends the rest to the sugar trust in the east to pay for the sugar. On the same day you buy the sugar from your home dealer, let us suppose you send to some mail-order house for another sack of a like grade. You send away $4.75, and when the sugar comes you pay fifty cents in freight, making it cost you $5.25, saving you seventy-five cents. The reason we quote no freight charges against the home dealer is because all dealers usually buy on a basis of 'delivered at your store,' but the freight charges have been added, and the consumer has to pay them, no matter where the goods originally came from. You have seventy-five cents instead of the merchant having one dollar."

Is It a Sound Argument?



This is a typical argument of the mail-order house's farmer buyer, but it does not include the legitimate outcome of such a proceeding extended to an entire community. It is probable that few of the farmers who exploit so glibly the process by which seventy-five cents is kept at home would care to have their county towns come to the natural result from universal adoption of this policy. Instead of streets of brick blocks where thriving business houses bring the attendant features of modern town life, there would be only a railway station, post office, blacksmith shop, doctor's office, and grain elevator. The lawyers would have their offices in their homes or in the court house; there would be no need of storerooms, and the county newspaper, which would contain no advertising except mail-order house announcements printed on its "patent inside," could probably occupy one end of the commodious freight depot which would be necessary to care for the many shipments of goods. The rural districts of the nation would be very dismal places were this the situation and were all the local places for distribution of the needs of the home wiped out.

It is also interesting to note the magnitude to which the central establishments for furnishing goods under such conditions would attain. They would overshadow the mightiest emporiums of the present. The railroads would be burdened with small shipments to individuals, and the mails would be heavy with orders. The few large cities would contain these great dispensing centres, and the remainder of the commercial life of the country would be practically nothing, being confined to the minor trades and needful professions. The country store would be a thing of the past: business would be centralized beyond any conditions now existing.



Genesis of the Country Store.

To go back to the genesis of the country store: from the beginning as the nucleus of the settlement life, it has become one of a dozen struggling enterprises desirous of securing the trade of the surrounding country. As the town grew and reached its permanent position among the municipalities of the State, the pioneer store, if it was managed with intelligence, retained its general character, but, branching out, took on the nature of a department store on a small scale.

It yet sold washboards and millinery, but it did so in the different departments, each with a head and a corps of clerks. The probabilities are that its owner has become a "mercantile company," meaning that the originator has taken into partnership some of his helpers in order to get more faithful service. These stores, of which nearly every country seat has two or more, are to the country communities what the great emporiums are to the city trade. They occupy full pages in the county weeklies, and their advertising, prepared by some bright clerk or bookkeeper, does not suffer in comparison with that of high-priced "adsmiths," who give professional service in the announcements of the city department stores. Smart delivery wagons make prompt and accommodating disposal of goods at customers' houses. Frequent visits of the proprietors to the large cities keep in evidence through carefully arranged display windows a touch of the world's newest designs.

Strength of Country Stores.

The strength of these stores is this,—they carry large stocks; their owners are often interested in mills or elevators that buy the farmer's grain; they take all the eggs and poultry brought to town,—being the feeders for the commission houses of which the Nebraskan complains,—and they meet the prices of the mail-order houses as closely as possible. Many of them keep standing in the local papers such announcements as this: "We will duplicate the price of any article advertised in a mail-order catalogue."

Such a statement does not secure all the trade, but it goes a long way to convince the buyers of the value of their home store.

The vividness of the illustrated advertising done by the mail-order houses, compared with that done by the country merchants, is held by many to be responsible for the success attained in securing trade, and it is probably a most important factor. The bulky catalogue introduces its readers to hundreds of articles never before dreamed of as possibilities of the home: it pictures these goods in all their imagined beauty and describes them in terms of eulogy. The reader sees therein an opportunity for supplying a want never before suspected,—the country merchant had never suggested this line of thought to him.

Lessons For Merchants.

Herein lies a lesson for the country merchant of to-day. The latter, with his proximity to the buyer, his acquaintance with the community needs and abilities, his weekly access to the homes through the country paper, which is read from first to last column by every member of the family, his lessened freight rates on large quantities instead of single orders, has an advantage over the city merchant which he ought to utilize, and which, in many places, he is seizing as a lever for trade bringing .

The country papers which get no local advertising from the mail-order houses (many will not admit it to their columns) help along this home-buying sentiment by vigorous sermons on the value of standing up for home industries. Here is a sample of their argument:

"When your baby died, did the mail-order house send its sympathy? When your crop failed, did it offer to carry you a while? When your daughter was married, did it send a present? Has it helped build the churches, the schoolhouses, or the bridges of the community? Stand by your home merchant who has done all of these things. Help home industries and home people."

The country department store that uses modern methods in trade and advertising cannot be broken up. Its business is so interwoven with the industry of the people that it grows as the community grows; but there is not room for many such stores in a given town, not so many as there would be if the mail-order house and the city department house with its mail-order division did not exist.

Then there is the grocery store,—no mail-order house can destroy that. It is true that the master of the household may order sugar, coffee, prunes, canned goods, and oatmeal sent by freight; but the majority of the eatables must be seen by the mistress of the home before being paid for.

City Buying.

City buying is naturally most common in towns within short distances of the metropolis. With the frequent train service that enters the city depots the temptation to buy in the greater markets is irresistible. For fifty miles outside of St. Louis, Chicago, Cincinnati, and other large cities, there is little life visible in the business streets of the town. Deserted store buildings are common, paint is needed,—many of the towns look as if the very life-blood had been sapped out of them. There may be beautiful residence streets and fine homes, but prosperous stores are few.

It is, naturally, impossible to put a stop to personal expenditures in the city by those who visit trade centres, except as public opinion may discourage it; but the country merchants through their business organizations endeavor to compel jobbing houses to co-operate with them in the protection of trade.

Parcels Post.

The retail trade associations—and the country merchant generally agrees with them—look with great disfavor on the parcels post, considering the scheme as another menace to their trade. "If," say they, "the rural delivery carrier is to become a hauler of express, we may as well go out of business; the farmer now is compelled to come to town after most goods he orders by mail; then he may remain on his farm and have them brought to his door." The up-to-date country merchant, like his competitor, is utilizing the rural delivery. In many counties half the people can be reached by it. Being nearer to the people, he is finding ways to combat the foreigner, and is including modern methods and better system as prominent features in his campaign.

If a wholesale dealer sells ploughs to a grocer who proposes to put in these as a side line, the officers of an association, with a thousand or more retail implement dealers as members, ask him for an explanation. If he does not wish to be blacklisted by the legitimate trade, he must regain good standing. Such is the country merchant's protest against the transference of trade from himself to the city dealer and for the specialization of business within certain bounds.

So the country merchant has friends left, and while he finds his trade curtailed and his business lessened by the wide-reaching mail-order house, he fills a place in the economy of the rural portions of the nation that cannot be taken from him. He is close to the heart of the neighborhood. He may be harassed by rivalries and annoyed by the freight shipments from the city, but he is certain to be a factor in the community life, and it is probable that he will, as he accepts the new conditions and learns how to adapt his business to the modern ways, become even more influential. There is more business to be done now than of old, and he can spare a large portion of it and yet have in his hands the making of a comfortable living. His success depends on his own aggressiveness and his own grasp of modern conditions.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH AUSTRALIA.

J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent for New South Wales, Queensland and New Zealand, in a recent report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, says there is much disappointment at the result of the New Zealand preference upon Canadian trade. One of the reasons assigned is the poor facilities for getting at the market by direct shipping. Trade returns for 1904 show a decrease of £130,875 in Australian imports from Canada, although it must not be forgotten in this country that the drought caused imports in 1903 of breadstuffs, meats and butter of £168,537, which were not required in 1904. Imports from Canada totalled £222,064, and exports to Canada £29,352, a slight increase over the previous year.

BRANCHING OUT.

The Gutta Percha & Rubber Co. (of Toronto), Limited, have just completed arrangements for sample rooms and stock rooms in London, England, and are now settled in commanding premises at No. 1 Finsbury Square, within two or three minutes' walk of the Bank of England. For the present, they are confining their sales to rubber shoes and rubber heels, the introduction of their mechanical supplies being left until later on. Mr. R. H. Green, who opened up this branch, returned to Toronto a few days ago and is now to be found at his old post.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS MEET.

The monthly meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was held on Thursday, June 8, at 88 St. Denis street.

There were only about twenty members present when the president, Mr. P. Daoust, opened the meeting at 8.45. The minutes of the last meeting were read, and the treasurer, Mr. P. Bruneau, made a satisfactory report.

The picnic question being brought up, the secretary read a letter from the Ottawa Grocers' Association thanking the Montreal grocers for their kind invitation to join them in their picnic to Cornwall, but advising them of the impossibility of doing so on July 12. The secretary was then instructed to renew the invitation, owing to the former date of the picnic being postponed to July 19. The grocers also decided to make a wagon parade on July 17, in order to attract the attention of citizens and invite them to the outing of the association. Mr. N. Seguin, president of the committee of games, having asked authorization to make offers to a lacrosse team to accompany the grocers to Cornwall, considerable discussion followed, without, however, any decision being reached.

SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING

By J. ANGUS MacDONALD

Competent critics have recognized this as the Best Book on Advertising yet published. It is a PRACTICAL work for advertisers and business men.

The Brooklyn Eagle says of Successful Advertising:

"Advertising is one of the biggest businesses—perhaps the biggest business—in the world. To treat of it comprehensively is as difficult as to treat comprehensively of military strategy or the making of a newspaper. Mr. MacDonald has succeeded. He has produced an admirable and exhaustive monograph.

"Perhaps the deepest pitfall into which an author might fall in writing upon such a subject as this is too much theory and not sufficient practicality. Most happily has Mr. MacDonald avoided this chasm: he writes from practical experience in the field, and his methods as presented have been given the thorough tests of time and circumstances.

"Any one with even a superficial knowledge of advertising cannot but perceive that in the many examples shown are evidenced a thorough knowledge of the subject and a businesslike and practical grasp of advertising which is far removed from the light, airy and entirely impractical and hare-brained stuff which is not uncommon in literature treating of the subject of advertising."

The General Advertiser, The Retail Advertiser, The Advertising Writer, The Mail Order Advertiser will find this work invaluable. The price is out of proportion to its worth. Cloth bound. 400 pages.

CANNERS IN DIFFICULTY.

SALMON canners who will this season operate independently of the Fraser River Canners' Association —and there are six of them, five on the Fraser River and one on English Bay— are rather concerned over the terms of a contract which they state the association has prepared for signature by the fishermen who will work for its canneries, says the Vancouver Province.

A portion of this contract reads to the effect that the signatory agrees not to sell fresh fish to any canner other than the one from whom he takes his boat and net. In other words, the fisherman signing this agreement must turn in all his catch to the cannery which supplies him with boat and gear.

The independent canners presume that the association has taken this step in order to protect its members against loss in case trouble should arise over the price of fish. It is also the understanding of the independents that all the canneries, their own among the number, will be notified concerning the fishermen who sign the contracts in order that no canner shall buy fish from a man fishing for another operator.

This year there will be a number of canneries in operation in the Fraser River district which will not be numbered in membership of the Fraser River Canners' Association. The British Columbia Packers' Association canneries and a number of individual operators compose the Fraser River Canners' Association.

The price to be paid for sockeyes on the Fraser River has not yet been determined. The fishermen ask 12½c., and while the Fraser River Canners' Association has discussed the question, it has as yet not reached a determination.

FISHERIES COMMISSION.

The personnel of the Fisheries Commission has been definitely announced. Two gentlemen of high standing, one in legal and the other in banking circles, have been selected for the purpose of making exhaustive enquiries into fishery conditions on this coast. Hon. Chief Justice Hunter and Mr. Campbell Sweeny, of the Bank of Montreal, will be assisted by Prof. Prince in an advisory capacity. It is anticipated that the State of Washington will appoint a similar commission, and while there will not be an international commission, the two commissions will have joint conferences, and thus endeavor to arrive at a solution of some of the problems that are troubling legislators on both sides of the line. That a great deal of information will be gathered, and a very useful and exhaustive report will be presented, may be taken for granted, as it would be difficult to find three men more capable for an investigation of the kind than those chosen. Prof. Prince has the expert knowledge necessary to decide upon technical questions, while the other members have the legal experience required in taking evidence and thoroughly analyzing it, and the practical, business acumen of the trained banker.

PRICE OF SALMON.

The Fraser River salmon canners will at an early date confer with the representatives of the British Columbia Fishermen's Union relative to the prices to prevail on the river this coming season.

What the canners will offer will be either twelve cents for July and ten cents for August, or else a straight eleven cents for the whole season. The matter of limit to be placed on the fishermen during the heavy runs of this, the big year, is one which is likely to cause a certain amount of discussion between fishermen and canners before an agreement is reached.

This season there will be several independent canners operating on the Fraser River, but their prices will likely be governed and be the same as those set by the Fraser River Canners' Association.

The lobster fishing on Prince Edward Island has been brisk so far this season. Along about Mimingash, Campbellton and Cape Wolfe, reports from fishermen are unusually favorable.

DAIRY PRODUCE IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Special correspondence from London, Eng.

SHIPMENTS of Canadian butter, although always small at this time of the year, have been even smaller than last year. Accounts of the registered supply of butter show that 1,458 cwts. were received from Canada during April, 1904, and only 192 cwts. in the same month of 1905. Prices have been too high. Irish butter is decidedly scarce at present, as the new season's make is unexpectedly short, but other supplies are forthcoming to supply the demand, so that there is no remarkable activity to report during the past week.

Although considerable quantities of Canadian butter which arrived last season were of the very finest quality—couldn't be beaten, British importers say—still, there were times when consignments were found to be less fresh than Australian, and it has been suggested that Canadian creameries are located further away from port of shipment than is the case in Australia, and several London importers have expressed the opinion that the railway authorities in the Dominion could help Canadian export trade by improving their freight service. Another point which deserves attention is the fact that Siberian butter is getting a stronger hold on the markets here, and it has been reported that it runs Canadian very close both in the matter of price and quality. It is not likely that this will interfere seriously with the position of Canadian butter on the British market, but there is always the possibility of some business being lost by under-estimating the quality of a competing line.

Supplies of Canadian cheese were considerably smaller during April this year than last, being 33,376 cwts., as against 79,334 cwts. in 1904. Buyers have been very cautious, too, for quotations are about 10s. per cwt. above the price in May last year. This does not refer to Canadian cheese in particular, although that also is very high priced.

Several British importers have expressed a desire to get into touch with Canadian shippers of eggs, and there are possibilities of a larger business than previously being done when the season opens up. This is about September, when the Russian supply is falling off, and trade is otherwise somewhat slow. Some information as to the method of packing suitable to this market and further details will be given later on.

DAIRY INDUSTRY OF DENMARK.

TO get an adequate conception of the magnitude of the dairying industry in Denmark one has only to refer to the exports of pork and butter to Great Britain during 1901, 1902 and 1903, which were as follows:

	1901—lbs.	1902—lbs.	1903—lbs.
Pork, fresh	7[illegible]9,622	1,422,024	1,006,432
Pork, salted and smoked	130,[illegible]88,944	156,536,780	175,899,470
Butter, hermetically sealed in cans	1,695,836	1,465,955	1,451,987

When these figures are compared with the area and population of Denmark it will be readily seen that it ranks foremost of any country in the world as an exporter of dairy products. The secret of success is unquestionably the high grade and uniformity of the Danish product, brought about by carefully studying methods of production and the requirements of the different markets.

Royal Danish Agricultural Society.

The Royal Danish Agricultural Society is paying particular attention to the production of bacon, butter and cheese. As far as bacon is concerned, this society follows up the question as to what breeds of hogs are most suitable, what kind of feed produces the best quality of pork, the best age to butcher, salt, smoke, pack, etc. The Danish farmers have also learned that it pays to work together, and in different parts of the country have started co-operative slaughter-houses combined with salteries and smokeries, where the most particular cleanliness, etc., is observed. Thereby the most uniform quality is produced. As with bacon so with butter and cheese, much care being taken to produce the highest grade. At the expense of the Royal Danish Agricultural Society, a number of young men and women employed in agricultural work are given courses in their respective lines, such courses lasting for three years, during which time the pupils must take active part in the work they wish to study either on one of the large farms or creameries.

Danish Government "Aids."

The Danish Government distributes money each year as "traveling-aids" to a great many country people who are interested in the different branches of dairying and agriculture to assist them in visiting agricultural schools or experimental farms.

"The Royal Danish Farming Association" advertised in January, 1904, that the Government would distribute such "traveling-aids" to dairy men for their further education. There were 388 applications received in response, and of these 127 were allowed amounts varying from 100.00 kroner to 300.00 kroner ($27 to $80). The total amount thus distributed was 19,825.00 kroner, or $5,825, which amount was allowed to people with special qualifications in the branches they had chosen. This is considered to be money well spent, even if the visit is short. By repeating these financial distributions every year, there will be in time a great number of intelligent people, who not alone during their future practice will make use of what they have thus learned, but other people with whom they get in touch will learn from them in turn.

The System of Co-operation.

It may be taken for granted that it is the co-operative butcheries and dairies which, through their homogeneous and careful preparation of the products, have aided principally in obtaining for them such a prominent place in the foreign markets. Besides, the activity of the "Landokonomiske Laboratorium (Agricultural Laboratory)," has had an important influence on the good results achieved. The natural conditions for the development of a homogeneous production are consequently very marked in a small country like Denmark, where the co-operative movement, so to speak, embraces the whole country.

In other countries with larger area and more different nature, such a co-operative work cannot be practiced so easily. Possibly also the Danish national character, which easily lends itself to a common guidance, has contributed much to the attainment of the great development of the agricultural or farming areas of Denmark.

THE BACON SITUATION.

The domestic bacon trade continues steady and without special feature, the tendency being to brighten up as the Summer season approaches. The English market shows considerable improvement and Canadian packers are looking forward to more satisfactory trade conditions from now on. The average quotation for Canadian bacon in England to-day is 54s. Killings of Danish hogs are keeping up surprisingly considering the season of the year.

WILL BE CONFINED TO U.S.

Reference was made in this paper some time ago to the discovery that a brand of Camembert cheese can be manufactured in America exactly the same as the French product. According to a prominent Canadian produce dealer Canadian cheese makers are not likely to take up the manufacture of Camembert. The demand for imported cheese is not nearly so large in Canada as in the United States, and it is a question whether the manufacture of Camembert would be profitable in Canada. As long as Canadian cheese makers can hold and expand existing markets for their products, it is hardly likely that they will be inclined to dabble in foreign brands

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., June 14, 1905.

THE clerks are happy. The Saturday half-holiday is quite general, and will be even more so for the months of July and August. Unfortunately, the retail grocery clerks are not in it. They tried it one year, and it did not work to the satisfaction of the trade. The closing of the stores, except on Saturday, throughout the year at seven, in place of nine, ten and eleven is greatly appreciated both by those who keep the stores and their employes. There is just a fair business, sugar being again slightly lower.

Oil—The low price of burning oil still rules. But this does not counteract the effect of increased daylight on this branch of trade. Lubricating oils are freely sold at unchanged prices. There is a good business reported, though the big shipments have been largely made. Paint oils are higher. Linseed cannot yet be called high, but to replace turpentine dealers would have to pay big figures. Local receipts of cod oil are very small.

Salt—Some fair cargoes of Liverpool coarse salt continue to be received. Prices have been firmly held. Not only has first cost been quite high, largely owing to high freights, but the import business here is largely in the hands of two houses, and they have been working under an agreement. In fine salt the sale is largely for Canadian. The creameries, in particular, handle Canadian salt.

Canned Goods—Dealers advise sale for peas very light. In corn and tomatoes stocks are not large. Americans are freely offered. This tends to prevent higher prices, which otherwise must have ruled. American tomatoes are tending higher. While a fair stock of salmon is still held, some interest is manifest in the prospect for the coming season. Lobsters are very high. Fruits are unchanged. Meats are selling quite freely. Domestic sardines are unchanged. Other lines of domestic canned fish are very firm.

Green Fruit—Oranges and lemons are higher. The latter, however, are still quite cheap. Bananas are also higher to import, but the retail price is not affected. Sales are large. In pines this is never an active market. Strawberries are coming in more freely and show better quality. All green stuff lower.

Dried Fruit—There is but little spot business doing. Seeded raisins are quite a large stock. In other grades of raisins stocks are light. Currants have a fair sale. Prices are unchanged. Figs are very dull. Small prunes are more firmly held. Apricots and peaches show little business. Evaporated apples move slowly, with prices unchanged. Onions are lower. New goods begin to occupy attention. Orders for peels are being quite freely booked. There is a wide range in the price of citron. Market is higher than last year. Dates are quoted at the same price. Figs are rather lower. Prunes are considerably higher, particularly the small sizes. Apricots are well below last season's price. Peaches are about the same. California loose muscatels are higher. New seeded not quoted.

Sugar—Dealers were disappointed when prices were again quoted lower. The situation is not satisfactory. There is this advantage that the season of largest demand will shortly open.

Molasses—A further small cargo of Porto Rico arrived during the past week. There is a good stock held. Prices are unchanged. Barbadoes is not a large stock.

Fish—While there has been a fair catch of gaspereaux, it is far below the average, so there will be a small pick of alewives. Shad have been scarce. Salmon are not coming in freely. It is yet quite early. Dry codfish continue very high. The outlook is not favorable. There are no pollock. Fishermen selling their catch where even better prices rule. Pickled herring are scarce and high. Smoked are, however, low. The large season for finnan haddies is over.

Flour, Feed and Meal—Flour is unchanged. Business is quiet. Feed has little sale. Bran is quoted rather lower. Oats are very high and hard to get. Cornmeal is higher. Oatmeal is dull in the local market, which is overstocked. Outside market is firm at full figures. Beans are quiet and market rather unsteady. In yelloweyes sale is limited. Barley and peas unchanged.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Provisions—An active demand and steady prices are noted for all kinds of cured meats. The tendency, if any, is towards additional firmness, and for goods in small lots slightly higher prices rule than quoted below. The cold weather has had a tendency to interfere with the sale of fresh meats. Mutton is quoted 1c. lower than a week ago, yearling lamb 1 1-2c. below last quotations, and hogs have advanced to $9.25. Spring lamb is selling at 16c. We quote the following:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 10½

Butter—Deliveries of butter have been fairly free during the week, and prices rule practically as last advised. There is perhaps a tendency towards higher prices in creamery solids and dairy prints. We quote:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19 0 20
" solids, fresh	0 18 0 19
Dairy prints	0 15 0 17
" large rolls	0 15

Cheese—Offerings of new cheese have been fairly free during the week, and as a result the price of large cheese and twins is down 1-4c. The make of cheese is steadily increasing. The present month is regularly the big month for cheese making, and as the pasture is exceptionally good this year a record will probably be made. Our quotations are as follows:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 09¾
" twins, "	0 10

MONTREAL.

Provisions—Market for live hogs is easier, packers buying at $6.90 to $7.00. Dressed hogs quiet and not much doing anywhere. Prices $9.25 to $9.50. The week, so far, has been a quiet one for hams and bacon, with prices easier. It is expected with the approach of warm weather the demand for both hams and bacon will improve. Everyone is looking for lower prices on account of the Spring makes coming shortly.

Cheese—The cheese market continues steady and firm. A slightly easier feeling, however, is noticeable in some quarters. Finest Quebecs sold at 9 1-4 to 9 3-8, and finest Ontarios 9 1-2 to 9 5-8. Country markets are steady, cable orders coming in more freely, but bids were too low to meet holders' views.

Butter—Butter market has held firm, though tending slightly easier. Receipts are good and local demand very heavy. Choicest Townships creamery sold at 19 to 19 1-4c., and fine 18 1-2 to 19c. Weather conditions are improving, and this should have result of increased make and easier prices. Dealers are all at sea as to the situation, and can offer no reliable excuse for the maintenance of high prices.

Eggs—Market steady and firm. Receipts keeping light. Prices range high at country points, buyers claiming having to pay as high as 15 1-2c. in some cases, though 15c. seems to be about what is generally ruling. On local market straight gathered sold at 16 to 16 1-2c., and wholesale No. 2 14 to 15c., selects bringing 16 1-2 to 17c. for No. 1 and extras 19c.

ST. JOHN.

Provisions—Barrelled pork is very dull. There is rather a reaction in prices. Beef has a very small sale, price is firm. Canadian is being quite largely used. In pure lard, prices are high. Some American pure lard is seen. Refined lard is higher. Smoked meats have a fair sale at full figures. In fresh meats, beef is rather higher. Little western now seen. Some particularly good domestic is offered. Mutton is dull and price is lower. Lamb sells quite freely, though price is still high. Veal is rather scarce. Full prices are asked.

VANCOUVER.

Butter—Local creamery is in great supply and at prices asked is readily sold. The ruling figure is from 25 to 30c. Local dairy is also fairly well supplied at about 25c. for choice. The increase in number of creameries is responsible for the reduction of quantity of dairy butter offering. Local produce is so plentiful, owing to the advanced season and splendid grazing that eastern stock is practically shut out at this season. Local fresh eggs are jobbing at not more than 25c., and fairly well supplied yet. Not many eastern eggs are being handled now. Poultry is plentiful of local growth at 35 to 50c. for broilers and 75c. for large chickens. Cold-storage chicken, 15c. per lb.

Quaker Canned Goods

There are millions in it

Although it is our usual custom to keep our business to ourselves, the following is such good advertising material that we for this occasion depart from our invariable rule.

We consider it good advertising material in this respect, that it is impossible for any business to show such a growth as this without there being extraordinary merit in the goods.

Then also consider that these results have been accomplished almost without advertising, without ourselves having any travelers, all this business coming to us right here in our office in Bloomfield either by wire, telephone or through the mail.

We absolutely used little or no brains or energy in selling the goods, all our faculties in this respect being used in packing goods superior to our competitors. The results prove pretty conclusively that if you have the quality, the selling part will take of itself.

A MONEY-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

A VERY important factor to the retailer is a well-assorted line of china and glassware. Very little attention is paid to this money-making department by the majority of merchants, their stock being kept up on the top shelves or at the back of the store where little or no attention is paid to them by customers, unless looking for something in that line.

This is a mistake; and let the merchant who is in the habit of doing this put his stock on a table in the front of his store, where it can be easily inspected, and he will soon notice a substantial increase in profits, which will be an incentive to a greater effort along this line.

A nicely-arranged table of decorated china will appeal almost to everyone and many a prosperous store owes its beginning to a table of bright, sparkling glassware.

ETURNED
JN 19 1905

Crockery and China Department, G. T. Rogers, Cranbrook.

The accompanying illustration shows the china and crockery department in a Western Canadian general store that would do credit to even the most pretentious city china store. Some readers of The Grocer may think a similar arrangement is impracticable in their case, principally on the ground of expense. All that is required, however, is neat shelves, a table or two, and a nicely-assorted display of crockery and china. The wicker furniture and palm jardiniere contribute in no small measure to the excellenee of the general effect. Such an attractive eorner in a store serves no end of purposes. It goes without saying that sales of crockery will be easily effected. What is more, one can hardly imagine a more ideal waiting room ior the weary shopper. Mrs. Jones wanders to an easy chair after she has eompleted her purchases, and the chances are more than ever that before she leaves the store she will spy something in the way of china, bric-a-brac, etc., which she will be unable to resist the temptation of buying.

UP-TO-DATE ADVERTISING FIRM.

ADVERTISING is an art. This ready saying, common enough in print in these days when the art of advertising is being made much of by those who worship at its shrine "for what there is in it," needs modification in another direction, without in any degree lessening the import of the expression. Firms advertise and advertise without getting proper results commensurate with the financial expenditure. The Grocer in its long, varied and extensive experience in matters relating to advertising, has had occasion to comment upon many up-to-date, appropriate and efficacious methods employed by manufacturers dealing with grocers' sundries. Among the many that have passed under its notice, one of the most up-to-date and effective advertisers is the firm of John Dwight & Co., New York, Syracuse, Montreal and Toronto, manufacturers of "Cow Brand" baking soda. It is through the courtesy of the Canadian representative, R. S. Tyas, that The Grocer was given an insight into the system employed by this firm, and without divulging any of the methods, it may be stated that the class of advertising is one of the best adaptable, and the quality of the material used undouhtedly of a superior charaeter. In company with Mr. Tyas, The Grocer representative paid a visit to the Montreal branch of John Dwight & Co., at their packing, storing and shipping warehouses at Pt. St. Charles, Montreal. As this reference will only deal with the advertising feature of the Canadian business, no mention, laudable though it would be, of the management of the packing and shipping department will be made. In the large rooms devoted to the storing of advertising material, The Grocer was shown premiums of all kinds, all of them useful and valuable to the merchant and consumer,—handsome lithographed hangers, pen-knives, fountain pens, pocket combs, pencils, etc. One of the handsomest advertising sets is a eollection of lithographed cards of champion prize winners (dogs), all of them in natural colors and true to life. This set is so artistic that every lover of animal life will value the set highly. All of these premiums are distributed by John Dwight & Co. to purehasers of their products, and merchants throughout the land have appreciated these presents highly. Mr. Tyas, whose personality and genial manner is known wherever business is to be done in Canada, has removed to Montreal from Toronto in order to direct the growing interests of his firm from this port, where all the most convenient packing and shipping facilities are afforded his company.

TRADING STAMP BY-LAW

As a result of legislation obtained by the Retail Merchants' Association at the recent session of the Legislature, E. M. Trowern, secretary, has prepared for the city, town and village councils of Ontario a draft by-law for the regulation and restriction of the use of trading stamps and coupons hy merehants. The measure which he recommends for adoption is as follows:

"No person shall, in the City of Toronto, give, sell, distribute or receive trading stamps, coupons, or other similar devices, and no person, firm or corporation engaged in trade or business shall give, sell or deal in such trading stamps, coupons, or other similar devices. Provided, however, that this by-law shall not apply to any merchant or manufacturer who places in or upon packages of goods, or delivers to purchasers of goods, sold or manufactured by him, at the time of sueh purchase, tickets or coupons, which bear upon their face the plaee of delivery thereof, together with the cash or merchantable value of the same, and are redeemable at any time, and only by the merchant or manufacturer giving them, and only at the store or faetory where such goods were sold or purchased."

The penalty for breach of the by-law is to be $50 and costs for each offence, or in case of default, imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months.

At a recent meeting of the Bridgewater, N.S., Board of Trade it was definitely deeided to hold a big celebration in that town on July 1, with preliminary sports on June 30. A managing committee was appointed composed of Dr. Stewart, chairman; C. J. Cragg, secretary; C. L. Freeman, assistant secretary; Mayor Wilson, Arthur Roberts, G. M. Boyd, R. M. McDormand, W. K. Stoddart, L. C. Gelling, G. A. Hubley, Frank Davison, V. J. Paton, J. L. Nelson and A. C. Barnaby.

TRADING STAMP BY-LAW.

The preparation of a by-law to further restrict, or practically prohibit, the use of trading stamps was ordered by the Toronto City Council June 12.

Messrs. DuVernet & Co., representing several merchants and citizens, wrote in part as follows, on the question: "We submit that the legislation in question is the most obnoxious form of class legislation, and passed at the instance of a small section of the retail merchants, who are desirous to thereby meet the competition of their more progressive and enterprising business rivals. If a merchant is willing to give a customer five per cent. off the retail price of goods sold by him as a bonus for cash payments, why should this action be penalized and the general public be prevented from obtaining a discount at the instance of retail merchants who are too penurious to offer such a bonus to increase their trade?

"If the by-law is passed we deem it only right to the Council to state that we have received instructions to test the validity of such a by-law and the legislation upon which it is based, and carry the matter, if necessary, to the Privy Council."

Mr. H. Reid addressed the Council in opposition to the proposed by-law. He charged Mr. Trowern, representing the Retail Merchants' Association, with making "vicious" statements. The coupon business was no "fake."

"The worst fake that was ever introduced into the commercial community," was Mr. Trowern's definition of the trading stamp business. In his opinion the premiums were "a lot of rubbish." He would like to know what hundred merchants Mr. Reid referred to as favoring the stamps, for the members of the Retail Merchants' Association, consisting of the "most respectable fellows," were opposed to the stamps.

"How many members have you in Toronto?" asked Controller Spence.

"We have 1,500," he replied.

The motion ordering a by-law was then passed.

CHAT WITH P.E. ISLANDER.

AN interesting visitor to the Toronto offices of The Grocer on Friday, June 9, was Mr. F. S. Chandler, representing the Charlottetown Condensed Milk Co., Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Mr. Chandler spoke feelingly of the movement among the residents of Prince Edward Island for a tunnel to connect the island with the mainland of New Brunswick. It is difficult for a westerner to appreciate the inconvenience the trade down there have been subjected to during the past year on account of inadequate transportation facilities. For over 61 days at one time the island had no communication with the mainland. During this period no less than 400 cars loaded with merchandise for Prince Edward Island business houses were lying side-tracked at Pictou, and the railway companies were obliged to refuse freight for P.E.I. points. Mr. Chandler's recitation of the hardships he endured in crossing the Straits of Northumberland during the Winter season of 1904-05 were interesting in the extreme, even if it was difficult to reconcile icebergs and traveling over ice-floes at the rate of a mile an hour, with the ordinarily accepted notions of progressive Eastern Canada. The "tunnel" is a vital question with the citizens down there, and no effort will be spared in securing the co-operation of the necessary interests.

EFFECTING READJUSTMENT.

The Canada Biscuit Co., Toronto, have made an assignment for the purpose of reorganizing the company. Their assets are nearly double their liabilities, the exact figures being as follows: Assets $173,000, liabilities $95,500. No question of the solvency of the company is involved, and the step is taken solely to satisfy certain shareholders, who think that after four years they ought to be in a position to declare a dividend. The factory at King and Bathhurst streets will run as usual, and there will be no interruption in the business.

Owing to typographical error quotations on "peanut butter," medium size, in last week's issue of The Grocer were given as $1.60. They should have been $1.90.

Old Ideas!

When Windsor Salt is ready for the market it has passed the most critical examination of the largest and most progressive Salt Factory in Canada. There are no old fogy ideas in force at the Canadian Salt Co.'s Works. Where Windsor Salt is made, everything is up-to-date.

We believe in progression. Old-fashioned ideas were well enough in their day and so was the candle light, but the world moves and you must be up and doing if you would keep in touch with it.

Old fogy ideas have no part in the making of Windsor Salt

CANADA TOO CONSERVATIVE.

IT is to be hoped that Canadian exporters will not be unduly long in learning to profit from the advice of the commercial agents stationed by the Dominion Government in the great export centres of the world with a view to building up Canada's foreign trade. Our manufacturers have been accused again and again of being woefully slow in adapting themselves to the requirements of foreign markets as well as lacking in enterprise in following up an opportunity once it is created. If one is to judge from the latest report of J. S. Larke, commercial agent for Australasia, there is still much room for improvement on this score. He says: "The usual crop of complaints has reached me this month. One is in reference to the old complaint of improper packing. A number of machines were ordered with definite instructions as to how they were to be packed. In due course an invoice was received with a covering letter stating that the instructions respecting packing were absurd, that they had made a study of it and had shipped in the manner they had found to be right. When the goods arrived half of them were found to be broken. Had the instructions sent been followed, the loss would have fallen upon the buyers, but under the circumstances it must fall on the shipper. It must be borne in mind that while Australians may occasionally make mistakes in their directions, they have had a much greater experience in the requirements for long ocean voyages than the majority of Canadians and their instructions are based upon this experience.

"Another is the refusal to meet the market. A Canadian manufacturer was assured of a good trade in boots and shoes if he changed his shape a little. He declined to do so.

"In another instance an article was getting fairly introduced with excellent prospects before it, but it was cutting into the trade of a United States manufacturer. The latter launched into liberal advertising, and not only regained his trade, but now has a very large share of it. The Canadian firm refused to expend any money in this way and has lost his trade, though his goods were right and his prices below the successful rival. Buyers admit this, but say 'people ask for the other and we must sell what they want.'

"In one instance a failure was due to shipping goods made of inferior material and much below samples. In another case it was a refusal to reduce prices when others did so. In some of these instances this state of things was accompanied by sharp comments upon the incapacity of the agent, as otherwise he would have secured a large trade. In some cases this is undeserved, as the agents have done their best. A Canadian would be unwise to do business if he cannot see a profit in it, and he has the right to say that he will only do it upon his own terms, but he should not be disappointed if he fails to meet with success when he declines to meet the conditions essential to success."

THE FRENCH TREATY.

IN connection with the proposed revision of the French treaty, the Maritime Merchant makes the valuable suggestion that the preference be made to apply only to French goods imported direct through Canadian ports, a similar rule to the one governing importations of Canadian goods into France.

Although a revision of the treaty along general lines would undoubtedly improve existing conditions, some such change as the one suggested is necessary if New York is to be effectually hindered from dumping into Canada surplus stocks of currants, Valencia raisins, Malaga fruits, filberts, etc., which pay specific duties. Canada's importations of these lines amount to $600,000 yearly, and the dumping of such goods on the Canadian market by New York houses tends to demoralize domestic trade.

PURE FOOD LAW.

IN our last issue reference was made to the laxity of the Inland Revenue Department in enforcing the provisions of the Pure Food Act. The case of the consignments of damaged walnuts salvaged from the Allan liner Parisian, which had been partially sunk in collision in Halifax harbor some weeks ago, was instanced. In this case certainly remissness was shown by the inspectors of the Inland Revenue Department.

During the past week auction sales were held in the City of Montreal in which partly-damaged groceries were sold, and by this time are no doubt in consumption. That a part of these goods consisted of canned goods which might ordinarily be supposed to be undamageable does not excuse the offering of other lines for sale. In the case of bottled goods, such as pickles, sauces, liquors, etc., the likelihood of serious injury is not so apparent, or likely to cause damage to the consumer, but cereals and other prepared foods packed in bags and cartons should under no circumstances be allowed for sale unless inspected and passed upon by the health authorities as fit to enter into consumption.

The local health officers of the City of Montreal, under the able management and sharp eyes of Dr. Dagenais, are confiscating every week thousands of pounds of meat, fish, game, vegetables, etc., that have passed into the hands of retail merchants through the commission houses and importers, and it is not asking too much from the Federal Government to see that proper inspectors are appointed to watch just such cases as that of the Parisian's cargo. It is an easy matter to do this, as the manifests of all imports are in the hands of the Customs authorities, and before any goods going into consumption are allowed to be offered for sale, inspection should be insisted on. In the case of wearing apparel and raw materials used for manufacturing purposes, where the damaged goods are not taken into the system, it would not, of course, be expected, or be just, to destroy them.

The Grocer hopes in the interests of the trade, as well as the consumer, that Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue, will take the time to look into this matter of damaged goods, and put into effect measures that will put a stop to the practice complained of.

TEA STANDARDS FOR CANADA.

FROM time to time during the past ten or twelve years, the subject of the establishment of tea standards for the guidance of Canadian importers and the protection of Canada's tea trade has received spasmodic attention at the hands of the importers of teas and the wholesale grocers. Some years ago there was every hope that something definite would materialize, and the steps taken then warranted the opinion that influence would at last be brought to hear upon the Government at Ottawa and an act put upon the statute books. But after petitions had been circulated and signed by the interests concerned; after a visit had been paid to Ottawa, and the matter laid before the authorities, the petition seemed to get lost in the archives or pigeon holes of the departments.

The opening of the new tea season seems to us a good time for the trade to get together and endeavor to secure the establishment of tea standards for Canada. While there may be difficulties in the way of agreeing upon a set of standards at once, these difficulties should not be insurmountable, and in order to open the way, we would suggest the adoption by the Customs Department of the United States standards. Any changes necessary owing to the non-importation of certain teas in Canada that obtain consumption in the United States, could be made later. If necessary, a commission of expert teamen might be selected by the merchants and importers, who could meet and select standards and then be authorized to lay their decision before the Government.

There certainly is cause for complaint on the part of importers of teas owing to the non-existence of tea standards at present, as buyers have no guarantee that teas bought will be allowed to pass by the Customs. In many ways losses are sustained by shippers as well as importers. It is not our purpose to enter into details with which the tea trade are thoroughly familiar, but to call upon importers to consider the establishment of tea standards towards a finality.

That the adoption of tea standards by the United States Government has done much towards keeping out of that country cheap, trashy and injurious teas, is an established fact. During 1904 only 11,824 packages of imported tea were refused admission to that country. In 1898 the rejected packages numbered 31,397. No stronger argument need be made than the foregoing statement of the benefit that has been conferred upon the tea trade and the consumer. We are not conversant with the modus operandi of the American standards, but it seems to us that what was done by the importers to the south can be done by the Canadian tea traders. The Grocer is desirous of assisting the importers in this matter and will be pleased to publish aay letters on the subject with suggestions as to the manner in which it may be best to establish the standards.

TAXING COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

THE Act imposing a tax on non-resident commercial travelers having no place of business in Canada, which recently went into force in Quebec, is on account of the ambiguity of certain of its clauses causing no end of dissatisfaction among the trade. For instance, one section of the Act says that "any person not residing in the province who is desirous of acting as a commercial traveler by soliciting or taking orders for, or selling goods, wares, or merchandise other than intoxicating liquors, or by advertising or offering such goods for sale, by sample, catalogue, price-list, for a person, firm or corporation having no place of business in Canada, shall first obtain a license therefor from the collector of provincial revenue from the district in which he begins his operations in the province."

An enactment of so sweeping a nature has rightfully called forth the indignation of a large share of the business community of Quebec, who, partial as they may be to Canadian manufacturers, do not relish the notion of having any restriction placed upon free trade communication with other countries. Enquiries have poured in to the Comptroller of Provincial Revenue, who in turn interprets the "mischievous" clause as not applying to the transaction of business "by correspondence," although it does make liable non-resident travelers of foreign firms coming into Quebec to do business.

It need hardly be remarked that the restrictions on the whole are without precedent. To prohibit foreign business houses not represented in Canada from sending samples here or catalogues, or price-lists, and to say they shall not advertise in a Canadian newspaper unless they get out a license costing three hundred dollars a year is sure to meet with opposition from the home as well as the foreign trade. It would seem further, that to the framers of the law there is something to be gained by business correspondence, exclusive of the use of price lists, catalogues, etc., although how it obtains is not apparent to the trade generally.

CRIPPLING INDUSTRY.

THE gross injustice that can be inflicted by a corporation upon private enterprise and industry is being shown in the discrimination of freight rates against Canadian manufacturers and business men. That such should be true and that actual harm has been done from this source may not be generally known, yet it remains that within the past fortnight the American Cereal Co. posted a notice in its works at Peterboro that the mills would be closed indefinitely, or until satisfactory adjustment of freight rates could be made. It is stated that they have no lack of orders or export consignments, but excessive freight rates are the sole cause of closing down. This is a fertile subject of investigation for the Railway Commission, and it is hoped that the matter will be taken in hand without delay, as to whether the charges of the railway companies are really menacing industry in such a manner. It is a serious matter and a question in which not only the manufacturer but the retailer and the consumer are vitally interested.

DISCRIMINATING AGAINST CANADA.

A SHORT time ago reference was made in this paper to a report that the direct steamship line sailing from Canada to South Africa was discriminating against Canadian shippers in favor of U.S. exporters.

The explanation of this irregularity would seem to be that there are several American exporting firms who have agents in Canada. These buy Canadian produce and ship the same to South Africa under their own American designation, when, in reality, it is of Canadian origin. Again, contractors are required under Government contract to give Canadians ten days preference, but Canadian shippers, it is claimed, engage space and, being unable to fill it, often sell their space to American exporting firms, and, of course, the steamship companies cannot refuse such cargoes. Up to within a short time ago, the steamships went out with half and three-quarter cargoes, and had it not been for the American produce shipped to South Africa from Chicago the Government would have been required to pay a much heavier subsidy to maintain the line than they have. As yet there is absolutely no return cargo. Within the last few months, however, every ship has gone forward with a full cargo, and all the Canadian traffic offering has been accepted.

Nearly all the large American exporting companies have distributing agents in South Africa. Canadians have not, and doubtless it would appear to one in South Africa that practically all the business is being sent forward by American firms as American produce. Speaking roughly, it is estimated that at least half the Canadian produce sent to South Africa goes from United States exporting firms, who buy in Canada. With reference to the large shipments of American hogs to South Africa, it is interesting to note that Canada increased her shipments of bacon to Great Britain from $4,000,000 in 1901 to $9,000,000 in 1904, while those from the United States have gradually fallen in the same years from $45,000,000 to $30,000,000. Canadian bacon is taking the market from the United States in Great Britain, on account of the superior quality of the former product, while the cheaper U.S. article is going to South Africa and other countries—a line of trade Canadian shippers are not anxious to cultivate. The Kaffirs want cheap bacon, and the Americans are in a position to supply their requirements. ,

FOREIGN SERVICE OF CANADA.

Those in charge of Canada's foreign commercial service deserve praise for the excellent work they have accomplished during the short time the system of commercial agencies has been in existence. To further perfect this service an arrangement has recently been made whereby Canadian commercial agents in foreign countries will undertake to translate into the English language, or into the foreign tongue, any correspondence Canadian firms may desire to hold with foreign firms. The Dominion Government is certainly sparing no pains in its efforts to assist Canadian exporters in foreign markets. It rests with the exporters themselves to make the most of the exceptional opportunities provided by the federal authorities.

DISCRIMINATION IN SUGAR PRICES.

CONSIDERABLE dissatisfaction has been expressed in certain quarters because the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, it is claimed, decides "what the freight rate (or price for sugar with rate added) shall be to every village, town, city, railway siding or wharf in the Dominion, regardless of the Summer or Winter freight charges by railway, boat or other carrier, and absolutely without considering the location of the place as to distance. By way of illustration the rate from Montreal to Toronto is fixed at 8c., from Montreal to Peterborough at 11c., while from Montreal to Port Hope it is 22c."

Although the whole question is much involved, in principle it simmers down to this: Is the wholesale trade the best medium for the distribution of goods from the manufacturer to the retail trade? If so, its interests have to be taken into consideration, and a wholesale distributing point treated somewhat differently from an ordinary point of consumption. In order to arrive at a uniform basis for the regulation of prices, the Guild have arranged what is known as "equalization rates," which are added to refiners' prices. In doing this an average is struck between say the rate from one of the Montreal refineries to a wholesale distributing centre, like Toronto, and then from Toronto to the actual point of consumption, say Port Hope, this average being the basis for regulating the Port Hope price-list. In some instances the rate from the refinery to the consuming point is more than from the refinery to the wholesale point of distribution. The reason is because the goods have to be shipped from the refinery to the wholesale point, and back again to the point of consumption. This accounts for the rate from Montreal to Port Hope being 22c., while that from Montreal to Belleville, the nearest wholesale distributing point to Port Hope, is only 8c. It must also be remembered that the freight rates established by the railroads out of Montreal to points east and west are considerably lower than from Toronto. A readjustment of this irregularity has been under discussion by the Toronto Board of Trade for some time, their contention being that the minimum basis on which freights are levied does not warrant the existing differences.

On the whole the position of the Guild is that under the equalization rate both the retailer and consumer are better treated than they were under the old regime when it was possible for a dealer to buy in large lots direct from the refiner and undersell his competitors. They further claim that with the exception of perhaps a few less-favored points away from distributing centres the trade have no grievance. The refiners make only a fair profit, and as for members of the guild, they can hardly be said to be a combine for purposes of self-aggrandisement with their percentage on sales averaging nothing more than four per cent.

As for the contention that the Guild will not permit sugar to be sold f.o.b. at refineries, etc., such an allowance would be contrary to the spirit of the present arrangement. It is also an error to suppose that the guild adjust the freight rates to suit their own convenience regardless of Summer or Winter charges. Any one conversant with the sugar business knows that there are separate freight schedules for Summer and Winter, in addition to the various equalized rates.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS OFF FOR ENGLAND.

WHEN the Allan liner Victorian left her docks at Montreal on Saturday morning, June 10, she bore away with her the largest touring party that has ever left Canada. Not only was it the largest in point of numbers, but also one of the most important to the interests of Canada. The party, consisting of 280, numbered among it the heads of some of Canada's most prominent manufacturing and commercial concerns and was in every way representative of industrial Canada. The excursion arranged by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has in view a well-planned tour of the industrial and commercial centres of England, and during the journey will visit Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bradford, Sheffield, London, Glasgow and Leeds, winding up the tour in London to participate in the Dominion Day celebration, July 1, at which Lord Strathcona is to preside.

The party is in charge of Mr. R. J. Younge, general secretary C.M.A., with the President, Mr. W. K. George, and Vice-President Mr. C. C. Ballantyne.

On arriving at Liverpool the party will be taken in special train for a ten-days' tour visiting the midland manufacturing centres.

The Victorian was decorated in gala garb, as this occasion is an event in the history of the first trans-atlantic turbiner. Mr. Hugh A. Allan and Mr. Geo. Hannah, general passenger agent Allan line, were present to see the distinguished party safely off. Needless to say the party had every comfort and convenience arranged for them.

Among the passengers more or less closely allied to the grocery and kindred trades were: Messrs. C. C. Ballantyne, Montreal; W. C. Breckenridge, Hamilton; J. Scott Chisholm, Halifax, N.S.; A. E. Dalton, Toronto; Jaffray Eaton, Owen Sound; H. Douglas Eby (The Eby, Blain Co., Limited,) Toronto; W. L. Edmonds (Vice-President MacLean Publishing Co.); T. H. Estabrooks (Red Rose Tea) St. John, N.B.; Roy L. H. Ewing (S. H. & A. S. Ewing), Montreal; J. D. Flavelle, Lindsay; G. W. Ganong, St. Stephen, N. B.; Robert Greig, Toronto; John Hendry, Brantford; Arthur Lyman, Montreal; D. J. McKinnon, Toronto; J. D. Nasmith, Toronto; C. R. Somerville, London; F. F. Telfer, Collingwood.

Before the Victorian sailed a deputation from the Montreal Branch of the C.M.A., headed by Chairman J. J. McGill, waited on President W. K. George and presented him with an address wishing bon voyage.

TENDER ACCEPTED.

Tenders were opened on Saturday morning last for the brick work of the new biscuit and confectionery factory of Foley, Lock & Larson, of Winnipeg. The contract was awarded to Sharpe & College, and work on the new structure is to be rushed ahead with all possible speed. It is the aim of the firm to have the factory in operation by the first of October.

Are You Handling

CELLULOID STARCH?

Live dealers realize that substitution doesn't pay. People enjoy being the judges of what is best for them, and it is wise policy to give them what they want.

The extra profit made from trial sales of unknown brands is very insignificant compared with the continuous profit from repeated sales, sure to be the lot of any meritorious article aggressively advertised to the consumer.

Celluloid Starch does what is claimed for it, and the present heavy demand is the result.

Quebec Markets.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, June 15, 1905.

TRADE conditions during the week show no change; business is only moderately good, and not what was looked for by the trade. Hopes had been entertained that with the advent of the warm weather a considerable stimulus would be given to business. The fact also that farm produce and dairy products were bringing good prices should cause buying on a freer scale, but so far nothing encouraging has developed. The sugar market has been so unsettled that not only the retailers but the jobbers have held off placing any large orders for their season's requirements. No change to date is noted in price; market is easy. Somewhat better business is looked for now that the first small fruits are arriving, and dealers cannot much longer hold off buying. Teas have shown a better business during the week. Japans, new season's May pickings, are in, and June's expected shortly, these latter ranging in price around 25 to 27c. Ceylon and India greens and blacks are steady and held firm. Some good trading was done during the week in Ping Sueys, some 2,000 packages changing hands. These were low grades. Molasses unchanged and little business going. Spices show a tendency to advance, particularly in peppers, gingers and nutmegs. Canned goods are very quiet, the arrival of fresh fruits restricting business in canned fruits. Vegetables also are quiet, tomatoes only seeming to keep up. American packers of tomatoes have advanced their prices, which means that no changes will be likely until new Canadian pack is in. Canned salmon are being booked at confidential prices. The situation at the coast is dealt with in another paragraph. Foreign dried fruits are void of news. Fresh fish are coming in, and business is good with the dealers. Rice and tapioca are meeting with better demand, as usual during the warm weather. Provisions are tending easier, the supply of live hogs being better. Hams and bacon working up in volume owing to warm weather demand. Flour trade is fair. The s.s. Birmingham, which sailed for South Africa last week, took about 10,000 bags for that market, and larger quantities are booked for this month's sailings. The same steamer also carried 4,072 bags of bran. Country produce, such as honey, maple syrup, beans, etc., are all on the quiet side. Hay is almost dead stock, and prices have eased off $1 per ton. Evaporated apples also quiet on account of arrivals of fresh fruits. The new style 2-lb. package (20 to the case) seems likely to become a favorite with the trade and the consumer.

Sugar—The sugar market continues unchanged. There has been some improvement in the demand from country buyers, which is no doubt due to the arrival of small fruits. It is reported that American refiners have been storing sugars in Canada in large quantities for some time past, with what object in view is not apparent. It may be that this has a tendency to keep prices easy, though the foreign beet and raw sugar market has lately shown an improvement.

Syrups and Molasses—The Barbadoes market remains quiet, as the demand is not heavy. There is, nevertheless, always a little changing hands nominally at 35c. car-load lots. There are also some offerings of Porto Rico and cheaper grades of molasses, which are quoted at from 2c. to 3c. per gallon less than Barbadoes. The demand for these is, however, limited in this market. Corn syrups are quiet, and there seems to be little demand at present.

Tea—Cable from Yokohama under date 10th inst. reports Japan market at present is anywhere from 2c. to 4c. under that of last season, crop good. Smith, Baker & Co. in their latest circular state that though the season opened up well, as far as the quality of teas was concerned, it is something of a disappointment in quantity produced and the rapidity with which the quality is declining. It was at first thought to be only a late season, by reason of the tardy appearance of warm weather, but something else must be sought for as the cause of the known shortage in growth of choice early leaf. The one thing apparent is that the trade must adapt itself to a limited supply of choicest teas. The joint shortage at Kobe and Yokohama, as compared with the receipts at the same time last year, is 28,500 piculs, and with 1903 is 39,400 piculs, to which must be added a probable shortage in purchases for native shipments at Shidzuoka, operations there being kept secret. The general condition of the tea market during the past week has been somewhat better. There has been no inquiry, and offers which would have been accepted some weeks ago are now turned down by the dealers, thus showing a better tone. Ceylon greens and blacks are practically unchanged. No cable advices are at hand. Indian market, which opened lately, furnishes meagre reports and of an indefinite character. Chinas, both black and green, are ruling low, and there is not much business doing in same. The market in Japan has advanced from 1 1-4c. to 2c. per lb. for May teas. The report is current that there will be few, if any, cheap teas marketed in Japan this season, planters finding it unprofitable, and no attention is paid by farmers to other products. Locally Japan teas show a better tone, and there does not seem to be a rush by holders to dispose of any surplus low-grade teas carried. From all appearances the market is still strongly in buyers' favor.

Spices—Spices show a tendency to improve, following latest New York advices, where market has been very active with good business in peppers, black and white. As the crop reports are coming in to a close, the actual shortage is becoming more clearly defined. The total amount of pepper is less than the actual world's consumption by several thousands of tons. This would indicate a striking possibility of higher prices. An advance in pepper may be looked for in the near future. Cloves in better demand. Nutmegs are slated for an advance. Gingers are in better demand, and owing to short crop will likely show higher prices.

Canned Goods—Canned goods situation is practically unchanged. There is not much business doing in any special kind, and trade is only fair. No new prices have yet been made by the Canadian Canners, Limited, and any business being done is of a confidential character. No reports are at hand as yet as to the prospects of the crop or pack. Canners, as usual, are insisting upon having orders placed early in order to insure same being filled, as late orders will only be accepted on condition of early orders being completed. The latest news from American markets is of an advance in tomatoes about 2 1-2c. per dozen, so that there will be no cheaper tomatoes until the Canadian pack is ready for delivery. In salmon no fixed prices are as yet handed out by the association (B.C packers) $4.75 and $5.00 f.o.b. coast are indicated as opening prices. Considerable sales have been made on private terms, quotations to be determined later by the association, when the extent of the run is more definitely ascertained. In this connection we notice complaints have been made by the Board of Trade at Vancouver that unscrupulous shippers are, and have been, in the habit of labelling inferior grades of fish with a higher class of label than the quality warranted. To such an extent has this been carried, that it was the subject of a motion made and carried by the Vancouver Board of Trade, to the effect that such practice was reprehensible in itself, as well as calculated to damage the reputation of B.C. salmon. It is to be hoped that the protest of the Board of Trade will have the effect of preventing a repetition of this practice by the culprits. The latest reports at hand from the coast would indicate that the run of fish has not been as extensive as was anticipated, but there is ample time yet for the season to keep up its record, as this should be a banner year.

Rice and Tapioca—Rice market unchanged. The Summer demand, which is generally a little better than other seasons of the year, has commenced to make itself felt. Tapioca is reported scarce on this market, and there is some inquiry for it. This article also is subject to large consumption in the warm weather.

Foreign Dried Fruits—In dried fruits generally there is practically little to report, the movement being of a dull character. Valencia raisins are still offered at very low prices for London account, but without finding easy buyers. Currants, however, show more activity at steady prices. Shelled walnuts have recovered from a temporary depression, and as the hot weather is now at hand it is not likely that import orders will be given, consequently holders are in a fairly good position in regard to stocks in cold storage. California dried fruits are given under special heading in this week's issue.

Fish—An interview with the leading fish dealers shows that trade is in a fine condition. Demand for fresh fish of all kinds is good, and supply is ample for requirements. Gaspe salmon is arriving freely, and prices have fallen off a little during the past week. They are expected to become still easier when larger quantities arrive. Canadian mackerel is in season at low cost. Fresh halibut is a little scarce, and price has advanced. More brook trout is coming, and will sell at easier figures. There is little doing in salt herring, in fact no stocks of consequence are on the market. Salt salmon, skinless and boneless cod, are freely arriving in fair-sized lots, and are meeting with ready sales at quotations. Demand for smoked fish is said to be small. There are three fast days this week (Ember days), and owing to this dealers have fine prospects of business.

California Dried Fruits—In conversation with The Grocer, A. B. Tippet & Co., Montreal, Canadian agents for Griffin & Skelly, speaking generally of the California dried fruit situation, advise as follows: The outlook, generally speaking, for California dried fruits is favorable, with a good crop in almost everything, with the exception of prunes and pears. Prunes will scarcely run, according to all appearances, more than 50 per cent. of last year, and the prospect is therefore that prices will range higher than the extremely unprofitable and ruinous ones of 1904, and it is expected that the advance will be about 3-4 to 1c. per lb. above last year's figures. The apricot crop, on the other hand, is excessively large, and while a

Sugar—The condition of the sugar market remains practically unchanged from last week. Although the consumption is normal for this season of the year, the trade, in view of the uncertainty of the situation, are buying from hand to mouth and only for immediate requirements. At present there are no particular indications, and it is hoped that the fruit canning season will soon begin to be an influence in improving local conditions. A number of parcels of West Indian sugar for future shipment were sold in Toronto during the week. In last week's issue occurred slight typographical errors in quotations on Redpath's and Acadia granulated, which are corrected this week. We quote the following prices:

Teas—Prices for commonest teas are hardening a little, and are now, or more correctly have been during the past month, at the lowest point they have touched since the month of June, 1900. On the other hand teas possessing quality are scarce and high and Ceylons of character that a year ago were worth 25c. in London, are now worth 36c., while commonest teas are at their lowest point. Local trade is satisfactory and there are no additional changes to record. We quote the following prices:

Rice and Tapioca—An advance of from ⅛ to ¼c. is reported in tapioca this week, as much as ¼c. higher for Sept. delivery having been paid during the week. The reason is because primary markets are becoming bare of supplies. We quote as follows:

Rice and Tapioca—

Foreign Dried Fruits—The prune market continues to put on additional firmness and the local trade report that small sizes, say 90 to 100's and 100 to 120's, are hardly obtainable. There has been an advance in Valencia raisins of 3 shillings per cwt. This advance during the week is largely the result of stocks at Denia being exhausted, the only available supplies now being at London, Eng. W. Rogers, of Denia, writes in regard to the new crop of Valencia raisins that the outlook for a good crop is bright and that if expectations are realized the market will doubtless open at a moderate figure. Shipments will probably commence at about the same date as last season.

Smyrna shippers of layer figs are as usual in the market with offers agreeing to sell figs still on the trees at fixed prices. The usual method of describing figs for export is to describe the width of figs packed in layers, 2 inches by 2½ inches, etc., but as figs can be split from stem to top on the underside and stretched much beyond the size of honestly-packed goods, quotations on this basis are sometimes misleading. Readers of The Grocer are advised to take quality and honest packing of fruit into account when making purchases. As to quality, the reputation of shippers in this regard must carry weight, and some of the most reliable pickers now describe their figs not only by breadth, but by length, and also by the number of figs to the pound. A small fig if stretched beyond its natural width will not give proportionate length and will show a greater count to the pound than honestly-packed figs of the same width. Thus some check is placed on dishonesty if only buyers will take care to protect themselves. We quote:

Foreign Nuts—The price of filberts has been advanced owing to reported damage to the crop and 51 shillings per sack is being quoted against former sales earlier in the season at 44 to 46 shillings. Early buyers have had the best of it in filberts now for two or three successive seasons. The peanut market continues firm, otherwise there are no other features to report. Evaporated Apples—The ruling price for evaporated apples ranges about 6¾ to 7c. This market is quiet and without interesting features.

Country Produce.

Eggs—Reports from the country indicate that the run of eggs at the present time is exceptionally light. Farmers say they are short of feed, and are not cultivating the poultry trade as much as they ordinarily do at this season of the year. Be that as it may, however, the fact remains that deliveries are only light to fair, and the tendency will be to divert supplies to the cities, leaving the dealers and packers through the country in an unenviable position without available supplies for pickling. Prices rule about 16 1-2 to 17c., fully 1c. higher than for the corresponding period a year ago. We quote as follows:

New laid eggs, per doz	0 16½	0 17

Beans—The demand for beans is easing off, and this article is attracting less interest if anything than during the last month. The wholesale trade are asking slightly higher prices than a week ago. We quote:

Beans, handpicked, per bush	1 80	1 85
" prime, No. 1	1 65	1 70
" prime, No. 2	1 50	1 60
" Lima, per lb	0 07	0 07½

Honey—Honey is dull, and nominal quotations rule unchanged from last week. We quote:

" Buckwheat, per lb	0 05	0 06

Maple Products—Late in the season as it is, small arrivals of 1905 maple syrup were noted this week. As might be expected, actual trade is slow. We quote:

" large cakes in tubs, per lb		0 08

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

Grain—Moderate trading continues, and the only feature in grain this week is an advance of 2 1-2c. in oats. We quote the following prices:

Hides, Skins and Wool—There is not much activity in the market this week, and prices continue as last advised. Receipts of new clip wool have been light, partly on account of the wet weather, and partly because smaller buyers in the country are picking up offerings, believing in the speculative possibilities of the situation and offering higher prices. We quote the following:

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. G. Ray is opening up a grocery business in Beeton.

Mr. J. Bowman, Barrie, is starting in the grocery business.

Mr. C. Stone has opened up a choice stock of groceries in Cannington.

Mr. J. B. Smith, a well-known retired grocer, of London, Ontario, is dead.

Mr. C. S. Blackwell, of the Park, Blackwell Co., Toronto, has returned from England.

Mr. F. C. McMurtry, of the McMurtry Co., Midland, spent a few days in Toronto this week.

Mr. F. A. Haddy, of Bowmanville, was in Toronto for a few days this week calling upon the trade.

Mr. J. H. Devaney, of Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto, left on June 15 for England. He expects to be gone for six weeks.

Mr. A. G. McNabb, Barrie, has sold his grocery business to Mr. Armson. Mr. Armson was for years associated with Mr. C. Perkins in the grocery trade.

Mr. S. C. Lindo, wholesale and retail provision and liquor merchant, Kingston, Jamaica, was in Toronto this week and paid a visit to the offices of The Grocer.

In last week's issue of The Grocer, under the heading of "Among the Travelers," appeared an item concerning Mr. J. P. Moylen, of John Sloan & Co., Toronto. It should have read Mr. J. B. Mayled.

Mr. F. K. Warren, of the Dominion Molasses Co., Halifax, was in Toronto this week calling upon the trade. He was introduced on the street by Mr. G. Musson, sen., of G. Musson & Co.

Mr. W. H. Millman, of W. H. Millman & Son, Toronto, left on Wednesday for a business trip to Montreal. He was accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Kathleen Millman, who are en route to the old country, where they will spend the Summer.

Mr. W. E. Foreman, Vancouver, is a visitor to Montreal this week. Mr. Foreman, who is traveling representative for Comfort Soap in British Columbia and the Northwest Territories, is making his stay with Mr. F. D. Cockburn, Westmount, the eastern representative of Pugsley, Dingman & Co.

Mr. W. H. Plummer, general merchant, Sault Ste. Marie, has been appointed by the Board of the Consolidated Lake Superior Company as one of the Government's representatives, in succession to Mr. N. W. Rowelll, K.C., resigned. Mr. Plummer is also mayor of The Soo.

Mr. G. W. Shoemaker, representing the A. Colburn Co., Philadelphia, was a caller upon the trade of Montreal during the week. Mr. Shoemaker, who has called upon the grocery and spice trade of Canada in the interest of his firm, reports the spice situation as showing a decided improvement, prices which have been very low tending upward.

Mr. Andrew H. Ewing, of S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, has met with a sad loss in the death of his young son, Murray Hamilton, last Saturday, June 10. The child had been ill for some weeks, but was thought to be recovering when he caught a severe cold, which developed into pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Ewing have the sympathy of a host of friends in their sad bereavement. The Grocer extends its sympathy to Mr. Ewing.

Mr. J. W. Bates, of The Bates Manufacturing Co., Limited, Toronto, was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer this week. Mr. Bates is making a canvas of the trade, introducing the "Peacock" brand of mince meats, cream cheese, unfermented wines, sauces, etc. This is Mr. Bates' first trip to the east, and his success so far warrants the belief that his company's products will obtain as favorable a reception as in the west. Mr. Bates left for Ottawa on Saturday.

Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, of St. John, well-known to the trade as the proprietor of "Red Rose" tea, has left for a holiday in the old country. He will be away for about two months, a part of which time he will probably spend on the continent. This is the first holiday Mr. Estabrooks has allowed himself for many years. He is one of the hardest working men in Canada, and has not labored in vain. "Red Rose" tea is now a familiar name all over Canada. We feel sure the good wishes of the trade will accompany Mr. Estabrooks on his travels.

Mr. T. T. Cartwright, who formerly represented the E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, and later managed the Newfoundland branch of the Vim Tea Co., has severed his connection with that firm and joined the executive of the Thomas Smyth Co., Limited, wholesale grocers and provision merchants, St. John's, Newfoundland. Mr. Cartwright will have charge of the sales department, and will specially devote himself to the tea business of the company. The many Canadian friends of the genial T. T. C. will be pleased to hear of his advancement, and The Canadian Grocer joins in wishing him and the company success.

Mr. Daniel Hockin, secretary Simson Bros. Co., Limited, Halifax, N.S., was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer this week, in company with Mr. J. H. Maiden, Montreal representative. Mr. Hockin is making a trip through Quebec and Ontario, visiting the larger cities in the interest of his company, and with especial attention to Sovereign Lime Juice. In conversation with The Grocer, Mr. Hockin stated that Sovereign Lime Juice is growing in such demand in the districts in which it has been placed before the public that they are practically pushed to the utmost to supply the demand. The merits of Sovereign Lime Juice are acknowledged by dealers in the eastern states, and a large and growing export trade has resulted. Mr. Hockin left for Ottawa on Thursday.

Mr. J. Arthur Irwin, Mr. Charles B. Tranton and Mr. A. E. Woodward, all of Liverpool, England, spent a few days in Montreal during the past week on their homeward journey from a trip through the United States and Canada. In company with Mr. F. D. Cockburn, of Comfort Soap fame, several of the prominent wholesale grocery houses of the city were visited, and the gentlemen expressed themselves as surprieds at the perfection of system, handsome sample rooms, etc., they visited. Mr. Irwin's firm conducts some one hundred grocery and provision stores in Liverpool, and Mr. Tranton's house some fifty odd stores in the same city. Mr. Woodward is connected with Edward Young & Co., distillers, Liverpool, whose reputation is world wide. They expressed regret at the shortness of time at their disposal, as they would like to have made a more extended tour of the Canadian business centres.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

A sad and unfortunate accident happened about six o'clock on Tuesday evening, June 13, whereby the youngest son of Mr. D. T. Williamson, of Brantford Starch Co., of Brantford, lost his life by drowning at Rosebank, where his parents had just moved to their Summer cottage. The little fellow was playing with some small children on a dock and fell in and was drowned before he could be rescued. Mr. Williamson was in Owen Sound at the time and received the sad news by telephone. We know his many friends throughout the Dominion will join with The Grocer in extending sympathy.

CLOSING AMERICAN BRANCH.

The American branch of the condensed milk industry of Henri Nestle, of Switzerland, which is located at Fulton, N. Y., is to be closed permanently on July 1. This is the result of an agreement between the Borden Condensed Milk Co. and Henri Nestle, who is now left without the competition of the Borden firm in Europe. It is thought that the trade agreement which restricts the selling of the products of the two rivals to their respective home markets will be beneficial to both. While the Nestle people claim to be well satisfied with their sales in America it is thought that the main object of their establishing the large plant at Fulton was to drive out American competition from France and Switzerland which they have succeeded in doing.

GOOD TO THE LAST BIT.

The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, Toronto, are issuing to the trade a fac-simile of an advertisement which will appear in the July number of The Ladies' Home Journal. It represents a sturdy youth of the MacLaren clan scraping the inside of a jar of MacLaren's cheese to the last morsel, and in artistic finish is equal to anything in the way of pictorial advertising that this firm have yet attempted.

B. C. Markets.

Vancouver, June 8, 1905.

THE era of development of British Columbia, which has now been fully reached, is that in which not only the requirements of the province in many lines of produce of the farm, orchard and ranch are supplied from home industry, but a considerable surplus is available for shipment to markets where a demand exists.

Of course, the principal product thus showing a surplus is fruit. The advance in the development of the fruit industry is marked by the fact that not only are various districts of the province organizing their local associations to handle the output of individual ranches, but each of these local associations is sending out representatives to dispose of the fruit direct to dealers in the Northwest and Manitoba.

The coast districts, including Victoria and the Fraser Valley, are each fully organized, and, of course, in the Okanagan district the various settlements are well ahead in this method of selling. The latest district to enter the competition is the Kootenay, with the City of Nelson as the centre. All along Kootenay lake and river from Nelson to the Kootenay Landing, there are scattered ranches from which considerable quantities of fruit are being sent in marketable condition. The first season for this district shows what may be done in a section of the province which has hitherto not been seriously counted as a factor in agriculture.

The new district is said to be preparing to market a surplus of 4,000 cases of strawberries in the Northwest. This, after supplying the demands of Nelson, Rossland, Trail and other cities. Tributary to the Nelson district of Kootenay is a section along the Kootenay River to Robson, and along the Columbia, as well as some appreciable area along Slocan river and lake. In addition to the strawberries and other small fruit, this new district expects to ship three or four cars of tree fruit, cherries and plums chiefly, this year. Many orchards set out of recent years are not yet in full bearing. The great advantage this section has in competing for the trade of Southern Alberta is that it is not more than 24 hours from the farthest part of the market it hopes to reach. That is a big advantage. Other parts of British Columbia are two days from the same localities. Of course the Okanagan and the Salmon Arm districts, on the main line of the C.P.R., are not more than a day from the part of Alberta centring round Calgary. These two sections never had a better promise of a bountiful fruit crop. Already large quantities of strawberries are being sent forward, and cherries are coming in rapidly. Unfortunately, in some of the older parts of the Okanagan late frosts caught the cherry trees, and the fruit half-formed from the blossom was badly injured, so that the quantity marketed will not be nearly as large as it would otherwise have been. The manager of one of the largest ranches near Vernon said that he did not expect more than a tenth of what he would have had.

On the main line towards the coast, at Yale, Spences Bridge, and other points, strawberries and early cherries are being marketed, while all the coast districts and the island are now in the thick of the strawberry picking season. It is worth noting in connection with the organization of local selling associations that a uniform price is fixed, and is being obtained to the manifest advantage of the producer, while the consumer pays no more than under former conditions, when shipments were haphazard.

There has been a decision arrived at on the part of the canners of Fraser River to pay 12 1-2c. per fish for sockeye salmon on the Fraser in the early part of the run, that is from July 15 to August 1. After that the price is to be 10c. for the remainder of the season. So far as known, the fishermen, both Japs and white, are satisfied with the arrangement.

Following the settlement of the question of dyking charges in the rich Pitt Meadows district, a large section of that land is to be placed in the market by the owners, to be sold for settlement. It is close to the City of Vancouver and directly on the line of the C.P.R.

Atlantic oysters and lobsters are to be transfered to the beds of the British Columbia coast for propagation. A large consignment is to be sent under the supervision of the Dominion Department of Marine and Fisheries from New Brunswick and P.E. Island. Ten selected areas on Vancouver Island and the mainland are to have the transplanted bivalves and crustaceans stocked on them.

Though the Japanese Government has raised the rate of import taxes on staples being shipped into that country, commencing July 1, it is the opinion of Mr. B. W. Greer, general freight agent of the C.P.R. here, that there will be no falling off in quantity of goods shipped by the Canadian route to Japan. Bookings for freight to be shipped in the near future have increased, instead of diminished. The recent heavy stocking up of Japanese merchants is, in his opinion, not at all because of the expectation of the tax, but because of increased demand in the home market for the goods.

In the Peachland district, on Okanagan Lake, there has been a recent business change of considerable importance, the Peachland Trading Co., Limited, with W. A. Lang as general manager, has taken over the business formerly operated by Mr. Lang, as well as the Trepanier Creek Saw Mill, and the general store and saw mill of H. McDougall & Co. This merger embraces practically all the mercantile business interests there, and the new company is strongly financed and capitalized at $60,000.

At Summerland, not far from Peachland, the Summerland Supply Co., Limited, has turned over the flour and feed business to the Summerland Fruit Co., Limited, a new organization which will also ship all the fruit from the district.

No doubt exists any longer as to the beginning of active operations on the lines of railway to be built into the Similkameen by the C.P.R. and the Great Northern. The contractor for the former line is already making contracts for supply of materials and provisions for a large crew of employes for the projected line which is to run from Spences Bridge to Nicola Lake this year. The Great Northern approaches the Similkameen district from the opposite direction, the south, and has already two hundred men and teams at work in that section. The G.N. branch is expected to reach Hedley this season.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., June 12, 1905.

NO special change is noted in the grocery market over last week. Collections still continue slow, but the dealers have made allowance for this, knowing the condition of affairs. The volume of passing business is only fair, and far from expectations at this season of the year. The outlook for future business is bright, and the crop prospects are good. If the crops turn out well, business is bound to become brisk. The produce market is very quiet at present, but steady. Butter is coming in more freely, and prices are a little easier. The best dairy stock in tubs is quoted at 20 and 21c. Creamery prints and boxes are marked at 22 to 23c., and for extra choice prints 24 cents is asked. The local demand is good, and considerable export business is being done. The price of cheese remains unchanged. Heavy exports of eggs still continue to the Upper Provinces, particularly to Montreal. Buyers are still on the island gathering in all the stock available at 16 cents. There is only a fair supply of Nova Scotia eggs coming in, and the demand is good. Prices quoted are 16 to 17 cents.

Potatoes—The market is well supplied. Several cargoes of P.E. Island stock are at the wharves. They are quoted at 30 cents to jobbers. One whole cargo of 700 bushels was sold at auction this week for 25 cents per bushel. There are some excellent New Brunswick potatoes on the market, quoted at $1 per barrel of 2 1-2 bushels. The export demand is light. Advices from Trinidad say that the market is well supplied with Nova Scotia potatoes. The last shipment from here by the steamer Truro realized $1.22 per 100 pounds. On P.E. Island prices are so low that the farmers will not ship them, and there are thousands of bushels lying in the cellars. Some are feeding them to stock, and others are boiling them and mixing them with meal to feed the hens. Quotations for the Boston market are about 32 cents.

Fruit—American strawberries were in abundant supply during the week. In fact the market was overstocked with fair quality berries. There was much cutting in prices, the berries dropping from 25 to 18c. per box. The demand was slow, and the dealers preferred to dispose of them at any reasonable figure rather than have them spoil completely and result in a total loss.

Molasses—The high price of molasses is still maintained. Large importations continue to be made, and more are expected. The market is very firm, and from the present outlook will continue so. During the week a Lunenburg schooner from Porto Rico landed at Halifax 408 puncheons, 3 barrels and 32 tcs. of molasses. Prices quoted here follow: Barbadoes 40 to 42, choice Porto Rico 38 to 40, extra choice Porto Rico 40 to 42, fancy Trinidad 42 to 44, choice Trinidad 35 to 36.

Fish—All seasonable fish continues in good supply at about the same prices as last quoted. The close lobster season has come into force on the western shore, and the last shipments to the American market were made on Wednesday.

Fruit Crop—Heavy frost during the week did much damage to small fruit, and also to the apple trees. The early varieties, especially in King's County, will suffer severely. In the lower locations the trees suffered the most damage, as they were in full bloom. Some of the orchardists in King's estimate that the ravages of frost will reduce crop fifty per cent. The late varieties will not be seriously affected. In the more westerly districts of Digby and Annapolis, the frost was not so severe. The hope is held out, however, that the blossoms of the early varieties will show some recovery. The wholesale grocers of Sydney have agreed to close their places of business at one o'clock on Saturday afternoons, except the months of November, December, April and May.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up till 12 a.m. Thursday, June 19th, 1905.)

WEATHER conditions continue favorable throughout the entire west, and the crop reports issued by the railways are very encouraging. With good prospects for an unprecedentedly large harvest, and with immigrants coming in by the thousands, the western trade are in optimistic mood, and all branches of the wholesale trade are experiencing an increased demand. It is true that money is still tight, but relief is expected when the season's crop has been marketed.

There are not many price changes to record. Sugar dropped 10 cents the latter part of last week, and it seems probable that any further changes will be declines. The trade are still buying in small quantities, and are probably wise in doing so. Further reductions have been made in Malta Vita, and the price is now $3.25 per case. There is a good demand for various lines of tinned meats for picnics, and some new quotations will be found below.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

THE consensus of opinion among the leading fruit growers of the Niagara district is that this year is going to see a bumper crop of fruit, better than for some years past, with the exception of apples. The culture of the latter grows less and less every year, for the reason that apple trees are more susceptible to the San Jose scale than any other fruit tree, and apples have been bringing such a low price that growers are warranted in changing over to other fruits. The recent dull weather has had the effect of holding back the strawberry season which is now fully two weeks later than last year. With the advent of warm, sunny weather, a fine crop is expected.

Grapes are a little backward in growth, but this should not prevent a heavy crop. Peaches are practically out of danger; the fruit is setting nicely and there should be a large crop. Plums look well, and prospects point to a crop above the average. Pears will be about average. The prospect for cherries is excellent, notwithstanding the fact that rot has appeared in one or two localities. In apples, red varieties will be short, but there will be a good yield of green. Summer and Fall apples on the whole will be medium. Raspberries, currants, and other small fruits look promising.

Planters in the neighborhood of Tampico, Mexico, are again turning their attention to banana growing for export. Some years ago boats left Tampico regularly with cargoes of bananas, but, due to low prices and other difficulties, the trade fell off and the production was consequently stopped. Now, however, it is being revived, and the chances are that it will soon reach its former importance. The Mexican banana is of superior quality and should find a ready market in Canada.

By an order-in-council dated June 9, 1905, the following sections of the Act respecting the packing and sale of certain staple commodities were assigned to the Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, for administration. In order to protect the public and box and basket manufacturers now complying with the law, directions have been issued to have these provisions enforced:

1. Every box of berries or currants offered for sale, and every berry box manufactured aad offered for sale, in Canada, shall be plainly marked on the side of the box, in black letters at least half an inch square, with the word "Short," unless it contains when level-full as nearly exactly as practicable (a) at least four-fifths of a quart, or (b) two-fifths of a quart.

2. Every basket of fruit offered for sale in Canada unless stamped on the side plainly in black letters at least three-quarters of an inch deep and wide, with the word "Quart" in full, preceded with the minimum number of quarts, omitting fractions, which the basket will hold when level-full, shall contain, when lever-full, one or other of the following quantities' (a) fifteen quarts or more; (b) eleven quarts, and be five and three-quarter inches deep, perpendicularly, inside measurement, as nearly exactly as practicable; (c) six and two-thirds quarts, and be four and five-eighths inches deep, perpendicularly, inside measurement, as nearly exactly as practicable; or (d) two and two-fifths quarts, as nearly exactly as practicable.

3. Every person who neglects to comply with any provision of this section, and any person who sells or offers for sale any fruit or berry boxes in contravention of this section, shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine of not less than twenty-five cents for each basket or box so sold or offered for sale.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, June 15, 1905.

AN active business in all kinds of fruit is reported during the week, with supplies of California deciduous fruit arriving on the market as well as domestic strawberries. The first car of California fruit sold on Monday, June 12, or two weeks earlier than last season, bringing fair prices. There is a new crate on the market for plums and apricots, about the shape of the ordinary peach box and containing three baskets instead of four. The new crate has an advantage over the one formerly used in that it is more convenient for handling and shipping. The first case of domestic strawberries arrived on the market on June 9. This is considerably later than the beginning of the strawberry season a year ago, and is due entirely to the cold, damp Spring. With warm, dry weather from now on, arrivals of domestic strawberries ought to be liberal. The Toronto fruit market will not be open until Tuesday, June 20, which is fully a week later than last year.

Arrivals of lemons are light and the market has firmed in New York until prices have advanced to from $3.50 to $4. A similar advance is expected here in a few days. Cantaloupes and water melons have arrived on the Toronto market and are selling for $3 to $4.50 a crate, and 45 to 50c. a crate, respectively. We quote as follows:

Domestic cauliflowers are quoted for the first time this week at from 75c. to $1.25 a doz. Texas and Mississippi tomatoes are in evidence in the local vegetable market, selling at $1.50 per case of four baskets. North Carolina cabbage has come into the market for the first time this season and green peas are quoted at $1.50 per hamper.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, June 14, 1905

A tour of the wholesale dealers shows the fruit trade is not as brisk this week as last. Demand in general is a little slack. Nine cars of bananas arrived last week and were rapidly swept off the market. Still more are coming, but dealers claim they do not sell very quickly, owing to their green condition and their rather small size. There are great quantities of pineapples on the market and they are selling well enough at low prices. Plums and peaches are also coming this week. Strawberries at an auction sale last week brought 14c. The demand for oranges has dropped. California cherries are in larger quantities and enjoying fair demand. We quote:

Vegetable market is in a pretty good condition. Canadian radishes are on the market in fair quantities, but seem to be moving slowly, demand for them having dropped, prices have become easier. Cucumbers are selling at from $3.50 to $3.75 and beans at $3.50 per bush. Demand for them is very fair. Cabbage is coming and meeting with ready demand. Canadian asparagus is not in in quantities sufficient to meet requirements. Five carloads of tomatoes in small boxes, 4 basket carriers, sold from 90c. to $1. Cranberries are practically out of the market as only a few

VANCOUVER.

Green Fruits.

The season for local strawberries is now well advanced, and those from Hood River, Oregon, are out of the market from now on. The local crop is bountiful, and yet, owing to heavy demand for shipment to the Northwest, where a ready market at high prices awaits the fruit, local quotations are not expected to drop much this year. $2 per case is looked on as the standard.

Cherries from California are plentiful, and local fruit is also coming in rapidly. The latter is always high, as there is never half enough to meet orders from the Northwest. Prices are about $2 per crate for California, with locals offering in small quantities at about the same figures.

Peaches, apricots and plums are in from California in limited quantities. Prices are still fancy, and much above what regular quotations will be a little later.

Vegetables.

Old potatoes still find sale, though the new stock is coming in from California yet. The price for the latter is 2 1-2 to 3c. per lb., while old stock sells at $20 to $30 per ton as to quality.

All sorts of green vegetables are in large supply, and at very liberal prices. Rhubarb is all local, of course, and is very cheap at 3c. per lb., and less.

Protect Your Customers and Increase Your Business

A customer who occasionally pays on account gives the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"I would go out of my way to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register. I have had so much trouble because my account has not been credited when I have paid money on account and I have been asked so many times to pay a bill which I knew had been paid.

"The National Cash Register owned by Mr. Hardy records all money I pay on account at the time I pay it. It is impossible to credit that payment to anyone else. For further protection I receive a receipt printed automatically by the register when the money is received and recorded."

A National Cash Register increases your trade and your profits by preventing mistakes and avoiding disputes with customers.

LONDON, ENGLAND, FRUIT LETTER

(Special Correspondence)

THE prospeets for Canadian fruit-pulp on the British market are not very bright. Large stocks of pulp are still on hand, left over from last season, and holders are selling at almost any priee when opportunity offers. Some of the large English jam manufaeturers have despatched their pulp buyers to inspeet the home fruit erops, but in spite of this the jam industry is about as dull as it eould be.

H. & T. Walker, of London, Eng., who are large importers of pulp, attribute this state of affairs, in no small degree, to the South Afriean war. Previous to the outbreak of hostilities, manufaeturers over here were building up a big trade in jam with South Africa, but during the war business was at a standstill and, in order to keep faetories going, those firms who had previously been eultivating their export trade turned their attention to the home market. The supply naturally became greater than the demand, and the jam-making industry has fallen off in eonsequence. Whether it was that Australian pulp shippers did not study the requirements of the market suffieiently carefully, or whether they were hoping for a reaetion which never eame, it remains a faet that they sent over to England far more pulp than could be used, so that importers were greatly over-stocked. As a niatter of fact, a eonsiderable quantity of pulp was reshipped to Australia.

It is, perhaps, a little too early to say anything definitely about the prospeets for Canadian green and fresh fruits on the British markets, for the trade over here are still dealing in old stocks, whieh, however, are being disposed of very satisfactorily. The weather has been very changeable, and domestic fruit-growers have been full of anxiety as to the welfare of their erops. On the whole, however, the English fruit crop is likely to be a good one, but this will not affeet the import of Canadian apples to any serious degree.

The outlook for Canadian eanned goods on the British market is decidedly unsatisfactory. This is a matter whieh deserves the most serious eonsideration on the part of Canadian eanners, for so long as canned goods are offered on the British market as they are now, the business done will undoubtedly be infinitesimal eompared with what might be aceomplished were other methods used. Canadian eanners eannot reasonably hope to do good business under their present selling arrangements. It is a mistake to think that canned goods can be sold in England directly to the dealers without any regard to brokers and commission men, and this policy reveals a lack of knowledge of trade eonditions in the Old Country. Brokers and commission men have far too much influence with dealers to be overlooked in the way they are by Cannadian eanners.

"We don't find any fault with Canadian goods," remarked one large importing firm to The Groeer correspondent, "but we do complain of the attitude of Canadian canners towards us middlemen. Still, as far as our own prosperity is eoncerned, it doesn't worry us in the least. The bulk of the dealers have come to us all the same, and we just push other canned goods and leave Canadian stuff to take care of itself."

If Canada were the only country in the world able to ship canned goods to England, things might be different, but, as it is, brokers and others over here stoek United States and other makes and in their own interests elub together almost uneonseiously in order to keep out Canadian brands. Inquiry amongst the best concerns shows that they have, to no small extent, got the dealers in their power, for when a dealer asks a middleman for some line which Canada does not produee the latter declines to sell unless he is going to have orders for other lines whieh Canada does produce as well, so the dealer has to give way. Neither British dealers nor British middlemen are fond of eombines, for they don't like to be dictated to, and, as one man remarked, "trade without eompetition (legitimate competition, the Englishman would say,) almost ceases to be trade at all."

Until Canadian eanners made their present arrangements for selling on the British market, Old Country buyers were willing customers, for the goods were of fine quality and the packages attraetively gotten up, but when they found they were going to be eompelled to take what was offered them without having the alternative of going elsewhere for Canadian goods they preferred to buy from other countries, where they could choose for themselves. When, however, Canadians ean see their way to meet the requirements of the British markets, no doubt Canada will be able to make very much greater strides in her export trade in canned goods, but meanwhile other nations are getting a hold on the market whieh will never be loosened, and the United States in partieular is building up an enormous business.

Mr. Marshall, president of the Canadian Canners, Limited, was seen in regard to the above letter, and stated that so far as his eompany was eoneerned there was no ground for the complaint. They did not sell to the retail trade but through the regular channels of trade, in fact through the same parties who had handled the goods of their different factories before the consolidation.

GUM MAN'S TOURING TRIP.

Mr. A. Bodenweiser (Bode), of the Little Bode's Slot Machine Co., Montreal, has just returned from a four weeks' business trip to the eoast. Mr. Bode visited Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver, Victoria, San Francisco, Portland (Oregon), Seattle, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago. In all of the Canadian cities a very large business is reported by Mr. Bode. His opinion of Winnipeg is that it is bound to become one of the largest commereial eentres of Canada and every evidence is on hand that its merehants possess all the eharacteristics of push and wide-awake business ideas that make for greatness. Mr. Bode was struck with the readiness of approach and promptitude of the Winnipegonians,—keen for business always, and entertaining after business hours. As an enthusiastic advertiser of Winnipeg and the west, Mr. Bodenweiser must be put down as a success.

OPENING FOR CANADIAN FIRMS.

James Methven, Son & Co., London, England, report to The Canadian Grocer representative that there is a good market in Britain for sueh Canadian confectionery houses as are looking for a field to increase their export trade. The demand is a growing one, and United States manufacturers are busy making themselves known amongst British consumers. It is mainly the medium-priecd eandies and eonfectionery that are required. The American methods of paeking are not, as a rule, suitable for the English market, but United States firms are always ready to go out of their way to seeure business, whieh is one of the reasons why they eommand the attention of British buyers.

TRAVELERS' GALA DAY.

THERE is to be a warm time in Hamilton around July 14 and 15, the oceasion being the gala day that is being planned by the Hamilton travelers. There are 700 of the ubiquitous fraternity in the Ambitious City and since some time back in the Winter Mr. Smye has been lying awake nights thinking out new and startling features for the entertainment of the boys. Mr. Smye is the president of the eommittee having the affair in hand, Maj. J. H. Herring is treasurer, and Mr. G. G. Austin secretary. The headquarters of the eommittee are at the Royal Hotel Cafe and eorrespondence directed there will be promptly attended to.

The fun will begin on the evening of July 14 with a concert in the Drill Hall, and eertain mysterious attraetions that have not yet been divulged.

Saturday morning at 10.30 a proeession will form at the Drill Hall, to mareh through the eity and finally take the eleetric ears for the Brant House, where a programme of sports will be run off. These sports will inelude ball games between Toronto and Hamilton travelers and between Toronto and Hamilton old boys. The committee positively refuse to give any details as to the other sports on the programme, but something highly interesting and characteristie is suspeeted.

Travelers will appear in eostume wearing white duck trousers and hat, with dark eoat. It is also learned that three or four bands have been seeured and that a pony parade is expected to be perpetrated. The prizes, it is said, will be numerous, eostly, etc.

The Hamilton travelers are extending their hospitality on this oeeasion to their brethren everywhere and extend through The Grocer a cordial invitation to all the fraternity from whatever part of Canada to be present. A good time is guaranteed.

CAPITAL STOCK INCREASED.

Foley, Lock & Larson, of Winnipeg, are increasing their capital stock from $300,000 to $500,000. This has been rendered necessary in view of the large capital expenditure on the new biscuit and eonfectionery factory which this firm are building in eonnection with their present warehouse. A cut of the Foley, Loek & Larson building, as it will appear when the addition is completed, appeared in the Export Number of The Grocer.

TOURING CANADA.

A REPRESENTATIVE of The Grocer had the pleasure of meeting Mr. D. Impart, of London, Eng., and Mr. E. J. Day, of Harrogate, Yorkshire, Eng., in Toronto this week. Both gentlemen are representatives of the Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls, and are paying a flying visit to Canada. In company with Mr. Hewitt they made a thorough inspection of the Niagara Falls plant earlier in the week, enjoying the hospitality of the management. They are delighted with the "home of shredded wheat and triscuit," and say there is nothing that can touch it in the Old Country. There is a steadily-increasing demand for prepared cereal products in England, thanks to the enterprise of Canadian and American manufacturers in introducing them to the British trade, and to subsequrnt advertising campaigns which have been carried on in a big way. It is the exception rather than the rule in England when walls of buildings, omnibuses and every inch of available space are not brilliant with resplendent pictorial advertisements of some new commodity which must sooner or later become a household word in the land. Shredded wheat and triscuit have been successfully established in the English market for about six years and are becoming second in popularity to none as they become better known throughout the trade.

VISITOR FROM SPAIN.

The Grocer had the pleasure of an interview on Monday, June 12, with Mr. Henry Vincke, of the firm of Miquel, Vincke & Meyer, San Felin de Guixols and Palafrugell, Spain, the largest manufacturers of beer corks in the world. Over eight hundred employes are directly engaged in the cork industry controlled by his firm. Shipments are made to all parts of the world, the United States and Japan being the largest consumers of corks. Business is also done on an extensive scale with Argentina, Brazil and Chili, as well as Australia and Canada. This is Mr. Vincke's second visit to Canada. Some member of the firm makes an annual tour of the world, as the business is one of world-wide connection, Mr. Meyer making the tour last season. Besides the Spanish houses, the firm have a large branch in the City of Mexico. While in Montreal Mr. Vincke made his commercial headquarters with S. H. Ewing & Sons.

OLD HOMESTEAD ON TOP

¶ It just took Old Homestead Canned Goods one season to get to the top of the canned goods trade of Canada. Plenty of room there—always is at the top—and so the Old Homestead Company is duplicating its plant and will this year turn out double the quantity of Old Homestead Canned Goods packed last season. The greater quantity of the pack is already sold.

What is the Explanation?

¶ The explanation is simple. The Old Homestead people set out with the determination of putting up the finest goods on the Canadian market. This was easy because they were in the centre of the best fruit and vegetable district in Canada; they had the benefit of years of experience; a new factory built on the most approved lines and fitted out with the latest improved machinery; and a process man who knows his business down to the ground.

¶ Naturally Old Homestead goods set a new standard. The trade recognized their superiority at once and put them in stock.

¶ The handsome labels and their inherent merit did the rest. They proved the come-again kind—made friends for the grocer who sold them.

THAT'S WHY OLD HOMESTEAD GOODS ARE IN DEMAND—
WHY YOU SHOULD MAKE THEM YOUR PREMIER BRAND.

BIGGEST CROP ON RECORD.

THE total acreage under all crops in the Canadian West this year is estimated at about 5,800,000 acres as compared with 4,500,000 acres a year ago. Allowing 1,300,000 acres for coarse grains, this leaves 4,500,000 acres seeded to wheat. Four and a half million acres at twenty bushels to the acre will give the west a crop of 90,000,000 bushels, the largest crop the west has ever produced.

The crop outlook in Great Britain remains on the whole very good, although there are not wanting reports that here and there the promise has deteriorated somewhat during the past month. The growing grain has stood the recent unseasonable cold without appreciable deterioration and in France and on the continent generally the outlook is above the average.

The United States Government crop report indicates a Spring wheat area of 17,613,000 acres, an increase of 472,000 acres over a year ago. The average condition on June 1 was 93.7, as compared with 93.4 last year, 95.5 on June 1, 1903, and a ten years' average of 94.4. The average condition of Winter wheat on June 1 was 85.5, as compared with 92.5 on May 1, 1905, 77.7 on June 1, 1904, 82.2 at the corresponding date in 1903, and a ten years' average of 79.2.

As figured by the statistician of the New York Produce Exchange, the Government report indicates a yield of 428,011,000 bushels of Winter wheat, comparing with the May estimate of 460,706,000 bushels, and with last year's harvest, 332,000,000 bushels. The indication on Spring wheat is for a crop of 299,421,000 bushels, against a crop of 219,164,171 bushels in 1904. The total estimated wheat crop is 727,432,000 bushels, comparing with last year's harvest of 552,399,517 bushels.

FUTURE OF BRITISH MILLING.

American millers will have to give up marketing flour in the United Kingdom in a few years. Then will come formidable competitors for the home trade of the United Kingdom from Argentina and Canada, with illimitable wheat fields. But Milling sees the vanquishment of these new rivals through greater centralization of the home industry. Then in time, as our port millers fit themselves for the keenest competition by having high-class mills in the most economical working situations, and large enough to be worked at a minimum of cost, we expect to see them pushing trade in every possible flour market abroad.—Milling.

A PROGRESSIVE FIRM.

The Western Canada Flour Mills Co., (comprising the A. Kelly Milling Co., of Brandon, and the Lake Huron and Manitoba Milling Co., of Goderich), in addition to a 4,000-bbl. mill in the vicinity of Winnipeg, will creet a storage elevator with capacity of half a million bushels, a warehouse capable of holding 60,000 bbls. of flour, and a complete line of new elevators throughout Manitoba. The latter, together with 26 already in operation will give a total capacity of two and a half million bushels. The organization will have a total daily milling capacity of 6,500 bbls. of flour and 200 bbls. of oatmeal, and will also continue the manufacture of salt in Goderich, the present output being 200 bbls. per day. The total capital, all paid up, is $1,500,000.

INEQUALITY OF RATES.

Wheat for St. Catharines and Thorold vis Buffalo is somewhat of a novelty, and yet such is actually happening as a result of the comparatively high freight rates charged by Canadian railroads. Ontario millers complain that the rate from Goderich to Thorold is seven cents a bushel, whereas wheat can be brought from Fort William via Buffalo to Thorold at a three-cent rate.

TO HANDLE THE GRAIN.

The Canadian Northern Railway have decided to build a new line extending from Emerson, on the boundary between Manitoba and Dakota, to Vassar, on the main line between Winnipeg and Port Arthur. It is expected that the line will be ready for the wheat rush of 1905.

The tendency will be to divert the traffic of all the south-western lines from Winnipeg to a route more direct by 25 miles. The Winnipeg yards will be relieved of the congestion arising from the handling of thousands of cars from South-western Manitoba, while the main line between Winnipeg and Port Arthur will be freed from handling trains of empty cars.

CEREAL NOTES.

The Calgary Milling Co. will shortly erect a 1,000-bbl. flour mill.

The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. estimate the wheat in farmers' hands yet to market at two million bushels.

The next few weeks will see plans completed by the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited, and the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., for extensive improvements in their respective plants.

Macaroni made from oatmeal is the latest cereal fad. It was made in France under a patent. But, however valuable a product it may have been, the manufacturers discontinued the making of it.

The Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls, N.Y., expect to have their new plant at Niagara Falls, Ont., in operation next week. The formal opening of the Canadian industry will take place on July 1.

At a recent meeting of the Cardiff Chamber of Commerce a resolution was passed urging the advantages which that port offers to Canadian flour milling firms who are contemplating building business premises in Great Britain.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

DARK vs. LIGHT CIGARS.

A PROMINENT cigar dealer in Winona in speaking with local newspapermen on the color question as applied to cigars said: "We are having the same trouble here that they are having in every other city. The smokers will not realize that a dark cigar is not necessarily stronger than a light one, and in many cases a great deal milder.

"I have cigars in my show case which are almost black, yet they are mild enough to satisfy any new beginner in the smoking art. In making cigars tobacco of a certain grade is always used for one brand and as a rule this tobacco, although of the same flavor, is of various shades ranging from a light brown to a very dark shade of the same color.

"We are trying to educate the public to the idea that color has nothing to do with the flavor of a cigar. At first it was thought that the best plan would be to have the clerks tell the customers of the plan, but it was found through experience that this scheme wouldn't work.

"The average smoker believes that he is a fit judge of his cigars and he will not stand for any one 'butting in' and telling him what cigar to smoke. The next scheme, and the one that is being tried now with great success is to reach the smokers of the country by the newspapers.

"The time will ultimately come when there will be just as many calls for dark cigars as the light one and the dealers will not have to put their dark brands away in storage."

CUBAN TOBACCO CROP OF 1904.

El Tabaco of Cuba has compiled the following figures of the Cuban Tobacco crop. The calculation was made on all tobacco marketed from April 1, 1904, to April 1, 1905, which the trade regards as the true tobacco year instead of the calendar year on which the Government bases its compilations.

The 1904 crop consisted of 428,108 bales, classified as follows: Vuelta Abajo 250,404, Semi-Vuelta 22,995, Partidos 60,420, Matanzas 241, Remedios 88,262, Puerto Principe 748 and Santiago de Cuba 5,038. The total 428,108 bales, is larger than the 1903 crop by 75,360 bales, and larger than the calendar year amount by 12,217 bales.

TOBACCO AND WIFE WANTED.

The Hopkinsville Kentuckian says Postmaster Breathitt has received the following letter from a former Kentuckian, who now lives in Oregon. We publish it to assist the writer in supplying both his wants:

"Erwin, Orc., feb. the 5, 1905.—Mr. Postmaster: Will yo please hand this note to some old tobaco raiser. I want 5 dollars worth of home made tobaco from old Ky., for chewing. I want as tobaco as their is and as good. I want to pay what it is woth. Would like if it was twisted. Whoever get this note anser at once. I use to live in Ky., in livingston co., and if there is some good old maid or a widowed lady a Bout 35 or 40, tell them to write to me if they want to change there name for a Better one. I was married once in Ky....I got my licens at smithland, was married at love's chapel, close to caryville. I got a fine lady; I want a nother one from old Ky., they are the people and most respected. Believe me, yore friend,

"A. J. Bess.

"P.S. Say lady, if you do write send me yore picture. I am this way, quick sales and good profits. My wife has Bin dead 7 years. I have no children. By By."

MEXICAN TRADE.

"Mexico imports considerable tobacco in the leaf, as well as in the manufactured form, principally Cuban cigars and cigarettes, American cigarettes and pipe and chewing tobaccos, and some French and German cigars and Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes. For the last fiscal year the importation of Virginia leaf tobacco amounted to 2,468,773 lbs., valued at $147,131 in gold; the importation of all other tobacco in leaf was valued at $32,896 in gold. Of this 'other leaf tobacco' the United States also contributed 4,675 lbs. The Netherlands and Cuba contributed 17,332 and 15,890 lbs., respectively, and Sumatra and Germany were next in order, with small quantities from India, Belgium, Turkey, Persia and even China, part of the tobacco from various sources coming through Great Britain. Higher duties were placed on Virginia leaf last year, and this operates somewhat to change the course of the trade. In general, however, the importation of leaf tobacco into Mexico is increasing, partly through the increased consumption of foreign tobaccos, but principally through the demand for foreign leaf to blend with the native leaf in the manufacture of cigars."

SMALL CIGARS NOT CIGARETTES.

Judge H. M. Elliott, of Marion, Ind., on May 23, rendered a decision in the case of the State vs. Irwin Rohrer, charged with having several cigarettes in his possession. Rohrer made the defence that he had in his possession small cigars. The court decided that the tubular rolls of tobacco, wrapped in a tobacco leaf, could not be definitely determined as cigarettes and dismissed the defendant.

RUNNING A LOTTERY.

William Carroll, the well-known cigar dealer, Hamilton, was accused at the Police Court recently of "unlawfully selling and otherwise disposing of lots and other means or devices for disposing of certain property, to wit, cigars." He kept a Ferris wheel in his store, and the police claimed that it was a violation of the Lottery Act. As it was desired by Mr. Carroll to make a test case, he admitted the working of the wheel, and was committed for trial. He was afterwards admitted to bail in his own bond for $400. John G. Gauld defended him, and S. F. Washington, K.C., Crown Attorney, prosecuted.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

TONNAGE is not increasing in steam, and certainly in sailing prospects there is not great encouragement. However, most of the big steamship companies at Montreal report that they are well booked up for June, and they have some for July, which goes to show that there is business doing. Not only that, but the manifests of the outgoing steamers all point to good trade in various lines.

When the s.s. Birmingham sailed for South Africa she carried an immense cargo for Durban, East London, Delagoa Bay, etc. The Lake of the Woods Milling Co. shipped some large cargoes of flour to Delagoa Bay, and the Sylvester Co., of Lindsay, seemed to have made fine business out there, for they shipped 22 cases of agricultural implements. Armour & Co. continue to pour their canned meats into the new British colony, and had on this steamer 200 cases of canned meats. L. H. Packard, of Montreal, is shipping quantities of his famous blacking to the southern ports.

Another noticeable thing was a shipment recorded as a box of catalogues from Sylvester & Co. Other Canadian firms should awaken to the use of catalogue service, which would stimulate inquiry and attract business to Canadian houses. Not long ago a commission agent complained to the office of the publishers of The Grocer to the effect that Canadians, especially firms like E. B. Eddy Co., Limited, Hull, were not getting the business that they might in South Africa.

Hay exports continue to be good, and reports from the different provinces show great possibilities for a fine crop. Lake freights have been better than usual so far in June, and the rates now being paid for grain and other products from Chicago east keep stiff.

Dairy produce is coming freely to Montreal, and the shipments are increasing every week.

OPENING BRANCH IN BOSTON.

Mr. O. Lefebvre, proprietor of Chinese Starch, was in Boston last week for the purpose of locating a factory site or premises suitable for a packing factory for Chinese Starch, for the American market. Since opening up a branch at Rouses Point, N.Y., his trade in the eastern states has increased to such an extent that a larger and more central shipping point had to be secured, and it is expected before very long a thorough canvass will be made of the eastern states. Mr. Lefebvre is a thoroughly up-to-date and energetic Canadian, and has confidence that his goods will be appreciated by the trade south of the line, as much as they are in Canada.

OPENED UP CANADIAN OFFICE.

FINANCE

CANADIAN banking institutions have a record of solidity which is a source of strength and confidence to depositors. A further security to the public is being provided by a strict enforcement of the Bank Act. This Act provides that the title bank, banking company, banking house, or banking association, shall not be used without the express permission of the Ottawa Government, and without using at the same time the words, "not incorporated." According to the officials of the Canadian Bankers' Association, the indiscriminate use of the words bank, banking company, etc., utterly without legal authority, by people more or less irresponsible, have in many cases deluded the public and been the cause of financial losses by people who were ignorant of the facts.

Reports on the life insurance business transacted in Canada during the year 1904 show that this form of investment is held in high favor in this country. There were in force in Canada at the close af 1904 in the stock or old line companies, 656,891 policies, to the extent of $587,873,767, an increase over the figure for 1903 of 53,-068 policies, and $39,130,767. The main items of the business of 1904 are given as follows: Premiums, $19,-969,324; amount of new policies, $98,306,102; policies became claims, $8,802,118; claims paid, endowments included $8,815,839. Canadian companies, it is a satisfaction to note, continue to hold the lead they won years ago, and wrote $11,959,100 of the total of $19,969,324 of new business recorded. The division was as follows: Canadian companies, $11,359,100; British companies, $1,-473,514; U. S. companies, $6,536,710.

It would appear that the newer companies to enter the field find the work of establishing their claims to a share of the business a rather hard one. There are 21 Canadian companies doing business, and five of them wrote seven and a half millions of the less than twelve millions of new policies the whole are credited with. It evidently takes time to organize the staff that is necessary to create and maintain a large life underwriting business under modern conditions. There is plenty in the records of the old competitors, however, to encourage the new. Since 1875, to which year the records go back, the amount of life insurance carried in Canada in stock companies has grown from eighty-five to five hundred and eighty-seven millions. It has been multiplied almost seven times, and the limit does not seem to be reached yet.

The Postmaster General of Canada has carried out an investigation into the question of telephone systems, which should be productive of much good. The possibility of the successful working of small, independent lines has been amply proven, and the cost has in many cases been exceedingly low. Municipalities will now have some definite information to go on in allotting telephone franchises. This is a question of growing importance, and the evidence which has been taken during the present parliamentary inquiry comprises an intelligent presentation of the whole matter. The reports issued by the Government are voluminous, but they contain a complete discussion of the matter and are worthy of the closest consideration.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

ORDER IN INTERIOR DISPLAY.

ASK the average layman to point out an example of neatness and order in contrast with one of topsy-turviness in an interior store display, and nine chances out of ten he will select a drug store and a grocery. Most druggists pride themselves on their store interiors, and do not scorn the minutest details which may help to make such stores inviting. Unfortunately it is the exception and not the rule when the village grocer takes the trouble to make his store other than a ware or storehouse. The grocer says to himself, the consumer has got to have the necessities of life, so why should I concern myself except to have the goods on hand and be ready to make the exchange at fair profit to myself.

Owing to the keenness of competition, and to the fact that an attractive store is an invaluable asset as a trade-bringer, no grocer can afford to be a whit less careful about appearances than his fellow tradesman, the druggist. The grocer cannot complain that his staples do not lend themselves to orderly arrangement as well as druggists' sundries. In these days of package goods the grocer has an opportunity to build up attractive displays such as exists in no other branch of the trade. The accompanying illustration, the interior of the "Pantry" grocery, Vancouver, shows what may be accomplished along these lines. The features most to be commended are the neatness and compactness characteristic of the shelf displays, and the lavish use of silent salesmen for showing fancy grocery staples and foodstuffs, including Christie Brown's biscuits, bottled condiments, fruit juices, etc., are displayed to excellent advantage on low, protruding shelves at the front of the store.

If one mistakes not the proprietor of the "Pantry" Grocery has also utilized the ever-useful "sign card" to talk goods, which, of necessity, must be kept in the background. There may be a bargain in sugar or canned goods, and yet the grocer may not be disposed to wear out the patience of his customer with shop-talk. Sign cards printed or painted, and fine lookers, are just the things to attract and call attention to these lines. Once customers begin to ask to see them, a sale is half completed.

Interior Pantry Grocery. J. F. May, Vancouver.

BRILLIANT ADVERTISING DISPLAY.

THE GROCER is reproducing in this week's issue one of the most successful attempts in the way of sign advertising that have yet been seen in this country. Never has so much money and ingenuity been expended on pictorial advertisements as during the last year or two. As you speed through the country on a railroad train your view is brightened by one continuous series of brilliant signboards, some of them almost approximating to works of art.

Holbrooks, Limited, manufacturers of malt vinegar, Worcester sauce, etc., Birmingham, England, have seized upon a novel idea and are utilizing the upper fronts of prominent grocery stores for advertising purposes. The accompanying illustration, which is one of their most successful efforts, shows the store front of Medland Brothers, King street east. The subject is a statue of Shakespeare, and some of the best artists in Canada have been employed to ensure the successful carrying out of the design. The picture covers the entire front of the building from the top of the store window and extends eight feet above the roof. The quotation "Not for an age, but for all time" has already "caught on" with the people of Toronto. Similar displays are to be seen in a number of prominent positions throughout Toronto, and it may truthfully be said that the town is being painted red with the merits of Holbrook's sauce. The firm are about to begin a second pictorial advertising campaign in the City of Montreal, as a most effective means of placing their name and goods before the public. The Canadian representative of Holbrooks, Limited writes to say that in his efforts to introduce Holbrook's sauce to the trade generally he has found The Canadian Grocer of great assistance.

It is worth considering

The sale of chocolate is increasing every year. It's the kind the public ask for, because they like it. All styles of packages. Try it.

AMONG OURSELVES

A ROYAL NUMBER.

THE Spring and Export Number of The Canadian Grocer for 1905 is just to hand and is full of half-tone views and scenes of the two new provinces of the Northwest, an illustrated article on the British Columbia Fruit Exports; an account of a trip to the West Indies; the fisheries of Canada; Tobacco Culture in Cuba, etc. There is a special article on Canadian Apple Growers by A. A. McNeil with a beautiful view of the Hillcrest Orchards, Kentville. A strong article full of interest to the people of Kings Co. "Down by the Sounding Sea," telling the Upper Province people of our beautiful country. This article is fully illustrated with views on the farms of Capt. C. O. Allen, J. E. Kinsman and his famous Gravenstein apple tree; also a May day picture of Woodlawn farm and a good word for Kentville and the Cornwallis Valley. Among the contributed articles is one from M. G. DeWolfe, of Kentville, on Nova Scotia and its advantages. When one considers that this special number contains over 200 pages, one can form some idea of what the MacLean Publishing Co. have done in getting out such a royal number. The cover pages are done in colors and are very fine. Want of space prevents us from referring to the hundreds of other good things, but we predict that this number of The Canadian Grocer will fasten the attention of thousands on what Canada is and can do. All praise is due the company who sent out such a trade journal as this. — Western Chronicle, Kentville, N.S.

Smartest Journals Published

... must have been ... out in the back-blocks that such a poorly equipped newspaper office was found, for our kinsfolk across yonder have little or nothing to learn in the matter of running a newspaper or journal. Indeed our contemporary the "Canadian Grocer" is beyond question one of the smartest journals published in any part of the world in the interests of the trade it represents. Each succeeding issue shows fresh evidence of vitality, and in this respect forms a pleasing contrast to the failure of our Australian friends to support even a single organ for the grocery and provision trades. Why the "Australian Grocer" should have failed, like its predecessor the "Australasian Grocers' Journal" to justify its existence, is difficult for us to understand, for we have ample evidence in our own subscription list that it would not be for any want of appreciation on the part of wholesalers and retailers throughout the Commonwealth, for a good readable and instructive journal

From Grocery London Eng.

HEARD ACROSS THE SEA.

A Canadian buyer who recently paid a visit to our London, Eng., offices was heard to remark afwards that they were the brightest and most tastily-arranged offices he had been in during his stay in London.

In connection with Canada's growing foreign service, a prominent Canadian business man relates an interesting incident of the Canadian Commercial Agency in Paris, France, in charge of A. Poindron. Mr. Poindron is kept busy answering inquiries from French manufacturers and exporters in regard to Canadian trade. "I find it convenient," said he, "to have two publications on my desk constantly, one of them The Canadian Grocer." As an epitome of the up-to-date trade information of Canada, Mr. Poindron finds The Grocer invaluable.

The Carter-Crume Co., Toronto, report an inquiry from Limerick, Ireland, as a result of an "advertisement seen in The Grocer."

The manager of our British and foreign office in London, Eng., frequently receives curiously-worded inquiries from continental correspondents, and one from the Netherlands under date of May 16 may be given as an instance. It reads:

> MRS ——
> With pleasure I reccive from you a latest sample copie of your paper with conditions at subscription and avertising prices. In awaiting of them I am
> Yours very truly
> D—— S———
> Wholesale Merchant
> Zwolle, Netherlands.
> Be so kind and give me the address of the expedition from the "Brushmaker" of your city; my thanks therefore always to your service. Can you me give copie of Dry Goods paper and others?

In response to requests of this sort a great many copies of our papers are sent to continental cities from time to time.

WHAT THE TRADE THINK.

H. Gilbert Nobbs, Canadian representative of Holbrooks Limited: "I have only just had an opportunity of looking at your Special Spring Number, and am writing to offer my congratulations. It speaks well for Canadian enterprise that such a valuable and interesting volume can be produced without extra cost to your subscribers."

Ingersoll Packing Co., Ingersoll: "We are much pleased with the article in The Grocer on 'returned drafts.' We think this matter has been a very troublesome one to manufacturers and wholesale merchants in the past. We don't think those who return drafts would do so in many instances if they realized fully the reaction against themselves, as stated very plainly in your article."

Peterborough Cereal Co., Peterboro: "The Special Number of The Grocer reflects credit upon all concerned. We are particularly pleased with our ad., and metaphorically pat you on the back. The ad. has been seen by at least half a dozen people, according to letters of inquiry received."

J. Langrall & Bro., Baltimore, Md.: "We are in receipt of your Spring and Export Number of The Grocer, and wish to congratulate you upon its splendid 'get-up,' both from a typographical standpoint and for the value of the many special articles. It is quite different from some efforts that we have noted in trade paper special numbers, and you can justly feel proud of the achievement."

A GARDEN PARTY AT A FACTORY.

A GARDEN party at a factory—it seems an anomaly, doesn't it? Ordinarily, one does not speak of gardens and factories in the same breath. There is one factory, however, to the surroundings of which the name garden can be fairly applied. When the National Cash Register Co. recently invited the people of Dayton, Ohio, to spend an evening at its model plant, it was really a garden party which the 25,000 guests attended.

The factory, itself, was not open, but the big buildings were illuminated from top to bottom by 10,000 incandescent lights and 300 arc lights—more than the average city of 25,000 uses. The grounds, lawns, flower beds and shrubbery patches were all open to the people, who spent their time strolling about the beautiful N.C.R. vista, listening to the music of the N.C.R. band, and enjoying the brilliant spectacle of the illumination. Lights, music, flowers, shrubbery, greensward, trees, guests in Summer clothing —all the characteristic features of a garden party were there—and all this at a factory.

The "garden party," which lasted for three evenings, was arranged by the N. C.R. Co. to celebrate the completion of its new power plant, and to give the people of Dayton a chance to see what experts declare to be the handsomest and, for its size, the best-equipped electrical station in the country.

The new power plant of the N.C.R. is interesting as showing what can be done in the way of making attractive an ordinarily prosaic part of a big industrial establishment. Externally, the building, itself, is unusually handsome. Built of warm red brick, its architecture is simple and dignified. It does not pretend to be anything but a power house, and accordingly its characteristics are strength and solidity. Shrubbery about the base of the building and vines around the large windows relieve the walls of monotony.

Inside the power house the visitor is struck with the beauty of the engine room. Polished maple floor, walls wainscoted with white enamel brick and finished above in cream color make the interior as bright and clean as any parlor or ball room. Contrasting with the light color of the walls and floor are the dark green bodies of the four big engines, their sombre hue relieved by polished steel trimmings.

The boiler room of the power house is not less interesting than the engine room. Though, of course, not so beautifully finished, it impresses the visitor by its cleanliness. Automatic stokers feed the sixteen great furnaces with coal, and the ashes are removed through a tunnel under the grates almost entirely without the intervention of human labor. Perfect ventilation keeps the room comfortably cool.

The equipment of the power house is an outward sign of the growth of the business of the N.C.R. Co. Until six years ago a single engine of 300 horse-power was sufficient to turn the wheels of the entire plant. In 1899 a 600 horse-power engine and dynamo were added. Before three years had passed, however, increased demand for the factory's output necessitated further enlargement of the plant and consequent extension of the power station. In 1902 a 1,200 horse-power compound engine and generator was installed. Two years later it was necessary to duplicate this unit, and now the total equipment of the plant is 3,300 horse-power. The boilers are capable of developing 5,500 horse-power, if needed.

The increase in business illustrated in the growth of the power plant is also shown in the development of the company's product. Twenty years ago the

N.C.R. factory turned out one style of register, a crude affair, which recorded sales by punching holes in a strip of paper. To get the total of the day's business one counted the holes, multiplied the number of holes by the denomination of the key pressed and added the results. To-day the Dayton factory turns out 403 different styles and sizes

ST. PAUL JOBBERS VISIT WINNIPEG.

ON Wednesday of last week a visit was paid to Winnipeg by the St. Paul Manufacturers' and Jobbers' Union, the visitors coming on a special complimentary train over the "Soo line," and being guided by E. D. Parker, assistant general freight agent, and W. G. Thorn, assistant general passenger agent of the "Soo line," both of St. Paul. About fifty representative business men of St. Paul availed themselves of the railway's invitation and came to Winnipeg to learn a little something of the Canadian Northwest and of the opportunities for extending business connections on this side of the boundary.

The visitors were given a cordial welcome by the Winnipeg business men, headed by Mayor Sharpe and A. L. Johnston, president of the Board of Trade.

The special committee appointed to extend the welcome of the city consisted of Mayor Sharpe, Aldermen Gibson, Wynne, Latimer, Harvey, Finklestein, Cockburn, Campbell, Sanderson, Horne, McCharles, Fry and Cox, and from the Board of Trade, President A. L. Johnston, Vice-President G. F. Carruthers, Secretary C. N. Bell, A. Strang, F. W. Drewry, G. F. Galt, N. Bawlf, J. H. Ashdown, H. W. Hutchinson, William Georgeson, John Love, F. L. Patton, H. M. Belcher, and E. E. Lightcap. Several of the members of the reception party were unable to be present but a sufficient number of leading citizens were on hand to assure the visitors of their cordial welcome.

The guests were taken through the principal parts of the city in open cars and were then entertained at luncheon at Deer Lodge. The afternoon was spent in inspecting the city warehouses.

AMONG THE BOARDS OF TRADE.

AT a meeting of the Council of the Halifax Board of Trade on June 13, a report of the Commercial Committee respecting the terminal facilities at Halifax was considered and a memorial to the Minister of Railways adopted.

Some time ago Halifax flour men, through the Board, applied to the traffic manager of the I.C.R. for a reduction in the export flour rates from Ontario points to Halifax, Europe, the West Indies and Newfoundland to the New York basis. After careful consideration by the Canadian Freight Association it was decided that the request of the Board could not be granted, the reason being that the distance was too great. The present difference is one cent per hundred pounds over the export rate to St. John. The Board will continue to press for the reduction and may place the matter before the Railway Commission for adjustment.

The Council also considered a request for support from the commission merchants of Halifax, who are agitating for a refrigerator car on the D.A.R. line. At the present time there is not a car of this class on the D.A.R. The Council consider it necessary to have refrigerator cars for the carriage of perishable freight and will endeavor to have the management procure such accommodation.

At the last meeting a request for the removal of duty on shooks was considered. These shooks are sent from Canada to the West Indies, there manufactured in the form of boxes, and when returned duty is charged. The Tariff and Customs Committee placed the matter before the Collector of Customs and the result has been most favorable. In future all packages, containing fruit or onions, if Canadian manufacture when imported, are to be admitted free of duty, but it will be necessary for exporters to certify on invoice as follows:

"I hereby certify that the packages containing the above-mentioned fruit, etc., are the production and manufacture of the Dominion of Canada."

LIVING ON $1.27 PER WEEK.

CAN a man subsist on $1.27 worth of food per week and retain his full vigor and strength?

A great many experiments have been tried within the last two or three years to ascertain just how little a person requires in order to keep in a sound and healthy physical condition. While no sensible person desires to lower the standard of living, the facts adduced by these experiments reveal many of our most glaring food faults. They tend to show, for instance, that the most nutritious foods, such as cereals, are the simplest and cheapest, while many of the foods that are almost lacking in tissue-building or strength-giving elements are the most costly.

Hugh Sutherland and A. C. Payne, two lads who had to "work their way" through Wabash College at Crawfordsville, Indiana, solved this question in a unique and interesting way. The necessity for adopting a cheap but nutritious diet led them into by-paths of dietetic knowledge of which they had not dreamed. They discarded meat entirely, using pecan nuts which they purchased in the form of butter at 35 cents a pound. They also avoided white flour products, eating largely of whole wheat foods, rolled oats, milk, oysters, vegetables, eggs and fruits. They gave their expenditures for the week beginning Wednesday, October 14, as follows:

Wednesday—Shredded wheat, 11c.; milk, 15c.

Thursday—Bread, 25c.; butter, 25c.

Friday—Bananas, 5c.

Saturday—Shredded wheat, 11c.; blackberries, 15c.

Sunday—Milk, 10c.; oysters, 10c.

Monday—Fish, 10c.

Tuesday—Shredded wheat, 11c.

Total for week $1.48, actual expense for food.

The average weekly expenditure for food for the entire college year was $1.27. And these young men not only made a high average in their studies, but took an active part in outdoor athletics, one of them being left-guard on the 'Varsity football team. Their daily programme also called for physical exercise morning and evening and a cold bath in the morning. Under such a regime their health was perfect.

The important and instructive thing to be learned from the experience of these young men is that they got more nourishment and more tissue-building material from their food than most Americans get from a dietary that costs many times this amount.

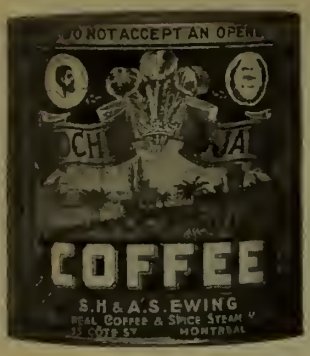
FISHERIES OF NOVA SCOTIA.

NOVA SCOTIA bank fishermen report less than the average Spring catch. To make up for the shortage the market is ruling very strong; cod is selling at what a few years ago would have been considered fancy prices, and the indications are that present prices will be maintained, if not advanced. The New York and Boston markets were never so bare of cod, while there is a strong demand for dry and pickled fish from the West Indies, South America, and other tropical countries.

The bank fleet usually makes two trips, one called the Spring, and the other, the more important, the Summer trip. The Spring trip occupies about six weeks, though it rarely happens that the vessels stop on the fishing grounds for a week at a time during this season of the year, being obliged to run into port frequently for bait or shelter. The Summer trip usually occupies about three months, but may extend to five. Some vessels make a third trip in the Fall. On the Spring trip a catch of from 300 to 500 quintals is considered a fair average, while for the Summer trip a catch of from 1,000 to 1,400 quintals means good money for owners and crews. Some vessels do even better, hailing for as high as 2,000 quintals or more, and sometimes paying for themselves in a single season after settling all working expenses.



The shore fishermen have had a fairly prosperous season, though at the beginning the prospects seemed rather discouraging. The dog fish, which have caused so much annoyance and loss in recent years, appeared at an unusually early date, creating much anxiety among the fishermen, but luckily they did not return in their usual swarms, and after a while disappeared as mysteriously as they came. In some localities, however, skate fish have played havoc with the fishermen's gear. At the opening of the season, too, fish were somewhat scarce, but recently good catches have been made all along the seaboard. The lobster catch, though not up to the average, has been profitable, prices ruling high with a good demand. It may be mentioned that in recent years the capture of lobsters has become the most important branch of the fishing industry in Nova Scotia, the annual returns from this source being greater than that of any other fishery in the province, not excepting the bank and shore cod-fishing combined.

The run of herrings has been larger than for some years past, and as a result of the action of the Newfoundland Government in refusing to allow United States fishing vessels to purchase bait in Newfoundland waters there has been a strong demand for these fish—so much so that herrings that usually sell at $1 per barrel have brought as high as $5 as bait supply.

FRAUDULENT BRANDS.

THE matter of preventing the use of fraudulent labels on canned salmon sent from British Columbia to Australia, which was discussed at the Vancouver Board of Trade, June 6, is one deserving attention. It appears that Skeena River salmon holds a high position in the Australian market. As a result, fish from other rivers in Northern British Columbia—of inferior quality—is being shipped to Australia labelled as Skeena River salmon, this, of course, injuring the reputation of the real article and damaging the British Columbia genuine product in the market.

The salmon industry is one of the most important in the Pacific province. The permanent interest of the fishery requires that every effort be made to prevent unfair and dishonest competition such as that referred to above, since the retention of foreign markets is essential to the prosperity of the industry.

EGG AND POULTRY MARKET OF GREAT BRITAIN

(Our London Correspondent.)

THE London, Eng., correspondent of The Canadian Grocer, when making inquiries as to the possibilities for Canadian poultry on the British market, called upon Mr. Brooke, of Geo. F. Brooke & Co., a firm well known to poultry shippers in Russia, the United States and Canada. Mr. Brooke was able to supply him with considerable information which should prove of value to those Canadians who are anxious to work up a connection with the Old Country.

That there is room for Canadian poultry on the British market is undoubtedly a fact. Many years ago, when England first began to import this class of goods, the United States packers were easily first in the supply of fowls. Later on; however, Russia entered the field, and, by carefully studying the requirements of the markets and fattening their birds to suit the English taste, they succeeded in driving the United States into the second place. They might have retained their premier position to this day had they not decided to compete for the egg market in Britain. This, of course, meant that they had to keep a vast quantity of fowls, which otherwise would have been killed off when young, in order to secure sufficient eggs, and the U. S. shippers were thus able to obtain first place once more. Within the last two or three years, however, the supply from America has fallen off. and whether this is due to the increased domestic demand or to a smaller output, the fact remains that English importers have not been receiving as much as they wish. The fact that Russia is devoting so much attention to her egg export trade, combined with the deficiency of American supplies, should prove a great incentive to Canadian poultry breeders to exploit the British market, and they could not do better—at any rate at first—than to follow the United States methods of packing and note the kind of birds they have been shipping and which are so suited to the English taste.

It must be clearly understood, in the first place, that the demand is emphatically for white birds. Through their fattening process, American breeders have brought their fowls up to a very high standard and have devoted special attention to making them a fine white color. Some Canadian packers have been sending across yellow-legged birds, for which there is very little demand. Another point to be remembered is that only young fowls are required; that is to say, fowls which have been killed before they have become tough and whose flesh is still tender. The usual time for killing is about the close of the year, so that the time extending between breeding and killing is nearly always the same, and the birds are consequently more or less of the same age. They are placed on the British market about early March and onward. In packing, it should be remarked that poultry for the London market should be placed twelve to the box, and importers always expect this. Although it is quite possible that in course of time Canadians may be able to grade their poultry in their own way without offending the requirements of British dealers, at the outset the grading should be the same as that of the United States. There are three grades: the cheapest, ranging from 14 to 16c. per lb.; the medium grade, 16 to 18c. per lb., and the best, 18 to 22c. per lb. Crates weighing from 36 to 42 lbs. are mostly in demand, although a sale can always be found for lighter fowls in crates of from 33 to 36 lbs. Some boxes are as heavy as 42 lbs., but there is some danger of quality being sacrificed to weight in these cases, the birds being older than desirable. Irish breeders, however, are fattening up birds to about 3½ lbs., without losing anything in quality, and if Canadians can do the same there is no reason why they should not create a demand.

Several British importers have been in correspondence with Canadian shippers lately, and although nothing much has yet been done, there is every prospect of large consignments being sent over in course of a few years. The imports of Russian fowls will never be so heavy as to cause serious competition, for fowls are always in demand and there is less fluctuation of prices in this line, perhaps, than any other of the provision trade. The domestic supply and imports from other countries are generally fairly even.

The demand for Canadian eggs is not at present very great. Robinson, Scott & Co., large egg importers, say that big quantities of Russian eggs—the cheaper grade—are still on hand, and French and other finer qualities are also plentiful. The best months for Canadian eggs are from September to February, when Russian supplies are falling off. There is a feeling amongst the trade that unless Canadian shippers can offer a lower price than last season purchases will be small. Mr. Scott is of the opinion that there will be a shortage of eggs from Hungary. The eggs sent from this country are finer than Russian and not quite such good quality as the French. The reason for the shortage in Hungary is that last year there was a severe drought, and the people were compelled to kill off the poultry, so that the supply of eggs will in all probability be smaller than before.

The Grocer correspondent called at one large egg-importing house, and was disappointed to hear some unfavorable comments on the condition of Canadian eggs on arrival in London. It was stated that large quantities had been received from Canada, but they had never given real satisfaction. The eggs, packed in cases containing little cardboard squares, were either bad or partially musty. It was suggested that this was because Canadians pack the eggs ready for shipment and then place them in cold storage to await transport. If this is done, it means that the eggs are not thoroughly refrigerated and upon being exposed to the warm air they absorb the flavor of the cardboard packing. The best way is to place the eggs naked in trays in cold storage, and when they are wanted place them in cases in either sawdust or shavings and ship them away at once. Many importers like to receive their eggs in cases containing 1,440, while others prefer to get them in smaller boxes of 360, or "three long hundreds," as the expression is. When put up in the latter way they are more easily handled.

It is quite certain that some Canadian shippers are able to send their eggs so as to arrive in splendid condition, since other English importers say they have received large quantities of Canadian eggs, which absolutely could not be beaten. The main difficulty at present, however, is the high prices ruling.

The following figures show the imports of eggs by Great Britain from various sources during the years 1902, 1903 and 1904:

Russia	$7,347,469	$9,083,249	$9,940,264
Denmark	6,648,222	8,622,052	7,112,434
Germany	6,136,239	4,841,345	5,796,983
Belgium	4,029,181	3,531,643	4,073,984
France	3,491,707	3,261,173	3,455,611
Canada	1,018,671	1,063,712	630,871
Other countries	2,632,237	2,402,474	1,745,313

THE BACON SITUATION.

The condition of the bacon market continues practically unchanged from last week, a good domestic demand being noted, while, if anything, there is a little falling off in the British market on account of large deliveries of Danish and American bacon. It is a notable fact that a certain section of the English trade who use Canadian bacon are only willing to pay up to a certain price, after which they revert to the American article. This has been the case during the week. Canadian bacon seems to be gaining headway in the north of England where the consumer is becoming gradually educated to prefer a higher priced and higher class article. Export quotations range all the way from 51 to 57 shillings.

Provisions—On account of the warm weather a first-class demand is noted for cured meats of all descriptions, and a slightly higher trend of prices. Fresh meats are only moving fairly well, and beef is slightly easier than a week ago. Other provisions continue unchanged. Dressed hogs are bringing from $9 to $9.25, while live hogs are selling at from $7 to $7.25. We quote as follows:

Butter—The city markets are being practically flooded with dairy prints this week, and wholesale produce men complain that pedlars are bringing in stuff and distributing it direct among the retail grocers. The sale of creamery is slow on account of dairy butter being so plentiful, and, generally speaking, of such high quality. The present month has been an exceptionally favorable month for dairying operations. We quote:

Cheese—New cheese are offering freely on the market, but on account of the relatively high price at which cheese has been sold on the boards during the week the wholesale trade have been obliged to put up the price of large cheese from 1-4 to 1-2c., and the same advance rules in twins. Indications are that there will be a very large make of cheese this season on account of the fine pasture. The firm ideas of the cheese makers is attributed to cables from Great Britain indicating a firm and advancing market. We quote as follows:

Cheese—Market is steady and tending firmer. Quebec cheese quoted at 9 1-2 to 9 5-8c., while finest Ontario are firm at 9 3-4 to 9 7-8c. Holders are hanging out for outside figures and are bearish in feeling. Shipments from Montreal last week were 74,149 boxes, or nearly 10,000 more than same week last year. Exports since May show an increase of 39,806 boxes more than same period last year.

Butter—Market has shown a tendency to advance during the past few days, and holders are firm in asking 19 3-4 to 20c. for choicest creamery. The demand locally is heavy, and supplies are readily taken up. The trouble seems to be to get enough. Shipments from this port during the past week were 5,582 boxes less than previous year at same time, but total shipments since May 1st were 6,715 packages more than same period last year.

Quaker Canned Goods

SPECIAL NOTICE TO THE TRADE

The following is not an exaggeration
but absolute facts

In starting the packing of canned goods, in 1900, we recognized that one of the most difficult articles to deal with was corn. As proper seed is the starting point in any line of canned goods, and particularly corn, we decided to use the same seed as Maine packers use. We did this as we knew that Maine stood at the tip top for quality in canned corn. To so great an extent is this recognized by the U. S. consuming public, that Maine corn is selling at present for $1.10 per dozen, when other States corn is being sold from 50c. to 90c. per dozen. The same thing has been going on in the U. S. for years, and during all this time Maine packers have never packed enough corn to supply their trade. While the doing this has been an expensive proposition for us, the results have justified the expense. In the first place, we have paid as high as fifteen dollars a bushel for this seed when ordinary seed could be bought for one dollar and fifty cents. In addition to this, this seed produces much less to the acre than any other variety, and we have to pay the farmers a higher price for raising it. Last year our bill for raw material in corn for our pack was sixty-five hundred dollars more than we could have bought the usual variety of corn packed by the usual variety of canners.

THE PACKERS OF QUAKER CANNED GOODS

B. C. Markets.

Vancouver, B.C., June 15, 1905.

THERE is some complaint heard in retail circles in Vancouver at the present time of dull trade, but so far as the wholesale trade is concerned business is very good indeed. Up-country conditions, taken all round, are very promising this year. In the mining districts activity is marked, while lumbering, both in the mountain district and on the coast, is perhaps more active than ever. In the fishing industry there has been very active and extensive preparation for the coming season. Up coast the run of salmon is anticipated in a very short time now, and on the Fraser the appearance of the sockeye is now a matter of a few weeks. If the run of fish is large, as may be expected, seeing that this is the "fourth year," there will be very lively trade all season for the coast cities of British Columbia.

In fishing circles the annual trouble of "the price of salmon," that is, the price to be paid by the canners to the fishermen for the salmon, is discussed pro and con at great length. There have been a number of meetings of canners and fishermen, and the subject is hardly yet settled. The offer of the canners so far is 12 1-2c. per fish for July, with 10c. per fish for the rest of the season. There was a limit of 200 fish per day to the boat attached to the canners' offer. The fishermen have not yet finally accepted, and it is said that they are holding out for 11c. per fish throughout the season.

Indications as to the run of sockeye are anxiously watched for. The statement was current yesterday that the first sockeyes had made their appearance in the Gulf, some having been taken in the traps of the Pacific American Fisheries, south of the international boundary.

Some business changes. The Naismith Grocery Co., wholesale, has been incorporated for the province, with Mr. D. Naismith as the principal owner and managing director. Mr. Naismith is known from east to west for many years in the wholesale grocery and provision trade. His early experience was in Hamilton. Later he removed to Winnipeg, and for some years he has been in Vancouver. A wide circle of acquaintances will wish Mr. Naismith every success. The Chapman Co., wholesale grocers, have temporarily suspended business operations, it is stated. W. D. Muir, the baker, has sold his Vancouver grocery business to J. S. Smith, the transfer taking effect at the first of the month.

There have been over 500,000 fruit trees planted in B.C. this year, according to the reports of the fruit inspectors. It is easy to make a fairly accurate record, as all trees imported, and that means the bulk of the trees handled, have to be fumigated at the Government station. There are but few nurseries dealing in home-grown trees, and the returns from these are easily secured. This is perhaps double the amount ever set out in a single season before. At that rate, and with the rapid maturity of fruit trees in this province, it will not be many years till the quantity of fruit produced and available for export to the prairie provinces will have vastly increased.

The strawberry is the leading feature of local markets at the present time. The local product is now being marketed very liberallly, and prices have been fairly low in spite of alarmist reports that there was to be a partial failure of the fruit. Indications are that there is a very large crop being marketed. Never before were so many berries shipped to the Northwest from this province. The demand there absorbs all offerings. The average price realized by the growers this year has been $2 per crate.

Local cherries are beginning to come in rapidly, and as a result of continued fine weather without rain, they are in better shape than frequently is the case. At times, when the cherries are ripening, they have been badly split and spoiled through heavy rains softening them. The price being realised is 10 to 12c. per lb. wholesale.

California fruits continue plentiful for the season. It is early yet for stone fruits other than cherries.

The Australian boat arriving last Thursday from the south brought pineapples from Honolulu. The fruit was of good quality and in first-class shape. It brought $4.50 per dozen in a jobbing way.

The potato market has been well supplied this week. New potatoes from California have been brought in more freely, and the price has consequently dropped slightly. The wholesale quotations have been from $2 to $2.50 per hundred. Old potatoes, local growth, are still in good shape, but are rather high in price for the season of the year, $1.75 per sack retail, representing fully $30 per ton wholesale, has been the figure for a week or more.

Flour seldom has sold higher than at the present time. The jobbing quotations run from $6 to $6.25 per barrel, and retail the people are paying $1.75 per 50-lb. sack for the good grades.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., June 19, 1905.

THERE is but little improvement in the grocery trade. In the city the retail business is very good, but with the wholesalers it is considered to be pretty dull. Country orders are coming in slowly, much more so than earlier in the season. Generally speaking, the sales are a good deal smaller than they were this time last year. Some jobbers report a slight improvement in collections, but they are far from satisfactory. There is a good demand for all kinds of smoked meats. There is only a limited supply on hand, and the same high prices as last quoted still prevail. Sugar is selling more freely, but the price remains unchanged. The holdings of sugar here are being rapidly disposed of, and the market remains fairly quiet. Canned goods of all descriptions are selling freely, and the demand for peas, beans and tomatoes is unusually good. Of tomatoes there is only a small quantity held by the dealers here. The export trade continues quite satisfactory. The steamer Ocamo, on her last trip to the West Indies, was well filled up, principally with fish products. Her cargo of assorted fish was valued at $10,000. The dairy products by her were valued at about $7,000, butter being the principal item in the lot. Only a small quantity of eggs are being exported to the West Indies this year. There is a good buying demand from that quarter for vegetables, principally potatoes. The shipment of potatoes by the same steamer was valued at $2,000, the flour at $1,800 and oats at $1,000. Very little hay was taken.

Butter is coming in a little more freely, but it is slow for the season of the year. The supply from local points is particularly backward, and large quantities are being brought in from the Upper Provinces. Dairy is quoted at from 18 to 20c., creamery, in boxes, from 21 to 23c.; small tubs at 22c., and prints from 22 to 23c. Eggs continue in good demand with high prices ruling. The choicest stock here is quoted at 18c., but some can be had for 17c. The local supply is only fair, but the demand continues good. Very few eggs are being shipped from Nova Scotia this season, the dealers finding a ready market at home, which they prefer to supply, as their returns come more promptly.

In Prince Edward Island, which is about the largest produce raiser in the provinces, the market is about steady. There is practically no market available for potatoes, which are nominally listed at from 17 to 19 cents per bushel. Some shipments have been made to Montreal, but they are small. Butter is quoted at 22 and 23c. for choice, while eggs are being sold freely at 16 and 17c. Oats for local consumption are quoted at 45 to 50c., and hay has dropped to $15 per ton.

All kinds of seasonable fruit is on the market. Bananas were advanced during the week, the price quoted now being $2 to $2.25. Pineapples are quoted at $3.50 for 24 counts, and strawberries are becoming a little stiffer, 19 cents being asked. California peaches, plums, cherries, and apricots were placed on the market during the week. Peaches are $2.50, cherries and plums are $3 per crate, and apricots $2.50. String beans are $3 per basket, new potatoes $3.50 per barrel, and cukes 6c. each. The receipts of Bermuda onions are falling off, and Egyptians are coming in more plentifully. Bermudas are quoted at $1.25 and Egyptians at $1.75 per box.

During the past week the progress of vegetation has been most remarkable. Everything is now blooming in luxuriant style, and the apple trees in the Annapolis Valley are deeply laden with fragrant blossoms. The heavy frost recently is not thought to have caused as much damage as at first anticipated, and the outlook at the present is for an abundant crop of all fruits, particularly apples.

LARD

HOT WEATHER LARD

Retail dealers often have trouble with hog lard melting, and causing loss by becoming liquid and soaking into the package, to say nothing of the inconvenience of handling such oily lard.

Fairbank's Boar's Head brand of Refined Lard Compound will keep firm and sweet much better than either hog lard or butter. The fact that Fairbank's Boar's Head brand of Refined Lard Compound is not subject to getting rancid as quickly as other frying and shortening mediums is evidence that it has less matter in it that is subject to atmospheric action, which is a strong argument in favor of its being purer and more wholesome than any other frying or shortening medium. Throughout the summer months Fairbank's Boar's Head brand of Refined Lard Compound will be found satisfactory to both merchants and housekeepers on account of its keeping qualities.

CANNOT KEEP THEM OUT.

THE decision given by Judge Anglin on the Pere Marquette deportation cases is one which is certain to be far reaching in its results, particularly when it is remembered that foreign immigration must become an important factor in Canadian politics in the near future, and that a similar interpretation of the United Staees Alien Labor Law, on which our own is based, is possible and even probable.

A year ago The Grocer took the stand that Canada could not afford to shut out American skilled labor on the ground that many graduates from our Technical Schools and Schools of Practical Science had secured their first "lift" in the United States, and had, in many instances, become leaders over there in their respective callings. At the same time the fact remains that immigration, and the privileges accorded to aliens within the Dominion, is or should come immediately within the sphere of parliamentary influence. Canada should not discriminate unduly against the foreign laborer or artisan and yet domestic labor should have adequate protection. Mr. Justice Anglin's decision that the present Dominion Alien Labor Act is ultra vires would seem to leave the responsibility with those in charge of immigration in the first instance. In short, he says, "if you don't want skilled labor, don't allow it to be brought into the country; once it is here, however, its deportation is beyond the power of the Dominion Parliament.

TEA STANDARDS FOR CANADA.

THE GROCER'S editorial in last issue on the necessity of establishing a set of tea standards for the guidance of importers of tea is meeting with approval by the trade. Some of the leading importers in Montreal express themselves as thoroughly in accord with the contemplated establishment of standards and the hope is expressed that no time will be lost in getting together a delegation to lay the matter before the Government before the close of the session. One of Montreal's leading tea brokers stated that the lack of standards makes it difficult for him to guarantee delivery of teas offered on and sold and he cited a case of a shipment of 500 pkgs. that had been sold by him and thrown out by the inspector. If there had been a standard by which the tea could have been judged on the muster, it is quite certain that it would not have been submitted to his buyer, but as the line was similar to others that had passed the Customs, some little time before, no trouble was anticipated in getting the goods through.

That there should be standards to guide importers is becoming more evident every day. At present everyone is in the dark as to what to do, or what to expect from the official presiding over the Government's analytical tea pot. Mr. R. C. Allan, who is known by all in the trade as a most competent and impartial judge of teas, must certainly have a standard or set of standards to go by, and it is not asking too much from the Government to place the trade in a position to be equally certain what to buy or reject. This can only be done by the furnishing of standards to importers.

It has also been suggested that a board of arbitration be established where disputes of any importance might be brought and acted upon. This, we understand, is the case in the United States, and, though serious differences do not often arise, it has been found satisfactory as a final court to place the matter before the arbitrators. In any case, whether a board of arbitration be established or not, it certainly is to the interest of all in the tea trade to have standards established and placed with brokers, importers and dealers.

INTERNATIONAL POSTAGE STAMPS.

INTERNATIONAL postage stamps, if they could be introduced, would be a great boon to the business world, though it would seem that an international currency would have to be established first. The currency of one country can rarely be expressed accurately in the currency of another country, and that being the case international stamps would be purchased cheap in one country and sold dear in another. The advantage of the stamp is manifest when we consider the relations between Canada and the United States. How frequently Canadians receive return envelopes from the other side of the line stamped with United States stamps. How many times U.S. stamps are sent over in payment for articles, and vice versa. All this causes difficulties and delays, which would be obviated by having a special stamp for these purposes.

Of course, it might be possible to frame some regulations, which would prevent the bartering of these stamps between countries where the currency is different. Still there would not be this difficulty on this continent, and we believe it might be a good move to advocate the introduction of an international postage stamp here.

AN ANTI-AMERICAN CAMPAIGN.

AMERICAN manufacturers are becoming agitated over the anti-American feeling which is being stirred up in China. The feeling seems to have become widespread, and students and guilds are uniting to push the propaganda for boycotting all American goods. The dangerous feature of the affair is that the movement has been set on foot by the educated class, who bitterly resent the treatment which they have received in the United States.

In the exclusion and persecution of the Chinese the Americans seem to have never suspected that the poor benighted heathen might take offence and retaliate. They are now convinced of their mistake, and there is an outcry from all corners of the States against the stringent enforcement of the Chinese immigration laws. The market of 400,000,000 people is not lightly to be thrown away. Already the exports of cottons to China have reached enormous figures and a boycott would be most disastrous to the cotton industry. Other important lines of business, too, are greatly interested in keeping up cordial relations with China.

At the present time it looks as if a substantial improvement in their treatment of the Chinese will be necessary if the agitation in China is to be stemmed. Already great harm has been done to American manufacturers, and it is a difficult matter to allay a prejudice which has once been aroused. Especially is this the case where there are shrewd commercial agents of other nations ready to make the most of such a feeling.

REMEMBER JULY 1.

THE GROCER has to listen to a double tale of woe every year about this time: first from the wholesale fruit men who find themselves deluged with orders on the eve of Dominion Day, which very often they find it impossible to fill satisfactorily; and second from the retail trade themselves who complain if orders sent in at the eleventh hour are not promptly attended to. This difficulty may be easily overcome if grocers and fruit dealers will only send in holiday orders in good time. It is unjust to expect a wholesale fruit house to give a satisfactory service with physical conditions such as make it practically impossible.

B.C. STRAWBERRIES FOR ONTARIO.

DURING the week the question has been raised as to whether it would not pay the wholesale fruit trade of Ontario and Eastern Canada to draw supplies of early strawberries from British Columbia, instead of from the Middle and Southern States as at present. The superior quality of the B.C. article is beyond question, and now that so much has been accomplished in the way of cold-storage transportation it is suggested that the experimental shipping of strawberries from the Pacific coast to Manitoba and the Territories might well be extended to Ontario.

There are several difficulties which combine to make the proposition impracticable from a commercial standpoint. B.C. fruit ripens only about a fortnight earlier than our own; the very shortest time to allow for transportation across the continent would be from a week to ten days. This would bring the fruit on the Ontario market only a week ahead of the domestic article. On the other hand, North Carolina strawberries arrive as early as May 1, and Florida fruit considerably earlier. The season for imported strawberries lasts until the first week in June. Thus with ideal transportation facilities British Columbia might supply the market for a week—a period too short to warrant importations on a commercial scale. Another serious difficulty is the excessively high freight and express rates between Ontario and British Columbia points, and the fact that British Columbia berries have not as good keeping qualities as the southern fruit. The Grocer would be glad to have a general expression of opinion on this subject from members of the trade.

An interesting experiment is about to be tried in Toronto, namely, a shipment of Ontario strawberries to Winnipeg. If it proves successful British Columbia may find in Ontario a serious competitor for the fruit trade of Manitoba.

TAKE THE CASH DISCOUNT.

DO you get the benefit of your money by looking out for your cash discounts?

You ought to. It pays. It takes less money to do it than it does to let your bills run the full ninety days. Of course if you don't care for the money it is your privilege to lose the discount.

You buy $100 worth of goods, invoice dated July 1. You can pay that bill with $97 (if the discount is 3 per cent.) if you pay it in ten days; but it takes $3 more if you let it run over. It amounts to making your money earn you over 13 per cent. a year without taking a risk. Remember this—the bill has to be paid, so why not pay it when it takes least money?

And it amounts to an item in the year's business that is surprisingly large. A Chicago merchant recently published a statement showing his method of book-keeping, and one of the most interesting items was the fact that his saving, from discounts for cash payment, amounted to $158.38 on an annual business of $17,000. Was it not worth saving?

TRAVELERS' HOLIDAY.

WE wish to remind the retail grocery trade of Western Ontario of the near approach of the travelers' holiday season, extending this year over the last week of July and first week of August. Not that the trade will not miss the "cheery smile" and "glad hand" of the drummer, but in the interest of all parties concerned it is deemed advisable to have a couple of weeks easing off annually. The holiday season will afford leisure for both master and man to meditate on hard-driven bargains, etc., and to refresh their bodies and minds in preparation for the strenuous life next Autumn and Winter.

SELLING TO THE CONSUMER.

A SOURCE of growing dissatisfaction among the wholesale grocery houses is the manufacturer who goes straight to the consumer with his products, ignoring the recognized medium of distribution to the retail trade. And if any reliance is to be placed in reports which frequently come to this office, certain wholesale grocers are adopting similar tactics and going to the consumer. We hope the accompanying letter does not reflect the true condition of things existing generally in the Province of Ontario:

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Will you allow me to give the readers of your paper an idea of certain conditions existing in the Canadian wholesale and retail grocery trades? What do you think of a wholesale house that allows its travelers to visit a place, first calling upon the consumer and giving him prices on all kinds of goods and afterwards soliciting the patronage of the retailer? I can tell you of houses that allow this sort of thing regularly, not only in Hamilton and Toronto, but outlying towns. GENERAL MERCHANT.

A wholesale grocer may follow the example of the manufacturer in passing by the middleman and find it to his advantage for the moment. In the long run, however, it becomes practically a question of robbing Peter to pay Paul. Throughout a great section of the country the wholesaler has to depend upon the retailer to place his goods in the hands of the consumer. If he wishes to eliminate the retailer altogether, there is no alternative but to add the retailers' equipment to his own. This would necessitate the employment of such a large staff of traveling representatives and canvassers as would be impracticable in nine cases out of ten.

It can hardly be supposed that the wholesalers referred to had any thought beyond that of stealing a little march on some of their retail customers. The practice, however, is to be condemned unequivocally. A wholesaler must treat the retail trade as he himself wishes to be treated; if he does not respect the rights of the retailer he need not be surprised if the latter retaliates—even to the extent of buying direct from the manufacturer.

VIEWS AND INTERVIEWS

DURING the week The Grocer representative had the pleasure of interviewing Mr. S. C. Lindo, wholesale and retail provision and liquor merchant, Kingston, Jamaica, and Mr. E. M. Walcott, of Sandbach, Parker & Co., Demerara, British Guiana. Both gentlemen are on a holiday trip to Canada and the United States. While in Toronto Mr. Walcott made his headquarters with Geo. Musson & Co., Front street east, Ontario agents for Sandbach, Parker & Co. Mr. Lindo was introduced "on the street" by Mr. M. Taylor, of the Taylor Soap Works.

Mr. S. C. Lindo is heartily in sympathy with the pro-Canadian sentiment so marked throughout the Islands at the present time. "The Canadian Grocer hit the nail right on the head," said he, "in its recent article on the West Indies. We can't see this good feeling further cemented by closer international trade relations any too soon.

"One great drawback is the lack of frequent steamship communication with Canada. The Pickford and Black people are giving excellent service, but it must be remembered that we have weekly communication with United States ports, and it is no secret that American manufacturers and exporters have for years controlled a lion's share of the West Indian trade largely on this account. If it pays the United States to cultivate the Islands why should it not be equally worth while for Canada? I am glad to say that things are moving in the right direction and that every year sees more and more Canadian goods in the West Indies.

"Although the Canadian trade may not realize it, they are up against a serious proposition in having to compete with the port of New York. The City of New York is able to supply practically everything the West India buyer needs at the very shortest notice; it is able to handle an almost unlimited quantity of West India products at all seasons of the year; it is in close financial touch with the different West India houses through the investments of New York moneyed men and is a great deal nearer the West Indies than the nearest Canadian port. Against all these advantages Canadian exporters from St. John and Halifax have to draw supplies from all parts of Canada and pay inland freight charges to the seaboard, a by no means inconsiderable item. This would be remedied in a measure were a weekly service to be established as the tendency would be to carry larger stocks at tide water on account of the chance of more frequent shipment.

"Canadian exporters, if they would succeed in winning over the West India buyer, should send down their canvassing agents more frequently. Some of the larger American houses have resident agents, and it has been by keeping in close touch with our market that they have secured such a firm foothold.

"Since coming to Canada I have discovered that there is a market here for limes. These go to waste in large quantities in Jamaica for lack of a market We have an abundance of tropical fruit of all kinds which we would like to send to Canada in larger quantities than we are now doing. The United Fruit Co. seem to have it pretty well their own way in the Islands, and now there is every reason to believe that Sir Alfred Jones, who has done more than any man living to promote the fruit-growing industry in Jamaica, is working hand in hand with the combine.

"To show you how easy it is to place a Canadian product on the market, I might instance a well-known brand of soap which a Canadian business man took to Jamaica as a side line. The soap was brought before the West Indian trade, and as a result an active demand for it is springing up. We use some of your flour, and, by the way, the big Canadian millers have got into the way of sending down their representatives. Smith & Proctor, and the Canadian Creamery Co., among others, send us dairy produce. There is a steady demand for Canadian beef and pork in barrels and half barrels, and all of these articles will sell readily in far larger quantities if Canadian shippers will follow up the possibilities."

Mr. Walcott says:"The preferential tariff is accomplishing much for Canada in British Guiana. At the same time, Canadian exporters will have their troubles ousting the United States from their position of vantage there, for the simple reason that the United States have been on the ground for years, and seem to be able to meet exactly the requirements of the trade in the way of cheap merchandise.

"There are several obstacles in the way of developing international trade with Canada, and one of them is the difficulty of obtaining return freights. Not much trouble is experienced on the downward trip from Canada, nor on the upward trip in sugar crop season. Up to the present, however, during certain months it is practically impossible for Demerara exporters to make up a respectable cargo for export to Canada once a fortnight.

"In the matter of freights, Canada can compete very well, except against certain of the cut rates to New York. If there is one thing above all others that should be impressed upon Canadian exporters it is the necessity of having more constant representation there. It is not enough to send a man to British Guiana every year or two. He should go often enough to enable him to keep in close touch with trade conditions and to thoroughly learn the requirements of the market.

"Among other Canadian products we are using some Canadian lumber, although I must confess American lumber has the preference, because it comes in more even lengths and is wider than the Canadian article. Several experimental shipments of 'made in Canada' jams and jellies have been sent down, but for some reason or other they cannot compete with the standard English brands.

"The bulk of our hay comes from Canada, likewise our oats and peas. Oatmeal comes principally from Scotland and the United States. The sale of Canadian flour in British Guiana is increasing every day. The time was when the trade wouldn't have it at any price; to-day it has become a staple article in the market.

"The cereal preparations, breakfast foods, etc., so popular in Canada, are also well established in our market and I might add that the manufacturers have been quite as lavish with us in the way of advertising, sampling, etc.

"There is far too little Canadian pork and barreled meat used in British Guiana, and I would recommend Canadian provision men to make more of an effort in this direction. As a preliminary they would have to give quotations direct—as low or perhaps a little lower than New York. This would be to introduce the Canadian article in the first place. The rest would be comparatively easy.

"A large number of brooms and brushes are being imported from Canada every year, and there is room for further development. If Canadian manufacturers would meet the requirements of the trade, however, they must supply cheaper brushes.

CONDEMN CATTLE EMBARGO.

At a meeting of the Agricultural Committee on June 20, in Ottawa, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That in the opinion of this committee the embargo on Canadian cattle entering the United Kingdom is most unfair and unjust, and it is a publication to the world at large that the Board of Agriculture considers it unsafe to permit Canadian cattle to come into contact with the herds in the United Kingdom, whereas it is a well-known fact that in no country other than Canada can herds be found so free from disease.

"That the scheduling of Canada by the Imperial Government is considered from a financial point of view as a serious loss to the Canadian cattle trade, the farmers and the stock raisers of the Dominion.

"That action of the Imperial Government is not justified by the facts of the case, it having been clearly proved that the disease of pleuro-pneumonia has never existed in Canadian herds.

"That in view of such conditions the removal of Canada from the schedule would be but an act of justice, and should be strenuously pressed.

"That as the Dominion is a stock-raising country, and capable of producing a large and constant supply of beef cattle, it is considered important to the Empire that no obstructions nor difficulties should be placed in the way of Canadian cattle breeders which would tend to decrease the food supply within the Empire."

ONTARIO TOBACCO IN MONTREAL.

Mr. Geo. Brown, Montreal, sold this week seven carloads of Essex County leaf tobacco to a large manufacturer in that city. This is the largest and practically the first shipment of any account that has been made to the Province of Quebec, and shows that the native-grown Quebec leaf is meeting a strong competitor in the Western Ontario product. Prices realized for the leaf were 9, 12 and 15c. delivered in Montreal.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Quebec Markets.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, June 22, 1905.

TRADE conditions in wholesale grocery circles are quiet. Business is reported fairly satisfactory. No evidence of an improvement is referred to. Country orders are not heavy, and buying is all around of a hand-to-mouth character. Crop prospects are reported good from all points, and this tends toward a feeling of making it up later. Remitances are fair and about as same time last year. Sugar is weak, and this condition is keeping the trade from buying heavier, as ought to be done now that small fruits are coming in freely. Foreign markets are weak and no sign of any recovery. Teas are improving. The new Japans to hand have met with good reception, and are giving good satisfaction. Cable advices received this week show advances of 1 1-2 to 2c. per lb. in teas ranging from 16 1-2 to 18 1-2c. in Japan. Molasses season closed at the islands. Not much business turning over and prices unchanged. Syrups are somewhat quiet as well. Spices are creating interest owing to reports of shortages in crops of pepper, ginger and nutmegs, the tone of the New York market in these lines is strong, and insiders say now is good time to buy. Coffees are referred to more particularly under its own caption in market report. Canned goods quiet, and though orders for future delivery of new pack are being freely taken by syndicate brokers, everything is at open prices, and the usual conditions as to pack, etc. Green fruits are absorbing attention. Special reference in our fruit markets. Foreign dried fruits not importantly interesting. Rice and tapioca having good sale at unchanged prices. Fresh fish are plentiful, and arrivals show good stock. The black bass season having opened, this much-sought-after line is freely selling. Flour unchanged. Business quiet and a desire in the trade to hold off for lower prices. Bran is dropping fast owing to available pastures. Maple products, hops, evaporated apples and honey are quiet, and nothing to note since last quotations. Beans are somewhat firmer. Vegetables are coming into the market freely and going off well. New potatoes made their appearance last week and obtained fair reception. Eggs are easing off from 1 to 1 1-2c. a dozen during the past few days. Butter is still high and firm, and prices are tending upward still. Cheese firmer and holders hanging on for an advance. Provisions of all kinds in about same demand as last week.

Sugar—Sugar market shows no change. Business is unsatisfactory so far this month from the refiners' standpoint, who naturally expected, as is usual at this time of the year, a heavy output. The weakness shown by the raw and foreign beet markets has had the effect of holding buyers off. The French beet refiners have been discouraged by the weakness shown and the unprofitableness of business during the past year, and it is reported that unless prices improve a large number of factories will not operate next season. The s.s. Yanariva, from the West Indies, discharged 4,000 tons of raw sugar here last week for one of the local refineries. The wholesale trade claim only moderate business and not up to last year's trade.

Syrups and Molasses—There is no change in the local molasses situation, prices remaining at basis of 38c. per gallon for puncheons Barbadoes. Reports from the islands indicate market as closed, last shipments having gone forward and only small tail-ends left. The s.s. Yanariva, discharging at this port, brought 2,600 puncheons, 1,600 of which were delivered at Quebec for Quebec account.

Tea—Tea conditions are more active. Cable advices from Japan say that Japan teas over 18c. are 2c. per lb. higher, and under that figure 1 1-2c. higher. There is very little demand for new teas at present, but considerable business is expected for third crop teas. Ceylon greens have been very active during the past week, several large invoices having been purchased on the London market for Canada, and these teas have shown considerable improvement. Ceylon blacks are in fair demand, Indian blacks are dull. In China greens, owing to the anticipated adoption of standards, there has been some little stir in the market, and large quantities of teas have been bought up with the expectation that they will advance from 3c. to 4c. per lb. from the fact that all low grades would, under these circumstances, be prevented from coming into Canada. One broker advised The Grocer of having returned to England a lot of 500 half-chests which had failed to pass the inspectors. Oolongs unchanged.

Coffee—The coffee market shows no change. Business is very quiet, and, as usual during the warm season, the consumption shows a dropping off. New York markets have been very much easier and are weak. A leading importer and roaster predicted easier prices in the near future. European markets have been heavy buyers in New York during the past two weeks. Some free selling by a prominent Santos house of Santos coffee for August-September and August-October deliveries has caused weakening in this grade.

Watt, Scott & Goodacre, Montreal, in their weekly coffee report advise as follows: The natural strength of Brazil coffees has been demonstrated during the past week in New York. Commercial coffees have not varied over 3-8c., against 95 points of fluctuation for option (exchange) transactions. Allied with the bears are the large roasting interests, whose policy it is to hold the market down until they have secured their future supplies on a low basis. Bulls continue to repeat their arguments, drawn from statistics, showing that the world's visible has decreased 1,500,000 bags and claim the decrease in the invisible (coffees held by jobbers) is 500,000 bags. It is said that production cannot be materially increased from three to five years, whereas consumption is advancing by over 500,000 bags per annum. Although options are now 30 points above this date last year, the grower is getting about 25 per cent. less for his coffee, owing to difference in rates of exchange.

The crop in Brazil is passing through its annual frost period; but June and July frosts are nature's pruning of the trees and are beneficial. An August frost is dangerous, and a September frost is fatal.

Willett & Gray conclude their last report as follows: "If under these (statistical) circumstances the markets are declining, weak speculators liquidating, other parties selling short, and the trade proper holding back, it will all contribute to a most healthy position and help to create an advance in keeping with the decrease in stocks."

Spices—In sympathy with New York market local conditions are improved, and more activity in all lines of spices is noticeable. The tendency is steadily upward, the basis of which is the short crops of peppers, gingers and nutmegs. New York reports large trading in peppers and nutmegs and activity in cloves. This seems to be a good time to buy rather than trust to future supplies. The short crop reports have undoubtedly influenced buyers.

Canned Goods—There is very little doing in canned goods, fresh fruits and early vegetables having made an inroad on the consumption. Canned tomatoes, which are usually the last to show a falling off, are showing poorer turnover, as fresh tomatoes are arriving in heavier lots and getting within reach of the consumer. Orders for new pack have been freely booked by the agents of the Canadian Canners, Limited. Salmon orders also are being booked at open prices. The salmon situation at the coast, however, is in an uncertain condition, owing to trouble and differences among the packers, and buyers are holding off a little more in consequence than they otherwise would.

Rice and Tapioca—Rice is having only the usual sale. The improvement shown lately in the demand for the Summer trade in rice is being maintained. Tapiocas also are improving in demand, and the firmness shown in the foreign markets for these goods is being reflected slightly here, though no advances in prices are noted, and our quotations of last week still rule. We quote:

C rice, in 10 bag lots	2 85
C rice, in less than 10 bag lots	2 95

Foreign Dried Fruits—Business locally is of a quiet character. Interest is being taken in reports of new fruits and crop conditions. Stocks of currants in jobbers' hands are small, but shortages are being covered in Patras, which is steady at recent advances. As regards Valencia raisins, an interesting report from Wm. Rogers & Co. states that the flowering period is on the whole favorable. Since that time the district of Valencia has been favored with beneficial showers, making the outlook for good crop bright. In consequence shipments will probably commence about the same date as last season, but at somewhat lower prices if the farmers have learned a lesson from their experience of 1904. Re Eleme figs, Smyrna reports all corroborate a favorable outlook for a fair crop of good quality. Speculative prices already made have attracted considerable attention amongst jobbers.

Shelled Walnuts—Fair stocks only are in ice-houses against Summer and Fall requirements. The market in Bordeaux remains steady.

Shelled Almonds—The new crop is progressing favorably, and a market in favor of consumers is anticipated. Mayettes are dearer and scarce, with desirable stock particularly in small compass.

Filberts—The Messina market is appreciably dearer for futures, poor crop being again expected.

Pea Nuts—Mr. George Brown, of Montreal pea nut fame, reports prospects for new crop Virginia pea nuts uncertain. Planters are seriously thinking of cutting down and cultivating cotton instead. Latest quotations f.o.b. shipping points: Sums 5c., Diamond G 3 3-4c., Coons 3c., and Fancy Bon Ton at 6 3-4c.; Shelled No. 1 Spanish 6c., No. 1 Virginia at 5c., Shelled No. 2 Spanish 3 3-4c. No. 2 Virginia at 2 3-4c.

Fish—Fish dealers report a good demand for all lines of fresh fish. Gaspe and Restigouche salmon are now in full season and selling well at low prices. B.C. salmon is at present out of the market. The quality of the new fish is very fine, owing to cool weather. There are large arrivals of Canadian mackerel coming freely and of the choicest sort. Salt fish is quiet, except boneless and skinless cod, which enjoy a little better demand. Dealers report very litfle doing in smoked fish.

Black bass, of which there are fair arrivals, is now in season. It is of first quality and selling at 10 cents. In general, business is very good for this time of the year. Halibut is also scarce. We quote:

Choice prime beans	1 65	1 70

Evaporated Apples—There is nothing new in evaporated apples. Dealers report a still poorer condition than last week. Demand has completely dropped. They are firm at 6 1-4 to 6 1-2 cents. Dried apples very dull at 3 to 3 1-2 cents.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Flour—An interview with leading dealers shows little change in the flour trade. Demand is fairly good, but not increasing very fast. No remarkably large orders are coming in, for they are kept back in the hope to see prices decline. However, this is not expected to take place before the new wheat arrives, as at present wheat is high and very firm. Local business is considered good, but only steady. Some 20,000 sacks have been exported last week to Great Britain. Prices remain same and firm.

No. 3, however, is in good quantity. Demand in general is not very heavy, but farmers are not sending as much old hay as a few days ago. Dealers are looking for better conditions in a week or two. Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, June 22, 1905

TORONTO wholesale grocers report a satisfactory week's business, although they say the trade has been of an assorted nature rather than a feature of any one or two particular lines. Conditions in the country are showing a marked improvement, particularly in Northern Ontario and Muskoka points where the tourist trade is beginning to set in. Canned goods are moving seasonably. Considerable anxiety is expressed as to the 1905 pack of corn, the recent cold, damp weather having necessitated replanting in certain localities which means at best a very late crop. Sugar is moving into consumption only fairly well and the trade say that the sugar business is perhaps the most disappointing of any of the grocery staples this season. Apparently the high price has curtailed consumption. On Wednesday, June 21, there was a further decline of 10c. all round in Canadian refined, following a decline of 20c. in New York.

Second-picking Japan teas are being offered for sale on the market; the local trade, however, require something different, in price and quality, and are showing little interest. The dried fruit market continues firm and shipments to arrive will be quoted at higher prices.

The Toronto Summer fruit market opened on Tuesday, June 20, with all the wholesale houses except one represented. Domestic strawberries are beginning to come freely to the market, and if we have a few days of favorable weather the season will be at its height by the middle of next week. Provisions are in active demand, and in dairy produce, cheese is quoted somewhat higher than last week on account of the firm ideas of sellers, induced, no doubt, by higher quotations from Great Britain.

Canned Goods—The warm weather has brought about a decided improvement in the demand for canned fish and canned meats. We are now entering upon the holiday season when all these goods will be in brisk demand among picnickers. The usual enquiry for vegetables and fruit is noted, particularly gallon apples. The interest of the trade seems to be gradually turning to the market for future canned goods. The recent cold, damp weather has checked the growth of corn, and in many cases it has been found necessary to replant. This means that the crop will be very late and in serious danger of being damaged by frost. In fruits, prospects are that there will be a fair to good sized crop in almost all lines. There will probably be a noticeable falling off in the consumption of canned fruit now that we have entered upon the domestic green fruit season. Our quotations are as follows:

Sugar—Another decline of 10c. all round in the price of Canadian refined is recorded this week, effective on Wednesday, June 21, at 4.30 p.m. This decline followed one of 20c. in New York effective the same day. Sugar has been, perhaps, the most disappointing feature of this season's grocery trade. May and June are usually months that witness a big demand for the article. This year, however, consumption has been curtailed apparently on account of the increased cost. We quote the following prices:

Coffee—There is very little of special interest to note in coffee for the week under review. This is the quiet season for local trade and the speculative market, although exhibiting the usual fluctuations, is more or less dull, partly on account of the weakness of the European market and partly on account of the continued smallness of the Brazil crop movement, owing to labor troubles in primary markets. Teas—The tea market for the season has opened in Calcutta and cables to hand name a low price for common teas, which is in harmony with values both in London and Ceylon. Beyond the market news, however, Calcutta teas have little interest for Canadian buyers so early in the season, as they are of undesirable character.

Cables from Japan this week quote second crop teas on about the same basis as this time last year. General reports as to the character of teas are favorable both in regard to leaf and liquor. Canadian buyers have shown but little interest as tea sales generally are not very brisk. Since desirable teas must be secured within the next month, early activity in the market is looked for. Foreign Nuts—Locally actual trade in foreign nuts is quiet. Quotations on last season shelled nuts is at a higher point than last season at this time, and prices are generally opening up higher. The principal item of interest at the present time is the firmness of the peanut market. Stocks held in Virginia at the present time are smaller than during the past few years. Norfolk usually has at this season from 75,000 to 150,000 bags in the hands of commission men and speculators. To-day there are no more than 30,000 bags, and many of the cleaners have virtually sold out. We quote:

Evaporated Apples—Trade in this article is on the quiet side and last week's quotations, viz., 6 3-4 to 7c. continue unchanged.

Dried and Cured Fish—There is practically little or nothing doing in this line of the grocery trade at the present time. For some reason or other the consuming public when they want fish prefer fresh fish. Prices continue unchanged. We quote:

Country Produce.

Eggs—Receipts of eggs have been only fair during the week, the usual thing at this season of the year. Prices are perhaps a shade easier than last week, although quotations may be said to be abnormally high. An interesting article on the egg situation in Great Britain will be found on another page of this paper. A number of suggestions are offered which may be useful to the Canadian egg exporter. We quote as follows:

New laid eggs, per doz	0 16½ 0 17

Beans—There are very few beans in the country, and very little demand for the article. Prices continue as last advised. We quote as follows:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

Grain—Local grain trade is very quiet and practically featureless for the week. Manitoba wheat is jumping up and down, everything being in an unstable condition pending the maturing of the western grain crop. The only change from last week is an advance of 1c. in Manitoba wheat Northern No. 1. Northern No. 3 is down 1 1-2c. We quote the following prices:

Breakfast Foods—During the week an advance of 40c. all round in rolled oats has been recorded. This is owing to the continued high price of oats; the trade were in hopes that the firmness of the raw material was only temporary, and until this week kept prices at a normal basis. In other lines of breakfast foods market conditions are unchanged. Quotations continue:

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool—During the week an advance of 1c. in the price of unwashed wool new clip has been recorded, also an advance of 1c. in wool washed fleece. FLIES AND WINDOW SCREENS.

FEW people realize how many cases of disease owe their origin to infection from germs transported by the pestiferous fly. Plumbers are often looked upon as angels in disguise owing to the good they do in preventing disease, and in the light of recent experiments conducted at Johns Hopkins University, it appears that merchants who push the sale of screen doors and windows, as well as refrigerators, are entitled to similar distinction. It is not new to learn that flies may be active agents in spreading bacteria, but the results of the investigations spoken of demonstrate that the evil is far greater than generally supposed.

The experiments were conducted with a box that was divided into two compartments, in the first of which was exposed some food material infected with an easily recognizable species of bacteria—harmless bacteria, of course, being used—while in the second compartment was placed an open dish containing a sterile nutrient such as is used as a culture medium for bacteria. Flies were placed in the first compartment and, as soon as a number of them had been seen to walk upon, or eat of, the infected material they were allowed to pass through a small door into the second compartment, where they had a chance to come in contact with the culture medium in the dish. The result was that bacteria deposited upon the surface of the sterile nutrient multiplied there and formed characteristic colonies.

In these experiments molasses mixed with a growth of yellow bacteria was spread on a plate in the first compartment, and a dozen flies were put into the apparatus. Half an hour later the door between the two compartments was opened, and as soon as several flies had been seen to come into contact with the sterile nutrient the dish that contained it was covered and put away to develop. A few days later there had grown on the nutrient over a hundred colonies of yellow bacteria. The experiment was repeated with red and violet culture and colonies of corresponding color were obtained.

To prove that the germs from which these colonies grew came from the infected material in the first compartment, and not from accidental sources, further experiments were made with other groups of flies, but with no infected material in the first compartment. In this case, however, none of the dishes used in the second compartment developed yellow, red or violet colonies. To prove further that the flies were the only means of transmitting the bacteria, exgroups of flies, but with no infected material in the first compartment, but with no flies in the apparatus. The dishes containing the nutrient in these experiments also developed no colonies; and from these results it was considered to be absolutely demonstrated that flies are capable of carrying bacteria from one place to another, if they have an opportunity to come in contact with material containing these organisms.

CANE SUGAR OUT OF BEET.

The Paris correspondent of "Commercial Intelligence" gives an account of a process, just patented in France, for making "cane sugar" out of beet sugar. It is explained that although chemically pure sugar has always the same taste, whether made from beetroot or sugar-cane, the accessory products of the root and the canes have a different flavor, and cane sugar owes to its distinguishing quality its higher price in the market. The new process consists in "giving beetroot sugar the essential characteristics of cane sugar by replacing wholly or in part what is scientifically known as the 'eau mere,' the small globules of water which adhere to the particles of sugar when crystallised—by a specially prepared syrup, which in addition to saccharine contains other substances known over here as dextrose, etc. It is affirmed that the products so produced are in all respects equal to those of the veritable products of the cane." The addition of saccharine to the beet sugar seems to be a practical admission that in sweetness as well as in other characteristics beet sugar is inferior to cane sugar. What the cost of this "doctoring" process is—a very important question if we assume it to be efficacious—is not stated.

SHOULD IMPROVE METHODS.

The continued depression in the Chinese tea trade is causing the tea guild managers in China to cast about for some of the reasons of it; but whether there will be anything done that will be of actual benefit to the trade remains to be seen. The constant increase in the sale of Indian tea in spite of the fact that it costs more to produce the Indian leaf seems to show that it would do little good for China to improve its method of producing tea, although many improvements and economies are not only possible but seem to be necessary for the survival of the business. It is probable, however, that modern ways of handling the tea after it is produced and a more vigorous campaign in behalf of the mild Chinese tea as compared with strong India tea will have beneficial results, and the more progressive tea people are working to that end.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. T. Ellis, of Mount Forest, spent a few days in Toronto during the week.

Mr. Arch. Snowdon, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., is calling on the trade in Toronto this week.

Mr. F. D. Cockburn, of Comfort Soap Co., Toronto, is visiting the trade in Quebec City this week.

Mr. R. Carignan, of B. O. Beland, Montreal, called upon the grocery and wine and spirit trade of Ottawa last week.

Mr. A. E. Carson, representing the Harry Webb Co., Limited, Toronto, was seen by The Grocer in Ottawa last Friday.

Mr. J. Benson has purchased the grocery business on Lower Wyndham street, Guelph, formerly carried on by Mr. R. Mitchell.

Mr. J. H. Gregg, of Surprise Soap fame, was met by The Grocer in Ottawa last week. Talked nothing but Surprise Soap as usual.

Mr. W. H. Millman, of W. H. Millman & Sons, grocery brokers, Toronto, favored The Grocer office in Montreal with a call last Friday.

Mr. A. Steiss, of Heidelberg, Ont., is dead. Mr. Steiss introduced and manufactured the first Limburger cheese in Canada 27 years ago.

Mr. W. H. Halford, manager S. H. Ewing & Sons' (Montreal) tea department, was a caller upon the Ottawa jobbing trade this week.

Bode's Gum received a new stimulus in Ottawa last week. The Grocer noticed a pleased smile on the face of Mr. M. W. Hamburger, the young and energetic hustler.

Gorman, Eckert & Co., London, Ont., were much in evidence in Ottawa last week, the trade in that city being called on by Mr. G. A. Witmer, eastern representative. Mr. Witmer reported business as satisfactory.

Mr. F. A. Reid, the eastern manager of W. J. Reid & Co., wholesale crockery and glassware, London, is making arrangements for the establishment of a distributing branch of the firm in Vancouver. Branches are already operating in Winnipeg and Calgary.

Mr. F. W. Sloan, of John Sloan & Co., Toronto, was initiated to the mysteries of the "grip-sack" last week. Mr. Sloan's territory will include Beeton, Cookstown, Aurora, Richmond Hill, Stouffville, Sutton, Coboconk, Haliburton, Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls.

Mr. S. W. Ewing, of S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, accompanied by Mr. Henry Vincke, of San Feliu de Guixols, Spain, is in Toronto this week in the interests of the cork trade of the firm of Miquel, Vincke & Meyer, which firm are represented in Canada by S. H. Ewing & Sons.

Mr. L. Chapman, for twenty years associated with T. Kinnear & Co., Toronto, has severed his connection with that firm to join the traveling staff of Davidson & Hay, Limited. Mr. Chapman will cover territory on the Lake Superior and North Shore route in conjunction with Mr. W. C. Adams.

J. Edgar Rutledge, grocer, Fort William, launched into a strictly cash business on May 1 of this year. Writing The Grocer, he says the change has been attended with excellent results. Credit along the North Shore has been altogether too cheap of late years, and a credit business in consequence is carried on with considerable loss to the merchant.

Mr. J. H. Squires, representing E. R. Durkee & Co., wholesale dealers in spices, mustards, sauces, extracts, etc., of New York City, was a visitor at the Montreal offices of The Grocer this week. He was unaware of the new license law regarding commercial men which has recently come into force in the Province of Quebec and was, therefore, greatly inconvenienced by it. He however reported that trade prospects were good and in the interim visited Ottawa, pending arrangements for working in Quebec.

TO PROMOTE FOREIGN TRADE.

The United States Department of Commerce and Labor has completed preparations for sending five special agents abroad to investigate trade conditions, with a view to promoting the foreign commerce of the United States. In order to obtain the best results the field of investigation will be limited, viz.: The Orient, South America, Canada, Mexico, the West Indies, and British, Dutch and French Guiana. The agents will be required to make full investigations into American trade with the countries to be visited. What proportion of the entire trade is shared by the United States and what methods may be adopted to increase its volume. While the instructions are comprehensive, including methods of handling, packing and transportation, the tastes of the people and relative popularity of textile and other products, the agents are admonished that the entire scope of their duty is to investigate trade conditions abroad, with the object of promoting the foreign commerce of the nation.

INCREASED CAPITAL STOCK.

The Rolla L. Crain Co., Limited, Ottawa, manufacturers of loose-leaf systems, have been granted supplementary letters patent increasing their capital stock to $100,000. The firm have found this move absolutely necessary owing to the increasing demand for their goods. They have, during the past year, more than doubled their capacity, and now stand out in the forefront of manufacturers in Canada.

MILLING IN GREAT BRITAIN.

THE three largest milling cities in the United Kingdom are Liverpool, London and Hull. The potential flour output per hour of each city, in sacks of 280 pounds, has been estimated as follows: Liverpool, 625 sacks; London, 450 sacks; Hull, 255 sacks. This would be a total hourly output of 1,330 sacks for the three cities. If all the mills in these ports worked full time they would produce about 9,000,000 sacks per annum, or nearly one-fourth of the total amount of flour produced in the mills of the United Kingdom during a cereal year. The number of milling firms in these three cities is 30, and therefore their average capacity is about 45 sacks an hour. As several of these firms have more than one mill the average per mill is about 10 sacks hourly.

There are other milling centres, the largest of which is probably that including Leith and Edinburgh. Then comes the Newcastle and Sunderland district, with York, Glasgow, and Cardiff following closely. Each of these centres produces over 100 sacks per hour, an estimate of their capacity being as follows: Leith and Edinburgh, 160; Newcastle and Sunderland, 150; York, 150; Glasgow, 120; Cardiff, 100. The total capacity of these milling centres is about 680 sacks per hour, a little more than that of Liverpool alone. There is probably no other inland city or town which produces over 100 sacks per hour. Sheffield and Birmingham probably come nearest to it; and Bristol, too, makes almost that quantity. Other places of fairly large milling capacity are Belfast, Limerick, Barrow, Manchester, Leeds, Dublin, Blackburn, Sowerby Bridge, Wrexham, Stockton district, Plymouth, Ipswich, and Carlisle. The capacity in all these is well below 100 sacks per hour, the average being probably about 50 sacks.

The total capacity of all the milling centres named, other than the three great milling cities, is probably about 1,600 sacks an hour, and if the mills worked full time the yearly output would be about 11,000,000 sacks, making, with that of the three cities, an aggregate yearly capacity of 20,000,000 sacks. The great majority of the mills involved in this survey of the larger concerns work night and day, and therefore the actual output, when due allowance is made for holidays, breakdowns, and stops for renewals, can not be far short of 18,000,000 sacks of 280 pounds each. The number of firms which deal with this huge total is about 100. There are about 800 mills with modern roller outfits, and the remaining 700 manufacture about half of the flour made in the country, the other half being made by the 100 firms in the large cities and centres. The average output of the 700 mills is thus about 500 sacks per mill per week. These estimates are rough, but they will serve to show how the milling capacity of the United Kingdom is distributed.

It is a well-known fact that the English millers, and especially those in Hull, have been able to capture a share of the American flour trade in the United Kingdom. The steady growth of the imports of wheat here and the falling off in the imports of flour are evidences of this. One of the chief reasons for the increasing use of home-milled flour is its excellent quality. Another is its cheapness. Good flour can be bought here in 14-pound sacks for 1s. 6d (36 cents), or at the rate of $4.48 per barrel of 196 pounds. The reason why flour can be sold here as cheaply as in the United States, after the freight on the wheat for 5,000 miles has been paid, is that there is a much larger demand for the offal here than in the United States. The income received from this source enables millers to bring wheat from America, grind it into flour, and sell it as cheaply as or more cheaply than American flour can be imported and placed on the market. Large quantities of offal are produced at Hull and exported to continental ports at a profit. This offal is classed as bran, pollard, and sharps, and it sells here at wholesale, per ton of 2,240 pounds, at the following prices: Bran, $22.50; pollard, $23.70; sharps, $24.30. At retail this offal sells in Hull at from 18 to 22 cents per stone (14 pounds), according to quality.

Large flour mills are now being built in London and Manchester, and both those cities hope to increase largely in the near future their imports of wheat and their output of flour. All these circumstances go to show that the English millers believe that their control of the home market and a share of the continental flour market is well established, and that the growth of population in the United States is fast removing that country as a competitor from the list of flour-exporting countries.—U.S. Consular Report.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Market quotations corrected by telegraph up till 12 a.m. Thursday, June 22nd, 1905.)

IDEAL weather conditions for the growing crop, reports as to largely increased acreage and optimistic summaries by the railways of general crop conditions combine to make the outlook for 1905 very roseate. The wholesale and retail trade are optimistic, and dealers seem to be buying liberally.

Price changes this week are not numerous. Sugar has been steady since the decline to $5.80, which occurred earlier in the month, and although further declines may occur it seems to be the general opinion of usually well-informed wholesale buyers that prices will not decline very much more. One result of the high price of sugar has been an advance in C. & B. jams and marmalades amounting 1-2 to 5-8 of a cent. per lb. In connection with the last decline in Malta Vita to $3.25 per case, an error occurred in the report in these columns. The freight alowances were withdrawn with the last decline. Reference will be found below to a special offer which is being made in "Force." New choice apricots will be on the local market in a fortnight. The opening price is low. In fact the price has only been lower once in recent years, and in 1902, the year in question, the lower prices did not apply until September or October.

Foreign Dried Fruits—Silver prunes have been reduced locally to 7 cents per lb. owing to over-stocking. This should not be taken to indicate any weakness in the prune market; this particular reduction is due to causes purely local. New choice apricots will be on the market in about two weeks. This is the earliest delivery in some years, as ordinarily the new season apricots are not on the local market until the latter part of July. Prices are opening very low, the range of prices for the first delivery of choice apricots being 11 to 11 1-2 cents per lb. Standards for early delivery are not quoted at the moment, but the price will probably be about 9 3-4 or 10 cents per lb. Prices will be considerably lower in about three weeks or a month's time, after the first of the new stock arrives. Prices are subject to revision then, but it is thought that about August 1st the price of standards will be about 9 cents per lb. and choice 9 3-4 or 10 cents. The crop is large and the quality is of the best. It is interesting to note that the opening prices are lower than they have been for several years. Prices were lower in 1902, but not until October. The opening prices are the lowest in years. We quote:

SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING

By J. ANGUS MacDONALD

Competent critics have recognized this as the Best Book on Advertising yet published. It is a PRACTICAL work for advertisers and business men.

The Brooklyn Eagle says of Successful Advertising :

"Advertising is one of the biggest businesses—perhaps the biggest business—in the world. To treat of it comprehensively is as difficult as to treat comprehensively of military strategy or the making of a newspaper. Mr. MacDonald has succeeded. He has produced an admirable and exhaustive monograph.

"Perhaps the deepest pitfall into which an author might fall in writing upon such a subject as this is too much theory and not sufficient practicality. Most happily has Mr. MacDonald avoided this chasm: he writes from practical experience in the field, and his methods as presented have been given the thorough tests of time and circumstances.

"Any one with even a superficial knowledge of advertising cannot but perceive that in the many examples shown are evidenced a thorough knowledge of the subject and a businesslike and practical grasp of advertising which is far removed from the light, airy and entirely impractical and hare-brained stuff which is not uncommon in literature treating of the subject of advertising."

The General Advertiser, The Retail Advertiser, The Advertising Writer, The Mail Order Advertiser will find this work invaluable. The price is out of proportion to its worth. Cloth bound. 400 pages.

The New York branch of the "Salada" Tea Co. has extended so rapidly under the management of James A. McGuane that they have had to acquire new and larger premises, they now having over four thousand retail grocer customers handling "Salada" in greater New York. Until of late they have been at the corner of Hudson and Duane streets, and have now moved to 198 West Broadway, where they have fine warehouse and office accommodation, and will be glad to receive any of their Canadian friends visiting New York.

Gillelan, who is well known to the trade of Montreal, having for fifteen years been connected with John Caldwell & Co., wholesale fruit dealers and importers, McGill street, has opened an office at 209 Commissioner street, room 10, Montreal, in the customs brokerage and forwarding line. GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

NOVA SCOTIA FRUIT CROPS.

Correspondents of The Grocer report on the growing fruit crops of Nova Scotia as follows:

F. C. Sears, Wolfville, N.S.:

At present it is too early to say definitely about fruit prospects, but I think the chances are good. On June 6 there was a heavy frost through the Annapolis Valley, which damaged strawberries, cranberries and other low fruits then in blossom considerably, and early apples, like gravensteins, were also somewhat injured. There has also been a good deal of cloudy, rainy weather, which may have interfered with fertilization. Peaches are little grown in Nova Scotia, but what trees there are seem to have come through the Winter in much better shape than last year and are well filled with bloom. Pears are blossoming very full and plums and apples very well. In ten days' time it will be possible to give a fairly accurate estimate, but as the season is very late this year we are not yet sure of results.

Chas. R. B. Bryan, Durham, N.S.:

Apple trees are, at writing, in full blossom; plum trees are going off; strawberries are also in blossom. All have blossomed well. In this county (Pictou) we had a heavy frost at the same time the Cornwallis and Annapolis Valleys had it, of which, no doubt, you will have reports; but we are about ten days behind them as regards opening of blossoms, so, consequently, will not suffer as they will from this effect. Weather has been backward and cold, and we had heavy cold rains when plum trees were in blossom. No peaches are raised here.

J. W. Bigelow, Wolfville, N.S.:

The frost of June 6 is reported to have injured early apples in some districts and the wet, cold weather has been unfavorable for fertilization. With abundant and continued blossoming, however, an average crop may be expected if weather conditions continue favorable. There has been an abundant setting of pears and plums, both of which will likely be a large crop. Frost has injured strawberries in some districts, but enough for local demand is likely to be harvested. Many young orchards were badly injured by mice during the Winter and the loss from this source is considerable. About July 1 a more correct estimate of the Nova Scotia fruit crop may be made.

Ralph S. Eaton, Kentville, N.S.:

All fruit trees came through the Winter in splendid shape and have blossomed well. Peaches, pears, cherries, plums and apples are very promising. A sharp frost on June 6 turned brown some of the white petals of the gravensteins in the middle of the valley farthest from influence of the salt water, but it is not known that even they are spoiled for a good crop.

FRUIT NEWS.

The present outlook points to about 2,500 carloads of peaches in the State of Georgia this season, as compared with about that quantity a year ago.

The annual meeting of the Burlington Canning Co. was held on June 12, when the old board of directors was re-elected for the ensuing year. The company will pay a dividend of four per cent. of the capital stock.

According to latest reports from Kent County, Eng., there is great anxiety regarding the outcome of the strawberry, raspberry and other small fruit crops. Apples, pears, plums, peas, beans, and potatoes have also been seriously injured by frosts.

It is gratifying to note that good results have already been produced by the inspection and grading of Canadian fruit under the Fruit Marks Act. W. A. Crouch, secretary of the Liverpool Wholesale Fruit Association, comments as follows: "The act has been very useful, and when its provisions are strictly carried out an even higher standard of excellence will be secured. During the last few years we notice that Canadian apples have been of better quality, this being due to the action of the Government in doing everything possible to foster fruit growing in the Dominion."

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, June 22, 1905.

THE warm weather has induced an increased consumptive demand for green fruit of all descriptions. Domestic strawberries are beginning to come to the market more freely and by the middle of next week, barring unfavorable weather conditions, it is expected that the domestic strawberry season will be in full swing. The cool, damp weather has spoiled the chances for a satisfactory crop of early strawberries. The later strawberries, however, promise to be an excellent crop, and prices are almost sure to be lower by next week. The trade is recommended to waste no time in placing orders for July 1 trade; the tendency, as a rule, is to put off preparations until the very last moment and then raise a howl because rush orders are not filled satisfactorily. Lemons and oranges are both up in price from last week and an active demand is noted. The first car of California Tragedy plums for the season arrived on the market this week and easily realized from $1.40 to $1.60 at auction on account of the superior qualities of the fruit. California peaches and apricots have fluctuated considerably during the week, but at the close are practically at last week's level.

Domestic cherries are arriving from the Niagara district, and are quoted at from $1 to $1.40 per basket. Gooseberries are quoted for the first time this season at 13 to 14c. per box. Cantaloupes are down $1 and watermelons 10c. Our quotations are as follows:

Vegetables.

Nearly all the 1904 stock of roots and vegetables is now out of the market, parsnips and turnips having been dropped during the week as well as asparagus, North Carolina cabbage and Illinois mushrooms. Radishes are easier in price as well as potatoes of all descriptions. Bermuda and Egyptian onions are each down 25c., and Florida tomatoes are off the market. An active demand for all varieties of fresh vegetables is noted. Our quotations are as follows:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

According to opinion of leading dealers the fruit trade is not very active, although some lines enjoy a good demand at only fair prices. However, last week saw a rush in lemons owing to hot weather. Dealers report small arrivals of Canadian strawberries from the west and it is thought that by the end of the week there will be larger quantities on the market. Oranges are not moving very fast. Bananas are selling well at easier prices; in fact, stocks are in a better condition. Stocks of pineapples show a decrease over last weeks, but demand for them has dropped a little. Pineapples newly arriving are unsound and selling at low figures. At an auction sale on Monday some seven cars of fruit were sold at fair prices; namely: One car of pineapples, three cars of oranges, two cars of tomatoes and one or two cars of California grape fruit. Dealers expect a little more activity when more local and Canadian fruits are on the market. We quote:

There is generally a very good demand for vegetables and trade is fair. Stocks are plentiful; in fact, more than ample to meet requirements. Dealers are expecting some new cabbage and Montreal cucumbers in about ten days. Canadian asparagus is still a little scarce. DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by Our Ad. Expert, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send our Expert specimen of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

HOW ADS. MIGHT BE IMPROVED.

I RECEIVED a specimen of advertising from Forsyth, Jr., Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, for criticism. The data in the ad. is good, and the conclusion well brought out, but the effect would have been better had the compositor used more taste. The type is too large, the heading rather crowded, the border is not well joined, and there are too many turnover lines to give shape to the ad.

Just to show how good ideas in words may be aided or wasted in type I will contrast another idea of the same ad. with the original, though, of course, in a much smaller space. I think I will be able to convince Mr. Forsyth that his words did not have the effect they well merited.

PUBLICITY.

FROM the amount of retail advertising matter that comes to me for review I judge that the average retailer has become wise as to the value of publicity. A proper realization of this fact is not only indispensable to successful business, but it is half the mainstay of merchandising. There never was a time in the history of commerce when publicity was so centralized on printing as it is to-day. The advent of the mail-order system as a factor in mercantile affairs is largely accountable. When business was chiefly local the desired end could be realized in various ways. Window displays, etc., were and, of course, are still effective so far as they go, but printing publicity as seen in newspaper advertising, etc., was ushered in to reach another section of the consuming public, who perhaps would never see the window display, in addition to those who require a little stirring up. Hence newspaper publicity has, by the very priority of its calling, become the medium par excellence for the retailer. It is to the retailer what the trade newspaper is to the manufacturer.

Of course, publicity as a dual force is stronger than publicity as an individual force, no matter how strong that individual force may be. While a merchant should adapt himself to new conditions and advertise in the newspaper he should never neglect the concomitant force to all retail advertising—that which I have just referred to above—the store. The merchant should keep his window, his shelves, his counter on a par with his newspaper advertising. Certain people never buy through newspaper advertisements. They buy largely on what might be called "impulse"—when the goods are before them. Hence arises the need of having just as attractive advertisements in the store as in a newspaper. The question arises here, What is store advertising? Store advertising, as I understand it, while interrelated to newspaper advertising, antedates it by decades. It is similar to newspaper advertising in that anything to which attention is directed either by symbols, words, constructions, etc., is advertising, but different to it in that store advertising is direct, personal as it were. On the other hand, newspaper advertising is rather impersonal, a sort of "by proxy." To illustrate concretely, a merchant places a can of tomatoes at the back of one of the shelves in his store where it cannot be seen. It stands to reason that this is not advertising. But to advertise the can of tomatoes it is not necessary that a boy should be deputed to point his finger at it. The merchant may place the can where it will be conspicuous, but arrange it so that it looks like so much tin. That is advertising, but inconclusive advertising. The buyer has had his attention drawn to the can, but to him it is virtually nothing. When the merchant arranges the can so that a label tells it is tomatoes, and some particular brand of tomatoes, he produces the same effect as when he directs attention to his goods in the newspaper—he advertises.

Following up this thought, it is obvious that one merchant will employ better store advertising than another, just as the same merchant will employ better newspaper advertising than his neighbor. He will be more methodical, more timely, display more taste, more originality, etc. Even from the crude instance given above it must be patent that store advertising is a powerful factor for success, especially when merged systematically with newspaper advertising. On this point of united strength many merchants err. Their store advertising is apparently planned and its importance realized, but their newspaper advertisements are weaklings, toned as if they were auxiliaries or subordinates to store advertising, instead of being a power in themselves. The public is told to call and see how big the assortment is, how tasty it is, how low the prices are, etc., but the very essentials in these cases—particulars—are lacking. Where manufacturers have representatives scouring the country and drumming up business, general advertising serves the purpose. It opens the ground for the canvasser, because buyers are asked to wait for "our traveler, who will call on you with," etc. But where retailers advertise in a general way the results are sure to be scant, because the retailer has failed to distinguish between methods necessarily dissimilar. An advertisement should be framed to perform the same function in the newspaper that an advertisement performs in the store—each aims in its own particular field to make patrons. If newspaper advertising fails to attract those people who, before they start out to purchase, look for prices as well as argument, particular descriptions as well as general references, it will probably do no more than to act as a reminder to a few persons who would in all probability have called at the store on their own principle of seeing first and buying second.

An appreciation of these distinctive elements of publicity, and their proper relationships, has led to the prolific use of illustrations by big advertisers, especially when bidding straight to the consumer. The object, of course, is to vivify the advertisements, make them more like the showrooms with the actual goods. It has also occasioned the employment of men skilled in delineating objects, capable of analyzing and stating the merits of an article and of adding to their statements a wholesomeness of tone, a suavity of style and an appealing argument—the kind of advertisements that round up wavering purchasers and help to retain regular purchasers, just as the traveler with the goods at his side and the suave appealing manner rounds up the dealers. When the big advertisers go after the consumers they adopt methods to attract consumers, not dealers. It is well worth remembering that in retail publicity newspaper advertising co-operates with the man behind the counter; in "big" advertising it co-operates with the man on the road.

HENRY PHIPPS, PARTNER OF ANDREW CARNEGIE.

HARDLY one reader in a million knows that a Phipps rather than a Carnegie or a Frick laid the keel and steered the great Steel Craft over its first trial course. Yet the story of his career is even more romantic than that of his associates, for, unlike many of them, he owes nothing to speculation.

He began with nothing—in Philadelphia—and by sheer Anglo-American grit, foresight, and unwearying application built up a fortune nearly a hundred storeys high, each storey representing a million of money. Those who know say that, excepting the latest phase of it, when more than five hundred millions were paid for what a year before could have been bought for three hundred millions, pluck, shorn entirely of luck, was the principal ingredient of his success. He avoided taking chances, and he never pocketed a profit that was not earned in the strictest sense of the word—in which quality his great fortune is probably unique.

Born in Philadelphia in 1839, he inherited from a hard-working father the physical alertness which remains his dominant characteristic. From his mother, who, with his father, was English before she became American, he acquired his mental qualities, including an abiding fondness for books. During his boyhood the family moved from Philadelphia to Allegheny, where the elder Phipps embarked with moderate success in the shoe business. His prospects were bright enough to warrant the employment of three or four assistants, one of whom is now a well-known Pittsburg millionaire. Yet in time the business must have dwindled, for we hear of young Phipps in 1852 earning a dollar and a quarter a week as general utility boy with a Pittsburg jeweler named Barton.

Eventually he was employed by a small merchant named Egan, whose only other distinction was the novelty of having been a monk and having eloped with a nun, who became his partner in business as well as in life. Their partnership not proving specially profitable, young Phipps one day borrowed 25 cents from his brother and advertised for another job. That was on May 10, 1856—a date which marked a turning point in his career. For the advertisement bore fruit in an answer from Dilworth & Bidwell, who pulled a slim oar in the iron business and incidentally acted as Pittsburg agents for the Du Pont Powder Co. Beginning with them as an office boy, the new employe soon was raised to a clerical stool, and afterward to a partnership with Bidwell, when the original firm dissolved. That was in 1861.

Shortly before the young man was of voting age he also became a silent partner and night bookkeeper for Kloman & Co., who had a small forge and foundry, or rather smithy, in the suburbs of Allegheny City. The Kloman shop was about three miles from the Phipps home, and the young bookkeeper had a rough and muddy road to travel to and from his nocturnal job. As time passed the business grew and dissensions arose, until the services of Andrew Carnegie, then in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad, were sought as arbitrator.

In 1862 the firm was known as Kloman & Phipps, with a capital of $60,000, from which microscopic germ grew the greatest steel business in the world. Meanwhile Andrew and Thomas Carnegie had acquired an interest in the Cyclops Iron Co., which in 1865 was merged with the Kloman-Phipps Foundry under the name of the Union Iron Mills, as they are known to-day. That Andrew Carnegie was disappointed over the transaction was shown in a reproachful letter which he wrote one of the parties, complaining that he had embarked in a most hazardous enterprise. This so-called hazard was one of new fortunes indeed, since the complainant found himself fortuitously thrust upon a road which was to lead him to a fortune of $250,000,000.

Andrew Carnegie, in return for his share of the Cyclops property and a fifty-thousand-dollar bonus, received a 40 per cent. interest in the new company, fifth interests being held respectively by Henry Phipps, Andrew Kloman, and Thomas Carnegie. Thus to an accident which gave one partner 40 per cent. and to the others each 20 per cent. of Union Iron Mills stock is due the prominence of Andrew Carnegie and the comparative obscurity of the others, omitting the extreme modesty of Henry Phipps.

As financial director of the Union Iron Mills he did not limit himself to office routine, but went into the mill and watched the men at work, studied the machinery, and familiarized himself with every detail of manufacture. Then he wandered into other mills, comparing methods and results and suggesting improvements and economies in his own.

On one of his trips abroad he was passing through a mill in Germany and noticed that the piles made ready for the heating furnace, to be used for rolling beams, contained more than double the amount of scrap iron rails used in Pittsburg. He quietly made a sketch of the pile, and on his return gave orders to change the piles at the Union Mills to correspond with the sketch. As a result the cost of his foreign sojourn was saved the firm almost daily thereafter.

As part of the inside history of the Carnegie Steel Co., another circumstance may be cited in which the ingenuity of Henry Phipps is shown. On this occasion he made a series of observations at two or three mills so quietly and unobtrusively that no one was aware of what was going on, and then did some careful figuring. Having cautiously verified his conclusions, he announced to his partners that at a cost of one-third the price for which he believed he could sell what was known as the Lower Mill, he could enlarge the Upper Mill so as to make its output equal to that of both.

His subsequent career is a summarization of the Pennsylvania steel and iron industry, which is a matter of general knowledge. Its evolution has been an eighth wonder of industrial history. From a capitalization of $5,000,000 in 1886 to $25,000,000 in 1892 and to $160,000,000 in 1899, it has spread like a colossus from Bessemer to Balmoral and beyond.

TRANS-OCEANIC TRIP.

THE Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls, N.Y., in arranging an American tour for their representatives in Great Britain, are to be singled out for special commendation. Under the personal direction of Mr. C. E. Ingersoll, the general European agent of the company, a party of six, including Messrs. D. Import aad G. Coates, both of London, Eng. ;E. J. Day, of Harrogate, Yorkshire; W. B. Bointon, Bridlington, Yorkshire; and F. Lomax, Birmingham, sailed from Liverpool for Boston on May 23 per steamship Ivernia. After spending a few days in Boston they proceeded to Niagara Falls, N.Y., the objective point of the trip, where they were entertained for a week by the Natural Food Co. Last week they came to Toronto and on June 17 the "Shredded Wheat" gentlemen sailed from Montreal on the Dominion Line s.s. Ottawa.

In conversation with Mr. Lomax, The Grocer representative learned that the trip was purely for pleasure. "The company wanted us to see the Niagara Falls plant, and incidentally we have been keeping our eyes open for trade suggestions. I am much impressed with the bustle and hurry I see everywhere in this country. When I landed in Boston, I was surprised to find the shops open for business as early as 7.30 in the morning. At home we think we are doing well to get things under way by 8 or 8.30 o'clock. The Englishman takes life altogethcr more leasurely, but, unless I am much mistaken, is in a better position to hold his own by so doing."

CANADA'S WHEAT YIELD.

Reports of the western grain crops continue very favorable. Saskatoon reports wheat twenty-four inches high, and a number of points farther west say twenty inches. The average is much less —ranging from seven to ten inches. A total wheat crop of 125,000,000 bush. is the estimate made by the C.P.R. on June 15. If these figures are correct, it will mean a new epoch in the wheat trade of Canada, and for the first time the yield will have exceeded the 100,000,000 mark. The general impression prevails that with a continuance of present conditions the yield will be the greatcst in the history of the Dominion, although everything depends on the next sixty days.

Latest advices from thc United States say that in Kansas, Oklahoma, Indian Territory and Texas the crop will not be up to expectations.

AUSTRALIAN GRAIN CROP.

According to latest Government returns, the yield of wheat in New Zealand is estimated at 27 bushels per acre, as against 34.3 bushels a year ago. It is expected that this return will give a surplus for export of 2,179,000 bushels. The final report of the Government statistician upon the wheat harvest of 1904 in New South Wales shows that 16,463,680 bushels were gathered. This was a return of 9.3 bushels per acre, and with a surplus carried over from the previous year, will give about eight million bushels for export. It is believed that with better cultivation the average yield can be largely increased, and as such an increase would make farming more profitable, the time is not far distant when New South Wales will show a harvest of forty million bushels.

U.S. FLOUR ON THE WANE.

It is significant that during the past eight months the output of flour in the United States has fallen very far short of the mills' capacity, especially at Duluth and Minneapolis, these important centres having made 1 1-2 million barrels less than in the corresponding previous period.

American millers are pushing each other hard in the matter of price in the home markets also, and it will take them a long time to get into line themselves, and a longer time to get into touch with users on the European side of the Atlantic. American wheat will come almost as a surprise after the next harvest, but unless it comes cheap it will come in vain. British and Irish millers are now able to do without it entirely, and never again will it be a power in the land. It will come, of course, unless our cousins mill the whole harvest, and in that case they will have to take unprofitable prices. Presumably, if English millers have the least sense of the fitness of things, the next dumping period should be the last as far as flour from the United States is concerned.—The Miller.

RADIUM IN FLOUR.

According to the American Miller, Prof. J. J. Thompson, a scientist, has found radium in flour. It is not explained whether the radium is a component of the wheat or whether the learned professor accidently dropped a lump of the million-dollar-an-ounce metal into his flour sack. If it is the first we may expect all the breakfast foods to be driven out of existence by the strenuous advertising of the flour millers, something like this for instance: "Get our radium flour! Wonderful stuff! Full of radio-activity! Prolongs life to a thousand years! The more you eat of it the more radium you get into your system and the healthier you get!"

A site has been secured and a company organized with a capital of $100,000 for a large flour mill to be erected at Edmonton. The mill is to have a capacity of 250 bbls. per day and an effort will be made to complete it in time to handle a portion of this year's crop.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

PROTECTION OF RETAIL TRADE.

"FROM the manufacturer to the consumer" sounds enticingly. "Save the middle-man's profit" is a fascinating appeal to the pocket. And yet, if everybody were to succumb without discernment or discrimination to every allurement proffered, and every fascination presented, he would become a hankrupt in pocket and a dehauchee in morals.

Although the affairs of the world are shaping themselves to a logical execution of the naturalist's doctrine of the survival of the fittest, the elimination of the middle link would deprive evolution of its strongest support. And what is a prop to Nature cannot be treated as a superfluity in commercial life.

The retailer in the cigar and tobacco line is the connecting link between the manufacturer and consumer. He is the proper medium for bringing the consumer into the sphere of the manufacturer's activity. By coming into contact and touching elbows with the consumer he is enabled to familiarize himself personally with an individual's tastes and desires and transmit his knowledge thereof to the manufacturer for his guidance in the manufacture of his products. For the manufacturer himself it would be physically impossible to acquire this knowledge which impresses itself on the retailer in every nook and corner of the country by his attendance on the consumer. To gain the favor of the consumer, to gratify his tastes, the manufacturer is undoubtedly best served by the intelligent retailer who makes a study of the demands, peculiarities and even whims of his customer.

"The manufacturer to the consumer," however, goes it blind, blind both ways. He stumbles on the consumer at random, and the consumer has to take his representation on mere faith. It is a mere game of chance on either side, not destined to establish either trustworthy or enduring relations. It's merely a haphazard way of doing business that can at best but have a temporary or isolated success, and that only at a heavy outlay of expensive advertisements in periodicals that catch only a passing fancy.

No less disillusioning under the X rays of common sense is the other catch-phrase: "Save the middle-man's profit." In the first place when such an appeal is made it means merely the transfer of the middle-man's profit into the pockets of the manufacturer and no saving at all to the consumer. If a test was to be made by the consumer he would soon find out that he could buy the cigar most profusely offered in magazine advertisements under the catch-phrase: "Save the middle-man's profit" at exactly the same price at a retail store as on a direct order from the manufacturer. And in the second place the consumer is likely to be baited under that fascinating appeal with a much inferior cigar.—Ex.

THE SIZE OF CIGARS.

Two smokers stood in one of the cigar shops in the vicinity of the stock exchange during the rest hour.

"You have all sizes of cigars," said one of the smokers as he surveyed the stock. Then these questions and answers followed:

"In length," replied the shopkeeper, "the average cigar is from four to five inches."

"Has the size of the cigar anything to do with the price?"

"Sometimes. Not always. The stogie is longer than the average length and everybody knows what a stogie costs. They are seven inches long.

"I have another cigar the same length as a stogie, which sells three for $1. The cigar that sells three for a half is about 5½ inches long, but it is thicker than the cigar of the same length that sells for 10 cents straight, or 15 cents straight."

"What is the weight of an average cigar?"

"All depends on the tobacco. One cigar that sells for 10 cents weighs about one-fourth of an ounce. Another the same size, weighs an eighth of an ounce, and still another of the same size that sells at the same price, weighs half an ounce. The brand that sells three for a dollar is the same weight."

"I suppose there are fads in sizes of cigars just as there are fads in fashions."

"Well, you're on. Just at present the fad seems to be long cigars of the panatela shape. They are all prices too, from 5 cents up."

"Isn't it a fact that the average smoker—I don't mean men who run to fancy prices and buy by the box—buys the 5-cent cigar?"

"More 5-cent cigars are now sold than formerly," the shopkeeper replied. "The 5-cent panatela shape, for instance, we sold for 10 cents straight when we paid duty—I am referring to the Porto Rico cigars.

"I have one customer who used to buy them by the box at $5. When the duty was taken off I gave him one of the brand one day and told him it was a new 5-cent cigar that I had just put on the market. He smoked about half of it and said it was enough, and wanted his old smoke. Then I told him it was the same, less the duty."

"Then what happened?"

"What usually happens? You smokers think you know more about cigars than we who make them. That man wouldn't have it. He insisted on smoking a 10-cent straight, and I gave it to him. Price is what governed him, just as it governs most men when they buy. The average man is not much of a bargain hunter."

ducing countries of the world. Among other tobaccos grown we have a nice lot of flue-cured leaf, similar to South Carolina leaf. The color, texture and general appearance of the leaf are very good, but when it is said that it is similar to South Carolina leaf, of course it is understood at the same time that, like that leaf, it is lacking in aroma. But Rhodesia is a very large country, and perhaps we may yet secure something that will displace the "Old Belt" leaf. Samples sent to Great Britain have created a sensation, and money is being raised for several plantation companies. In fact, one company, with a capital of $150,000, have already started, and this amount is soon to be raised to $500,000. A tobacco warehouse company is on the boards, and a large factory building will soon be erected.

WALL PAPER

HINTS FOR THE SALESMAN.

WITH business brisk in the wall paper department, salesmen should examine closely into their knowledge of useful suggestions for the benefit of the customer. The following ideas should prove useful:

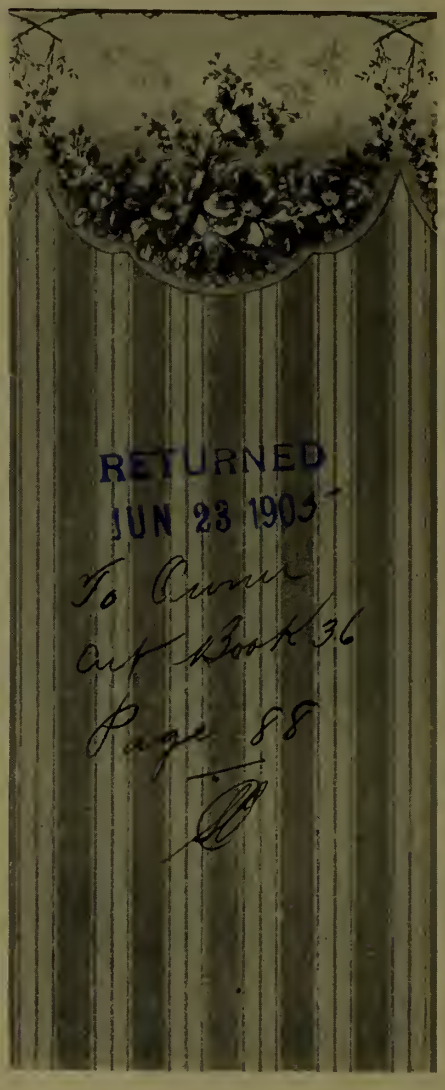
It is not always realized how greatly the atmosphere of a room may be affected by the tones or pattern of its wall-hangings. Even the wall paper has its share in making the home what it should be—the cheeriest spot imaginable.

A room facing the north needs an entirely different treatment from that which faces south. The former will need yellows, warm greens, reds and such colors as suggest warmth, while in the latter cool tones may be indulged in. Tan and warm browns are good for the cooler rooms, whereas the cool tea greens, blues and such shadings are better for the western and southerly aspects.

If a room has many windows it should not have light-colored, bright paper, else the effect will be glaring. And, on the other hand, the room that seldom has any sun in it should be made as bright and cheery as possible by the color of walls and furniture.

When there are dark rooms, as is so often the case with city apartments, the effect aimed at should be one which will appear well by artificial light. An artist in town made an exceedingly attractive room of one of these dark rooms by making it essentially an evening apartment. He used deep cream for the walls and ceiling, with red hangings, pillows and curtains. Gloom was dispelled and cheeriness reigned.

Cartridge paper is generally a wise choice unless the darker colors are chosen in the cheaper grades. If this is done fading invariably results. Pictures always look well against a plain background and there is never a figure to district the weary eye.



NEW PATTERNS IN WALL PAPER.

Progressiveness is the all-prevailing feature that will impress itself on those examining the new line of wall papers now being prepared by Stauntons Limited, Toronto, which will be shown to the trade in the course of the next week or two. Work on the new samples has been in full swing for some time, and while at the time of writing there are some finishing touches still to be added, there is abundant evidence to be seen in the samples completed, that the new line will take a very prominent position during the coming year. The designs have been carefully chosen to give a wide variety in style and with a view to covering all the many requirements of present-day decoration. The colorings are novel in treatment and have that snappiness so characteristic of the "Staunton" wall papers.

The accompanying illustration of a stripe with a festoon frieze cut to a scallop shows one of their very effective combinations. This border will be very decorative when used with plain stripes, ingrain papers and small stencil effects in two-tone treatments. Several patterns of a character new to the "Staunton" lines are being shown, and these serve to add additional attractiveness and will bring to the firm many orders for goods that heretofore have been thought necessary to import.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

THE following inquiries in regard to Canadian trade have been received at the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. The names of the firms making the inquiries with their addresses may be obtained on application to the Superintendent of Commercial Agencies, Department of Trade and Commerce:

A Stylish Stripe, Shown in Silk and Two-Tone Treatments with Scalloped Festoon Frieze. Stauntons Limited, Toronto.

716. A Scotch company of whisky distillers seek suitable Canadian agents.

729. An importer of dairy and other produce has requested to be placed in communication with first-hand sources for obtaining regular shipments of frozen hogs, weighing, dead and cleaned, 1 to 1¼ cwts.

730. Inquiry has been made for 50,000 wood buckets, 13 and 14 inches in diameter, to hold 28 lbs. lard.

731. A North of England firm have made inquiry for yellow scale, 124 to 126 degrees melting point, for the manufacture of candles, which they now import from U.S.A.

732. A large concern manufacturing picric acid is seeking to do direct business with Canadian importers.

737. A Wolverhampton firm wish to get in touch with Canadian manufacturers of broom handles.

710. A large Yorkshire firm of wool spinners, manufacturing worsted yarns, coating, serge, and hosiery yarns both in botany and cross-bred qualities, greys, mixtures, solid colors, marls and twists, desire direct communication with Canadian woolen manufacturers requiring these yarns.

711. A Yorkshire firm manufacturing solidified oils and greases desire direct communication with Canadian buyers, and would appoint an agent or agents for the different provinces of Canada.

TRY A MAN OUT.

"If you use care in selecting your employes, every one of them is worth a careful trial, and should not be dismissed without a thorough consideration of the reason for his not coming up to your expectations," says System. "Perhaps the failure is not entirely his own fault, but is due to conditions which can be remedied. Another point to remember is that it takes some men longer than others to adapt themselves to new work, and very often the most capable man will be the slowest in showing what is really in him.

"Take the case of the new salesman who went out for a Chicago house into Texas, a territory where the firm had never been able to do any business. Three weeks went by and no orders came in from him. The sales manager, convinced that he was a failure, wired him three times to come home. But to his surprise the young man replied: "Can show results in another week." The manager was tempted to repeat his messages in more emphatic terms, but something impelled him to grant another week of grace.

"Within two days the firm received from this man an order for two carloads of goods from the best-rated jobber in Texas. Finding it impossible to do business with the jobber, he had gone out among the retailers, and, by hard work, had created such a demand that the jobber was forced to buy his line. Needless to say, he was retained at an increased salary, and to-day he is the star man of the firm's sale force. The incident is a good illustration of how too hasty judgment by an employer will often lose him a good man."

Ramsay Bros. & Co., Limited, manufacturers of confectionery, biscuits, etc., Vancouver, will shortly engage in the manufacture of macaroni, vermicelli, spaghetti and noodles.

Sampling is completed and our travellers will be on the way by the end of the month.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

BUSINESS is better. Shippers are more numerous, and the shipping companies are more optimistic, as the booking for July is extremely good. "Rates are not going to be lower either," so a knowing man said to The Grocer. The probabilities are that they will be higher for certain staples that are always on the market at this time of the year. Dairy produce is coming in more freely, and the shipments are steadily increasing. It was notable that on the Allan Line s.s. Victorian, wheat and other grain, also abundant quantities of flour. The Lake of the Woods Co. seem to be doing a fine export trade.

Just now the trade is alive with reports about the wheat crop in the Great Northwest. Reliable authorities state that 85,000,000 bushels is nearer the mark than the absurd reports which place it over 125,000,000.

The total cheese shipments from the port of Montreal to date this season show are busy with freight, and that business is booked away ahead. Hay export is increasing every day, and the reports of the crop while not so rosy as was at first reported are first rate.

The record trip of the Allan Line R.M.S. Virginian, the new turbine steamer, has shortened the distance between Moville and Rimouski, and the feat is notable to all shippers who value time so much in this age of activity. It will be a striking thing for Canada if the

These rates are for general information only, and are subject to change at any time without notice; it is therefore important that all contracts must be reported by wire and confirmation obtained before closing with shippers, and unless specifically stated to be prompt shipment, or shipped within ten days after date of contract from the west.

The above rates are exchanged on basis of $4.80 to £1 Stg., excepting that when freight is prepaid, the ocean proportion of the through rate must be collected on basis of $4.86 to the pound sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

It is understood that when reporting Sack Flour engagements, a carload is considered 28,000 lbs.

It is also important that shipper's name be given for every engagement made.

* Rates quoted in cents are per 100 lbs. † Per 2240 lbs, No Primage via Montreal.

which carried over the members of the Manufacturers' Association, there was such a fine cargo of "Made in Canada" goods. There were, for instance, 10,552 boxes of cheese, nearly 25,000 bushels of wheat, about 5,000 pieces of deals, and a rare general cargo of meats, furs, furniture, wall paper and tobacco. The Mica Boiler Co. shipped by this boat 27 bags of mica. Nearly all the boats leaving Montreal are laden with heavy cargoes of an increase of about 30,000 boxes, but there has been a big decrease in shipments from Portland and New York, showing a total falling off of over 8,000 boxes. Butter has increased from Montreal and in general by nearly 7,000 packages.

The Lake steamers are laden to their utmost now with grain from the west, and general cargoes are also of great interest with all lines. The R. & O. Navigation Co. report that their lines St. Lawrence route is made shorter than via New York.

PROFITS GUARDED BY SYSTEM

Costly and embarrassing mistakes mean loss of customers and loss of trade. You should insure against mistakes. A careful customer gave the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"Mr. Hardy is so anxious to avoid mistakes that he pays a money penalty to any customer who does not receive a printed receipt from his cash register for the amount of each purchase. With each sale he gives this printed check on which he announces to pay this penalty.

"He advertises special bargains on this check. This gives me notice of sales I would otherwise overlook."

A National Cash Register insures your profits by enforcing carefulness and accuracy among your clerks. This prevents disputes and increases trade.

Let our representative call and explain our system to you.

THE

"VAMPIRE" Spiral Flycatcher

Clears the house of flies

THE "Vampire" Spiral Fly-catcher consists of a small closely-wound Spiral, covered with a sticky material, and hermetically sealed in a short tube. By simply pulling out one end the Spiral is elongated and forms the most effective Fly-catcher known.

The Hamilton of Thirty Years Ago

A HAMILTON "old boy" writes entertainingly in the Hamilton Spectator of men and things in Hamilton thirty years ago. A number of the characters mentioned have succeeded in reaching the top and are now doing their part in life as successful wholesale merchants

Once upon a time, some thirty odd years ago, I was a resident of Hamilton, and, though I have lived in many cities in many quarters of the globe since then, I have never found a town which comes quite up to its standard as a place of residence.

Ah! Mr. Speck, what a place Hamilton was thirty odd years ago! No doubt it still is; but were I to return to it now I fear my visit would have more of sadness than joy, for I hear the march of progress has not only doubled the population, but swept away almost all the old landmarks I remember so well and which I have been fondly reviewing this afternoon. One of the features of the Hamilton of those days that impressed me greatly was the remarkable grip the wholesale grocery business of the city had on the country. It dominated in the territory from Toronto to the Georgian Bay, led in the section south and east of Lake Huron to Lake Ontario, and practically made a clean sweep from Niagara to the Detroit River. It did not rest even here, but sent its representatives into far away Fort Garry, now Winnipeg, and gathered in fat orders from the Hudsons Bay Company and other large dealers long before the merchants of Toronto thought of making an effort for the trade. And here I may say that the honor of erecting the first brick building in Winnipeg belongs to one of those Hamilton firms—James Turner & Co.—whose business at Winnipeg had grown so large that they found it necessary to establish a resident manager, Robert Strange, and erect a warehouse for the storage of their goods.

When I recall such firm names as J. & J. Turner, afterwards James Turner & Co.; John Foster & Co., afterwards Lucas, Park & Co.; Harvey, Stuart & Co.; Brown, Gillespie & Co., afterwards Brown, Balfour & Co., and Simpson, Stuart & Co., I am forced to exclaim, "there were giants in those days" in the wholesale grocery business of Hamilton. Why, sir, I have known the manager of the Hendrie cartage agency to find it necessary to employ every lorry and truck in the agency's use, some thirty odd, to cart a single order from the Turner warehouse to the old Great Western freight sheds, and even then they were unable to load all the goods at one drawing. This was a Spring order for general groceries from A. G. B Bannatyne, of Winnipeg, and it amounted to upwards of $40,000. The average wholesale grocer of Toronto did not carry that much stock in his entire premises.

George McVittie was the name of the foreman of the Hendrie cartage force on the occasion to which I refer, and I remember the long line of trucks entering the alley between King and Main streets from James. Each truck carried away from four to six tons of merchandise, and it was all loaded after 6 o'clock p.m. These big orders, however, were generally received in the early Spring, but five and ten thousand dollar orders were of common occurrence during the entire shipping season. Just imagine the feelings of a traveler of to-day were he to send in a batch of such orders to his house! Just imagine the confidence, the assurance, the pride with which he would march up to the manager and plank down his fat lists with not a cut price in the lot! It wouldn't be three for a quarter he was smoking, it would be three quarters for one. And then think of the feelings of the present-day manager as he scanned the orders and found they represented value to the extent of almost a hundred thousand dollars. What a serious consultation of the members of the firm would follow, and what a scurrying to the mercantile agencies for special reports on the financial standing of the firms giving the orders! Then the consternation of the manager, on comparing the lists with the stock in the warehouse, when he found he hadn't above half the goods required to fill the orders! But in the days I speak of there was nothing of all this; the traveler marched in with his batch of orders as meekly as a lamb, or rather as meckly as was his wont. In the particular case I refer to, the traveler was W. H. Gillard, and no one who knew him would ever accuse him of meekness. The orders were received by the firm as a matter of course, and the warehouse hands were promptly set to work to prepare the goods for shipment from the stock then in the warehouse.

Yes, those old-time wholesale grocers of Hamilton were big men ; broadminded, big in outlook, big in business ability and big physically. Let those who remember them stand a few of them up in a row! Take for instance John Turner, James Turner, John Stewart, Alexander Harvey, R. E. Lucas and Adam Brown. Every man of them over six feet in height and built in proportion. Not one of them but in a crowd would be singled out from his appearance alone as a man of distinction. I have often ranged them before my mind's eye and in my travels over the world have tried to match them with six as distinguished appearing representatives of any one line of business in a single city, but up to the present have failed. Can you match them physically to-day in any city in Canada from one line of business? Some of them had the foresight of statesmen in those early days of Confederation, and one of them, seeing that Manitoba and the Northwest would eventually become a part of Canada—I could give you his name, but I won't—saw that the eventuality could be made the means of great commercial profit. The import duty on spirits into Manitoba was at the time very low, and what did he do? He chartered a vessel at Kingston, Jamaica, and loaded it with hogsheads of rum, the whole cargo being sent to Fort Garry at great expense of freight, but light charges for the goods and for duty. When Manitoba came into the confederacy the rum was duty paid—enough of it to last the whole Northwest for years—and no more could be imported except at an enormous increase of duty. Some of this rum may still be in Winnipeg, and if so it must be prime stuff indeed, for with each year's age it gains in quality. I wish I had some of it right now. The enterprise exhibited in carrying such a venture to a successful issue under the conditions that obtained thirty odd years ago is not to be measured by the standards of to-day, for from Lake Superior to Winnipeg every pound of freight had to be hauled by the slow process of cartage over a trackless stretch of country. And this is but one instance of the foresight, acumen, courage of the men who stood at the head of the wholesale grocery business of Hamilton at the time I speak of. And what a hustling, wideawake, strenuous lot of travelers they employed to be sure—Kenneth McKenzie, Lloyd Mewburn, J. H. Herring, Tom Greening, Bob Steele, Sam Wilkins, George Beach, Bill Braid, — Croy, Chris. Forrest, Peter Watt, John Park, Dave Bremner, the two McFarlanes (big Mac and little Mac as they were known throughout the trade), and others whose names have slipped my memory for the moment. What a gang to let loose on the hard-working retail grocers of the country! With a knowledge of the capabilities of these knights of the grip as salesmen, there is small wonder that Hamilton stood head and shoulders over Toronto and all other competitors in the wholesale grocery business at the time I am treating of. Bob Steele, Sam Wilkins, Geo. Beach and Bill Braid were bracketed as the Big Four. They canvassed in large part the same territory, and the title came to them not only on account of the large orders they sent in to their respective houses, but because they were all men of large, handsome physique. The McFarlanes also secured their titles of Big Mac and Little Mac on account of their physical development, the former being of liberal proportions, while the latter was under the average height. Peter Watt was one of the characters among the fraternity ; he was a most companionable Highland Scotsman and represented Simpson, Stuart & Co. It was generally believed by his brother travelers that when he arrived in this country he wore the kilts but Peter assured me that this was not so. Of one thing I am certain, there was no dullness when Peter was of the company. He had a fund of stories the most remarkable, and extraordinary as they were inexhaustible, and it is possible that from this fact he gained his sobriquet of "Leein' Peter."

As a sample of these stories it is related that once upon a time he was endeavoring to seeure an order for a certain brand of soap—sop, Peter called it. "It's fine, it's fine, Misther Malcolmson, just fine, sir. Why, it'll wash anything," said Peter. "Hard watter or soft watter; hot or cold. It's jist grand! Why, a few meenits ago there wuz a mon drownin' in the river below as I wuz crossin' the bridge. They had ropes an' poles an' boats tryin' ta push him ta land, but they couldna manage it. What did I do? Why, I opened my sample case, took oot a bar o' thes sop an' heaved it intil the watter. Why, sir, inside o' twa meenits it washed the mon ashore! Twinty boxes, Misther Malcolmson, did ye say? Mak it thretty, Misther Malcolmson! Mak it thretty." And thretty it was.

One of the keenest, shrewdest, most nervy men on the road was L. T. Mewburn. Before he was out of his teens he went through the campaign against the fenians as a member of a Toronto regiment, and fought at Ridgeway, fought even after every fenian had been chased over the border to the American side. It is related that after the battle he was detailed on skirmish duty, and perceiving a squad of fenians in the dim light of the morning, put spurs to his horse and charged them single-handed and alone. He scattered them all right, and the fact that upon his near approach to the bunch he discovered they were three cows, reflects no discredit on his courage. He wasn't one of the big fellows physically. As he used to put it when asked his height, "just forget whether it's five feet six or six feet five." My own opinion is that the smaller figure was about four inches too much, but for all that Lloyd was all there, as any one who stepped on his corns found to his cost. Upon one occasion I remember he drove into Lucan after a long ride on a bitter cold day. After seeing his horse properly housed and fed he entered the hotel and going to the bar called for something to assist in warming his anatomy. The bartender produced the necessary fluid and Lloyd poured out a glass. As he did so a big lounger in the barroom reached over his shoulder, seized the glass, and emptied the contents down his throat. Lloyd's whole frame stiffened, but all he said was, "Don't do that again, stranger." He called for a fresh glass and having filled it the stranger reached his arm for it. Like a flash Lloyd seized the first glass and smashed it on the jaw of the stranger, who reeled to the wall and dropped to the floor like a log. A comrade of the fallen man made a savage spring at Mewburn, but the latter expected him and in one, two, three order laid him away quietly with his friend. These men afterwards secured great notoriety throughout the country in connection with the Donnelly tragedy at Biddulph, for they were members of the Donnelly family.

Chris. Forrest was one of the remarkable men on the road in those old days. He was as tall as "Man Morton," a later-day celebrity of Hamilton, but twice as broad across. He was a giant, with a voice like a fog horn and as mild as a baby in manner. He represented the Turner firm, and one day on his trip an Irishman ran into him, the collison resulting in the destruction of the Irishman's cutter. Forrest's rig was not injured and Chris. started to drive on. The Irishman was angry, however, and ran after the rig heaping abuse upon Chris. and calling on him to get out and fight. Chris., who wore a big fur overcoat, was huddled down in the cutter and his size was not apparent to the Irishman. Presently Forrest became tired of the pursuit, and, handing the reins to Teddy Bowstead, who was with him, he unfolded his great length from the buffalo robes and stood in the roadway to meet the Irishman. But the latter, seeing the towering seven-foot form before him, came to a dead halt and blurted out in a voice of fright, "Be gob, it's Finn McCool! I'll have nothin' to do wid ye!" and turning ran down the roadway faster than he came, followed by the fog-horn horse laugh of Forrest.

J. H. Herring was another of this list of drummers who upon occasion could give evidence of the manhood that was in him. He came to Canada from, I think, Bristol, England, the vessel he sailed on being wrecked in or near the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The sea was running high and there seemed but one chance to save the lives of the crew and passengers. A line must be carried to shore almost a mile away. Being a strong swimmer Herring volunteered to undertake the task. His offer was accepted. A light line was fastened to him and he plunged into the angry sea. After a strenuous struggle with the elements he reached shore, the result being that every passenger and the entire crew were rescued from the sinking vessel. He is, I think, still a resident of Hamilton.

OF INTEREST TO THE TRADE.

THE many friends of Mr. F. J. White, Toronto, will read with interest an announcement elsewhere in this week's issue of The Grocer. Mr. White has taken over the business of Minto Bros., tea importers and blenders, 55 Front street east, Toronto, a house successfully established in Canada for upwards of thirty years, and will in future devote his time and energy to enlarging the clientele of this firm. Complete lines of bulk tea will be carried, and a feature made of "Mela-Gama" packet Ceylon tea, a brand which has become deservedly popular with the trade. Mr. J. Minto will continue in business with Mr. White, and the services of Mr. Alex. Minto, who has been associated with Minto Bros.' tea business since 1895, have been secured.

Until a few weeks ago Mr. White was proprietor and managing director of White & Co., wholesale fruit, produce and commission merchants, Toronto, a firm dating from 1892. From the start Mr. White's business career has been one unbroken series of successes, and to-day White & Co. rank among the very first wholesale fruit firms in the Province of Ontario, both in size and up-to-date equipment. In addition, Mr. White has been manager of the White Auction Co. for seven years. In all his undertakings he has succeeded in establishing a reputation among the trade for enterprise and amiability that will go far to ensure his success in the tea business.

The Grocer wishes Mr. White every success, and has every reason to believe its wish will be abundantly realized, as Mr. White is a connoisseur in the rare art of knowing how to please a customer, and has a close personal acquaintance with the trade, such as is possessed by but few Canadian business men.

THE ACT A BOMERANG.

ACCORDING to the Montreal Gazette, the Act passed at the last session of the Quebec Legislature, imposing a tax of $300 on commercial travelers representing firms outside of Canada doing business in the Province of Quehec, promises to become a boomerang. "Already English travelers who annually have large business transactions with Montreal and Quebec houses, are giving this city the go-by and will in future conduct their business from Ontario centres. It is reported in the news columns that three departed yesterday for Toronto, without attempting to do any business here, in order to avoid a tax which would almost dissipate any profits they might make. The damage which this tax will probably do to many business concerns in Montreal can readily be seen, whereas its purpose is beyond comprehension.

"If Mr. McCorkill, who fathered this interesting enactment, intended it as a revenue producer, his object is frustrated, as might have been expected, for incoming travelers will not pay the license fee. One would rather suppose that a patriotic motive inspired Mr. McCorkill and he desired that this measure should throw the work and the profits of English and American travelers into Canadian hands, but here again is his judgment at fault, for in the language of the commercial men, the Canadian agents 'don't know the goods.' The penalty imposed for each contravention of this Act is from $500 to $1,000.

"Considered from every standpoint, this Act is as futile for obtaining any benefit as the measure at first proposed to tax each resident agency $500 for each foreign firm represented. That would have meant driving those agents from Quebec Province; this means that travelers will henceforth make Toronto or Winnipeg their Mecca, and will give Montreal and Quebec a wide berth. A $300 tax upon travelers upon whom Montreal houses must rely to a great extent, is going to be simply a drag upon trade. The only thing that this Act is calculated to raise is trouble, but a great deal of that."

TIVERTON'S NEW STORE.

On June 17 the doors of the fine new store of McInnes & Co., Tiverton, were thrown open to the public for the first time and from early morning till late at night crowds of visitors and customers thronged the store. Since the destruction of the old store by fire about a year ago, McInnes & Co. have been spending time and money in erecting what they have planned to be one of the finest stores outside of the cities.

The store is forty-seven feet square and has been erected on a corner, thus giving ample window-space. It is two storeys in height, built of white brick, with hardwood floors, metal ceilings and walls and is lighted with acetylene gas, of which there are 38 lights on the ground floor alone. The ground floor is devoted to groceries and drygoods, while upstairs is to be found the stock of clothing, boots and shoes, and crockery.

The firm of McInnes & Co. is composed of Messrs. McDonald and Irwin Patterson. It has been long-established, the founder, Mr. McInnes, having died several years ago.

NEW FIRM IN FAR EAST.

Moss & Co., Foochow, China, formerly associated with Dodwell & Co., and Dodwell, Carlill & Co., are launching into the general mercantile, insurance, shipping and commission business on their own account. They have made arrangements to open branches at Shanghai and Colombo, and will shortly increase their sphere of operations to include all other tea exporting ports of importance.

Frenzied Business

Prices are now out on peas, and nobody can say that the gentlemen in Hamilton have not put them low enough. Whether this illegitimate cut-throat—less than cost—price is any advantage to the retail trade we very much doubt. In issuing these prices we believe they have overshot the mark and it will fail to accomplish its purpose, as it must be apparent to every retail grocer that they were not sent out for philanthropy, for the benefit of the retail trade, for the consumer's benefit, or in a legitimate business sense, but solely to drive out, buy out, or fire out the canners working independent of the consolidation. Whether this is to the interest of the retail trade of the Dominion we leave them to judge, as they are the gentlemen who in the end have to settle these controversies. Understand, we are not appealing for pity, as we consider ourselves quite competent to take care of these gentlemen single handed, but we consider it a legitimate matter for both personal and business discussion in the trade papers of the country. At the same time we are not going further into the matter now, and hand it over to the retail trade for their dissection.

Believing that these low prices will increase the sale of peas enormously, we have made arrangements to increase our pack accordingly so as to fully protect our customers in their increased requirements. The trade will also remember, that, unlike some of our competitors, one in particular, who are currently reported to be holding one hundred thousand cases of old peas, we have not a case of old goods in stock, all this year's pack, fresh and new, and every indication of being the best pack in quality we ever packed ; the cool, moist weather we have been having maturing the raw material in perfect condition.

ALL ABOARD FOR BUFFALO.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in the Temple Building, on Monday evening, June 26, to arrange the details in connection with the annual excursion to Buffalo, on July 12. The Elks are holding a monster demonstration in Buffalo on this date, when over 30,000 members from all parts of the continent will parade the streets. Triumphal columns, arches, and other holiday decorations are being erected in gorgeous profusion, and the city will present a sight on the "glorious twelfth" such as is seldom witnessed.

The excursion will be by the Niagara Navigation Co., to Niagara-on-the-Lake and via Michigan Central special train to Buffalo, returning to Toronto by the late evening boats. Special arrangements have been made for excursionists who do not wish to go as far as Buffalo, and a section of the party will go by the Gorge Route to Niagara Falls Park.

The resolution was passed in favor of allowing a limited number of manufacturers and business firms to provide entertainment on board the boats. Altogether, no pains are being spared to make this the most successful excursion in the history of the association. Toronto retail grocers have a reputation for providing "bang-up good times" at their mid-summer outings, and with such an attraction as the Elks demonstration, the success of the excursion on the twelfth is already assured.

WHAT IS YOUR MARK?

It is frequently the case that different merchants will be found using the same cipher for a cost or selling mark. This is due to a limited comprehension of the unlimited field of words of ten letters each which may be used for ciphers.

The editor of a well-known journal recently instituted a cipher competition, giving several prizes for the longest lists of words of ten letters each. The winner of the first prize sent in a list containing 1,065 words. The list of the second prize winner contained 996 words, while that of the third prize winner contained 974 words. We think our readers will be somewhat surprised at the number of words thus shown to be at their command in establishing ciphers.

We cut at random from the first prize list sixty words, any one of which is suitable for the purpose:

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' TAX.

The commercial travelers' tax imposed by the Province of Quebec of $300 a year upon travelers entering that province, is viewed with disfavor by the Toronto Board of Trade.

At the meeting of the council of the board on June 27, the following resolution was passed: "That this council notices with regret the passage of an Act by the Legislature of the Province of Quebec, imposing a tax on commercial travelers representing establishments having no business place in Canada visiting that province, and desires to record its opposition to this kind of restriction in commercial intercourse, and that steps should be taken to give the widest publicity to the fact that no such tax exists in the Province of Ontario."

DAIRYMEN MEET.

A meeting of the butter and cheese merchants of Ontario and Quebec was held in Montreal on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, to discuss the dairying situation.

On the afternoon of June 28 the delegates visited the different warehouses and cold storage departments in Montreal, and on June 29 they held a meeting in the Board of Trade Building. G. G. Publow, chief of the instruction staff at Kingston, was in charge, and the visitors were welcomed to Montreal by H. A. Hodgson, president of the Montreal Produce Association.

Fresh and Cured Fish

ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

ON June 8, there left Halifax for British Columbia, in charge of the Dominion Express Co., a carload of Nova Scotia and P. E. Island shell fish to be transplanted in the Pacific in the hope that they will thrive there and eventually give the Pacific Coast a good supply of bivalves and crustacea. The shipment was upon order from the Dominion Government and the lobsters were supplied by Messrs. Neville, the well-known lobster packers. The fish were all specially selected, some coming from Sambro and some from Petpeswick, and by permission of the Government a number of female spawn lobsters were included.

There is great difficulty in getting them to the Pacific Coast alive, as the trip takes seven days, while salt water will turn bad after a day and the fish will not live in fresh. Tanks are therefore out of the question, so the lobsters were carefully packed in damp sea weed in thirty cases and iced. Part of the shipment was in miniature refrigerating cases patented last year by John Neville. They are all of a special size, thought best by the Marine and Fisheries Department for transplanting, and Mr. Kempt, fishery expert of that department, accompanied the shipment. Experiments in transplanting lobsters on the Pacific Coast in the past have failed, most of the fish dying on the way.

The car arrived in Vancouver on June 15, the fish shipped in miniature packing cases in splendid condition, although those in ordinary crates were not in such good order. It is, perhaps, the most successful attempt that has yet been made to transplant lobsters from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

CARP MULTIPLYING.

Carp are multiplying with extreme fecundity in all the lakes and rivers of Ontario, to the detriment of bass and other valuable fish. It is interesting to note that in some localities carp has become an important fish of commerce. One official report says:

"During the Fall, nine cents per pound was paid for carp in the wholesale markets of New York City and Chicago; 200,000 pounds were recently shipped from New York to Germany, the country of its nativity, where it is still the most highly esteemed of the food fishes.

FISH GOSSIP.

A fish hatchery is to be erected at Beren's River, Man., during the present Summer which will be one of the largest and best equipped on the continent.

A number of British capitalists are investigating conditions on the coast of British Columbia with a view to going into herring fishing on a large scale.

Salmon as purchased from Indian fishermen on the Pacific Coast have gone up in price to an alarming extent. For a fair-sized fish, the Siwashes are asking a dollar and a half.

Reports received at the Ontario Fisheries Department show that the famous fishing grounds of Lake Huron are in serious danger of becoming depleted owing to the ravages of carp.

Lunenburg, N.S., fishermen are complaining that Americans are violating treaty rights and obtaining supplies at Canadian ports, which enables them to compete with native fishermen to their injury and serious loss.

The harbor of Cowichan Bay, B.C., is being thoroughly explored for oysters. If the find is sufficiently large, a lease of the beds will be applied for at once, and a company formed to market the oysters on a large scale.

The Dominion Government are investigating the claim of Lunenburg fishermen that Americans are carrying on fishing operations within territorial waters, and getting bait privileges not allowed them by the treaty of 1818.

Mr. Cowie and his Scottish herring experts are at work again this season at Canso. Reports to the Department at Ottawa show that they are meeting with great success. The catch was larger the first two weeks they were at work than all last season.

Newfoundland has developed a new industry which promises to be a successful one, namely, the placing of whale flesh on the market. The meat has already been shipped in large quantities to the West Indies, where it is much appreciated by the natives. It can be sold for 6c. a pound.

LONDON PRODUCE LETTER

By Our London, Eng., Correspondent.

THIS year another attempt is to be made to have the Butter Bill passed by the English Parliament. The history of this bill, which is intended by the promoters to prevent adulteration, which is extensively carried on at the present time, is curious and interesting.

Several years ago an English firm, now Pearks Ltd., placed on the market a butter which they sold to the public as "milk-blended butter." This was nothing more than ordinary butter, usually Australian or New Zealand, to which a percentage of milk had been added, and they were thus able to undersell the manufacturers of pure butter. In the course of time an enormous business was built up, something like three hundred agencies being established throughout the country, and the makers of ordinary butter, finding trade being pulled away from them, began extensive prosecutions against Pearks Limited on the ground that they were selling adulterated butter. The defendants, being convicted in several county courts, appealed to the higher courts on the ground that they had distinctly explained the nature of their butter to all purchasers, who were at liberty to buy or not as they pleased. The previous convictions were therefore quashed, and Pearks Limited continued to sell their "milk-blended butter." Other manufacturers, when they found they could not prevent what they considered a "fraudulent" adulteration, began themselves to compete by adulterating their butter, using, however, not milk, but water. At last the evil was carried to such a length that a bill was introduced to regulate the quantity of water to be allowed in the manufacture of butter. Although the bill met with no success last year, strong influence is being brought to bear this season, and its advocates hope to get it through. They ask that it be declared illegal for any butter to contain more than 16 per cent. of water. There is likely to be a strong fight, for the opposition is throwing serious and powerful obstacles in the way. While one party contends that the passing of the bill would afford protection to the British farmer, the other, in contradiction, points out that in warm weather domestic butter is so watery that there would be the greatest difficulty in keeping below the 16 per cent. limit. Then, those who are interested in New Zealand butter have their objections. New Zealand creameries turn out a very dry butter for the British markets, and when other countries ship butter with as much water as the law permits, which doubtless they would do, New Zealand makers also would add 3 or 4 per cent. more water without danger of competition.

In other words, every country would go as near the 16 per cent. limit as possible, and New Zealand shippers would sacrifice quality to weight. Australian makers are strongly in favor of the bill on the ground that they are the worst sufferers. Vast quantities of their butter are used for faking purposes, and it is feared that this will have a bad effect on their reputation. This adulterating process, however, is carried on to an alarming extent in Holland, and England receives large supplies of adulterated butter from this country which is sold at a correspondingly low price. So skilful are the Dutch in this that it is very difficult even for analytical experts to discover the fraud.

To what extent the Butter Bill, if passed, will affect Canadian butter it is difficult to say exactly, but in all probability the suggested 16 per cent. limit would be of small consequence. Some might suffer, but, as a rule, Canadian butter received on the British markets is sufficiently dry to satisfy the requirements of the regulation. On the other hand, if the bill is dropped, it will be a matter of small regret from a commercial standpoint, for very little Canadian butter is used for adulteration purposes. It is not considered dry enough to allow sufficient water being added to make a profitable difference.

As has been said, New Zealand butter makers attribute the success of their produce on the British markets in no small degree to its dryness, but there are probably other causes for its popularity as well. Certain it is that many importers prefer it to the production of other countries. W. Weddell & Co., who handle butter from every country, are inclined to put it down to the splendid system of grading which is in vogue in New Zealand, and which enables importers to know exactly what quality they are going to receive. This is worth the attention of Canadian shippers. Every pound of butter, which enters British ports, bears the New Zealand Government's mark, declaring it to be one of three grades, and this prevents any irregularity in quality. Importers are thus able to give their orders forward without any fear of getting what they will not require. Two or three months ahead they can contract for consignments of No. 1, 2 or 3 grade New Zealand and know what quality they are going to have. Of course, there are brands, each of which has some peculiarity, but by dealing with the same shippers these peculiarities are gradually learned, and often serve to stimulate a healthy competition amongst the New Zealand exporters themselves.

TO IMPROVE DAIRYING.

In an effort to improve the position of Canada's dairying interests in Great Britain, Prof. H. H. Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College, left on June 23 to visit the centres of Great Britain and Europe. He will investigate the attitude of the trade in Great Britain in regard to Canadian butter, the preservatives now used by nearly all the creamery men in the manufacture of creamery butter, cool-cured cheese, paraffining of cheese, etc. Prof. Dean will also visit the dairy schools on the continent in search of new ideas.

ICED CARS FOR CHEESE.

At the request of the Department of Agriculture the G.T.R. has undertaken, where practicable, to furnish, during the period of July 3 to September 9 of the present year, refrigerator cars for carload shipments of cheese to Montreal. Minimum weight to govern, 24,000 lbs., subject to the following conditions: When shippers make a requisition for refrigerator cars they will be supplied as far as practicable, and the Government will pay to the extent of $5 per car for icing a limited number of cars (say 10 from all points) per week. It is suggested that a ton of ice each, or a little more, will be sufficient to cool the cars for the cheese, as they do not require to be kept at a very low temperature. In the case of long distances a larger quantity may be needed. The cost of the ice supplied is an "advance charge" against the property, and where refrigerator cars are ordered and it is impracticable to furnish ice, the trainmaster will arranged to have the car iced at the most convenient point.

Any cost for icing over the $5 above mentioned, to be paid for by the owner of the cheese. In the case of cheese for Montreal (local) this additional charge may be waybilled, but in the case of shipments consigned through to European ports, via Montreal, under through bills of lading, this additional icing charge must in every case be prepaid.

DAIRY AND PROVISION NOTES.

The cheese factories in the Brockville district are about to adopt a uniform brand.

Letters of incorporation have been granted to N. W. Eveleigh, of Sussex; N. Smith, of Halifax, and W. Fowler and A. R. Cassidy, of Hammond, King's Co., to carry on a dairy business under the name of the Eveleigh Dairy Co. Capital stock, $9,900.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Provisions—A first-class demand is noticed for cured meats, and prices remain practically unchanged from a week ago. In fresh meats the only change is a drop of 1c. in Spring lamb. Dressed hogs are quoted this week at $9. We quote as follows:

Butter—The butter situation continues fairly strong locally. An exceptionally good demand is noticed in the Old Country for Canadian butter, dairy butter being quoted there at 80s. and western creamery at from 93 to 94s. c.i.f. Dairy large rolls are practically off the local market for the Summer season. We quote:

	Per lb.
" solids, fresh	0 18	0 19
" in tubs	0 15	0 16

Cheese—The cheese situation is, if anything, slightly easier than last week. The export market apparently did not warrant the high prices that were asked on the boards, and quotations went off accordingly. There is plenty of new stuff coming to answer the requirements of the trade. Less than the usual amount of business is being done by the wholesale grocers in cheese, for the simple reason that the retail trade expect to get cheese at as low a price as the wholesalers. We quote as follows:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 10
" twins, "	0 10½

MONTREAL.

Provisions—No important change in condition of the market. Live hogs are none too plentiful, with small demand. Trade is quiet, and prices steady at $7 to $7.12 1-2 for selected lots, and $6.50 to $6.75 for mixed lots. Abattoir fresh-killed dressed hogs also quiet, and prices steady at $9.50 to $9.75 per 100 lbs. Demand for cured meats good, and business growing as usual during hot weather.

Butter—Market holds steady, with some holders holding out for higher prices, though general conditions do not show any occasion for this feeling, rather the other way. In some quarters a decline is looked for any day. Receipts are better and quality reported fine. Fancy is held around 20c. Fine to finest 19 1-2 to 19 3-4c. Good to fine 19 1-4 to 19 1-2. Good ordinary 19 to 19 1-4c.

Cheese—Cheese trade has shown some signs of improvement, although the demand is as yet not heavy. Export trade is developing, with conditions in the United Kingdom bettering themselves. More inquiries by cable are arriving. Prices show no change. Quebecs quoted at 9 3-8 to 9 1-2c., and Ontarios at 9 5-8 to 9 3-4c.

Eggs—Eggs still maintain their firmness, though country buyers have been hammering on the prices to get them below 15c., but no very great success has attended their efforts. Some claim to have bought at 14 1-2c. In a wholesale way 16c. and 16 1-4c. for picked stock. Selects are quoted at 18c.

ST. JOHN.

Provisions—In barrel pork and beef there is little business. In beef, owing to the high price of American, Ontario packed goods chiefly sold. Pure lard is again slightly higher. As reported, some American is seen. Refined lard is firmly held. In smoked meats full prices are asked. Local cured goods chiefly sold. Fresh beef is held at rather high prices. There is but a fair demand. Veal is higher than usual at this season; the supply is light. Lamb is still scarce, and full prices are obtained. Mutton dull. Pork is not very freely offered. Price well maintained.

Butter—Prices are hardly as high. While the supply of new butter does not seem large, it in many cases is sold direct to the retail trade and consumers. There is little cheap butter, as the old was all cleaned up.

PERENNIALLY ATTRACTIVE.

Fancy decorated Bohemian glassware appears to lose none of its salable qualities as the years go hy. Year after year dealers find it advantageous to keep an assortment of these goods, and they never appear to lose their attractiveness to buyers requiring something in the way of a bright, showy, inexpensive and, at the same time, useful present.

The "Lady Grey" assortment advertised by Barnard & Holland Co. is one that cannot fail to give satisfaction to the merchant handling it. The goods are varied in character, attractive in design, and reasonable in price. We understand that a large shipment of these goods is now ready to leave the other side of the water, and will come in nicely for the early Fall trade.

Old Ideas!

When Windsor Salt is ready for the market it has passed the most critical examination of the largest and most progressive Salt Factory in Canada. There are no old fogy ideas in force at the Canadian Salt Co.'s Works. Where Windsor Salt is made, everything is up-to-date.

We believe in progression. Old-fashioned ideas were well enough in their day and so was the candle light, but the world moves and you must be up and doing if you would keep in touch with it.

Old fogy ideas have no part in the making of Windsor Salt

A GOOD CUSTOMER.

A RECENT issue of Bradstreet's contains some interesting statistics which would seem to indicate that the special tariff advantages in favor of Great Britain, as opposed to the United States, have failed to offset the effects of contiguity and the popularity of American goods in Canada. The present fiscal year promises to break all records in the volume of American-Canadian trade. U. S. Government returns show that for ten months ending April, 1905, Canada took American products to the extent of $115,000,000, and the prospect is that by the end of June the total will reach $140,000,000. The value of imports from the United States for the preceding year was $131,274,346 —up to that time a record breaker in the history of United States trade with Canada.

The gains made by American producers in supplying the requirements of the Canadian market may be illustrated by the following figures, compiled from the Dominion Trade and Navigation Returns :

Imp rts from—	1890.	p.c.	1897.	p.c.	1904.	p.c.
United States	$52,291	46.4	$61,649	55.4	$130,826	60.0
United Kingdom..	43 390	38.5	29,412	26.4	51 777	24.5
Other countries...	17.085	15.1	20,232	18.2	38 800	15.5

Canada, it will be seen, took 60 per cent. of its imports from the United States in 1904, as against 24.5 per cent. from the United Kingdom, and 15.5 per cent. from other countries—a growth indicating a trebling of takings of American goods, with less than a doubling of the values of British goods. During the period from 1855 to 1866 a reciprocity treaty was in operation between the United States and Canada; from 1867 to 1897 commerce between the two countries was unaffected by special trade arrangements; from April, 1897 to August, 1898, products from the United Kingdom entered the Dominion at a reduction of 12½ per cent., as compared with the duties charged on importations from the United States. On August 1, 1898, this reduction in favor of the United Kingdom was increased to 25 per cent., and on July 1, 1900, was still further increased to 33 1-3 per cent. One-sixth of the Canadian takings in the present fiscal year were of coal, while raw cotton, steel rails, corn, lumber, and canned goods, were other important imports.

Exports from Canada to the United States have likewise grown, but at a much slower pace. This year they will reach $57,000,000, as against $51,406,265 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904. Canadian exports in 1890, 1897 and 1904, were distributed among the different countries as follows :

Exports to—	1890.	p.c.	1897.	p.c.	1904.	p.c.

WESTERN CROP REPORTS.

CROP reports compiled in Western Canada by the railway officials continue most optimistic in tone. Not in several years have conditions been so favorable at the end of June, and there is every reason to expect a "bumper crop." Perhaps it is only natural that when all conditions seem favorable there should be some exaggerations in the reports received. No doubt many of the early predictions as to the size of the crop will look foolish when the wheat has all been marketed and reliable statistics are available; but, nevertheless, unless some disaster overtakes it, this season's crop will be a vaster crop than has been.

It would be foolish, however, for the trade to risk too much upon the size of the season's crop. A big harvest means a large amount of money for the western farmer and an added impetus to all branches of trade. Hence there is a strong temptation to overload with stock in many lines in anticipation of a big demand in the Fall. But this is a temptation to be avoided. A partial failure of the crop in any district would mean trouble for any store that had overstocked, and there is always danger of rust in some sections. The burden of credit is too heavy now, and nothing should be done to increase it. It is satisfactory to note that crop prospects are excellent, but it is the part of folly to discount the future. Go slow.

WINNIPEG'S CENSUS.

WINNIPEG citizens profess keen disappointment at the result of the special census which the city council ordered to be taken. According to the census man the population of Winnipeg proper is 78,367, and including the suburbs of St. Boniface, Norwood and Louise Bridge, which are really a part of the city, the total population is 85,829.

Had not the people of Winnipeg been led astray by the sanguine calculations of real estate agents, whose interest it is to exaggerate the growth of the city, there would be general satisfaction and no disappointment with the result announced. But people have become accustomed to hearing calculations ranging from 90,000 to 115,000, and hence the actual figures come as a surprise to many.

Nevertheless, these figures indicate a steady, satisfactory growth. In the census report of 1891, Winnipeg is credited with a population of 24,068; in 1901 this had increased to 44,778, and a jump to 78,367 in four years should not be thought unsatisfactory. Surely it is an indication of a rapid and steady growth.

While Winnipeg continues only a distributing centre, dependent for almost all its manufactures on outside points, there are limits to its growth. If the power problem can be solved and Winnipeg can manufacture as well as distribute, her growth will be much more rapid than it has been even in the last four or five years. Cheap power from the Winnipeg River seems likely to be secured very soon, and in that case many eastern manufacturers will establish branch plants in Winnipeg to supply the western demand. In the meantime there is every reason to be satisfied with the substantial, steady growth of Manitoba's capital city.

CANNED GOODS PRICES FOR 1905

THE CANADIAN CANNERS, LIMITED, have sent out, under date of June 22, the new prices on certain lines of this year's pack, i.e., strawberries, cherries, rhubarb, asparagus, spinach, and peas. The opening prices, particularly in peas, are low enough in all conscience. The jobbing trade have been complaining for some years that peas have been held at too high prices. Their views have been more than met this year, and it will be interesting to see whether or not equal concessions are made on tomatoes and corn, which also were high last year. If so, we will see a can of corn, peas and tomatoes for a quarter again, a combination that makes for large consumption. In fact, retailers claim that when the staple vegetables cannot be sold three tins for a quarter, the demand falls off one-third.

The canners contend that it is unprofitable to pack to allow retailing at these figures on account of the high price of labor, demands of growers, and the high quality and price of tin used. In reply to the argument that United States packers put up tomatoes at 60 to 62½c per dozen, it must be admitted that the quality of Canadian tomatoes is superior to American, that the American season is longer, and growth more rapid, so that larger quantities are readily grown.

It is scarcely fair, therefore, to expect Canadian packers to meet the American prices, nor is it to the permanent advantage of the trade that prices should be abnormally low. A reasonable rate of profit for manufacturer, jobber and retailer is what should be aimed at, while supplying the consumer with goods at a fair price that will encourage the largest possible consumption. As against United States goods, it is true a high duty prevails, but it is worth noting that during the last three or four months these American tomatoes, with all their handicap of an almost prohibitory duty, have been imported in many thousand cases.

That this position was due to short pack by the canners is acknowledged, and the canners themselves, we understand, were obliged to fill some of their orders with imported goods. The expansion of the consumption of canned goods is so large that it would seem advisable for packers to keep abreast with the growing demand, and prepare themselves by larger planting. The industry is in good shape, and many improvements have been made in protecting not only the canning industry itself, but also the jobber. Now a thought should, in all reasonableness, be given to the retailer and the consumer.

The circular issued by the Canadian Canners, Limited, states that orders are being booked at prices quoted, subject to shipment of goods before September, after which date they reserve the right to advance the prices on any unshipped portion of orders booked.

It is also pointed out that after June 30, which is the last day for booking orders under special conditions, subsequent orders tendered will only be booked "subject to pack," and subject to any advance in prices which may go into effect after June 30, as provided for in contract. Opening prices for coming season's pack are guaranteed against "any subsequent decline in our own prices until 1906 prices are fixed for next season." Opening prices are guaranteed lowest, and "in the event of any lower prices being made by us later," early buyers are protected on any portion of said goods unsold in canners' warehouses.

BUSY ST. JOHN.

OUR St. John representative prefaces his market reports this week with a review of the commercial interests of his beautiful city. St. John has made marked progress of late years owing largely to its fine situation at the mouth of the St. John River, practically on the restless Bay of Fundy, but more, perhaps, to the enthusiasm and energy of her citizens. The St. John man, wherever you meet him, is filled full with commendable civic pride, and you will not have known him many minutes till he has assured you that St. John is the natural Winter port of Canada, and is certain to become at least the Boston of Canada before many years.

The spirit which animates the citizens of St. John is such as might be emulated with profit in other Canadian cities. Nothing promotes the reputation of a city like militant loyalty on the part of its citizens.

INCORRECT MARKET REPORTS.

AN incident occurred on the Toronto fruit market on Tuesday, June 27, which serves to show the importance of having reliable market reports. On the strength of prices quoted in the daily press growers throughout the province decided to market all their available supplies of strawberries, with the unfortunate result that the wholesale trade found themselves loaded up with more fruit than they could handle conveniently, and growers were fortunate in being able to realize enough to clear themselves. As a member of the trade recently remarked, "It is absolutely out of the question to expect to get a reliable quotation on strawberries or anything else by sending around an inexperienced man who, perchance, is satisfied with the knowledge he gets from an office boy. He may hit it right and he may not." In the case cited above the actual ruling quotation was 2c below the one given in the paper.

The trade or the producer has to suffer, while the misinformant is allowed to go scot free. There can be no excuse for giving an incorrect quotation in the case of fruit. The trade are not in a position to bull or bear prices where the market is an open one, and the blame must fall on the careless reporter. The daily press has a responsibility to the public in the matter of giving out market reports, and extreme care should be taken to avoid slips of any sort whatsoever.

THE SUGAR QUESTION.

IN its issue of June 20 the Port Hope Evening Guide takes occasion to reply to an article in last week's Grocer, written in answer to certain objections against the manner in which the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild regulates the price of sugar to the retail trade. The objections would seem reasonable enough until all the facts are known. They are as follows: By what is known as an "equalization rate" the Guild adjusts the price of sugar (the refiners' price with the freight added) for every city, town and village in Canada, the basis being the average of the freight rate from the refiner to the wholesale distributing point added to the rate from the wholesale centre to the point of consumption. It so works out that the rate from Montreal to Toronto is 8c. per hundred pounds, from Montreal to Peterborough 11c., and from Montreal to Port Hope 22c. In carload lots the rates are 3c., 6c., and 15c. respectively. At first sight it would seem strange that the rate from Montreal to Port Hope should be more than twice as much as that from Montreal to Toronto. Why should a Toronto retailer be able to get sugar at a lower rate than his fellow tradesman in Port Hope? The Guild contends that in consideration of the fact that the wholesale trade is the best possible medium for the distribution of sugar to the retail trade, a wholesale centre should be treated somewhat differently from an ordinary point of consumption. It is true that a carload of sugar billed for Port Hope does not necessarily come to Toronto from Montreal and then back to Port Hope. Were outlying point to be treated the same as wholesale centres in the matter of freights, however, it would be necessary to establish warehouses all over the country, a proposition certainly not warranted by the present margin of profit to the wholesale trade on sugar. In less than carload lots the equalized rate is simply a matter of adjusting the freight charges to cover the cost of transportation from the refinery to the wholesale distributing point, and thence to the point of consumption. Members of the Guild are not immediately concerned where sugar is shipped in carload lots as far as freight charges are concerned. The car is shipped direct from the refiner to the point of consumption. If there is any advantage in the freight, which is adjusted also on the principle of the equalized rate, the refiner gets it; if not, he loses: i.e., if the equalization rate is more than the freight charged by the railroads on sugar, he gets the difference; if less, he pays it. In working out both these conditions occur.

The Guild further claims that it is an advantage to the retail trade to have uniform basis of prices for different districts, going on the assumption that the man who cannot buy for less cannot say he will sell less than his neighbor. There is unquestionably much to be said in favor of the present arrangement—the question still remains whether the retail trade are not paying too much for the advantage they have gained.

It working out the system it is unfortunate that certain points like Port Hope should come in for the maximum rate. It is the fault of a new system, and The Grocer is in favor of introducing greater uniformity as soon as it is feasible.

It is a mistake to suppose that the equalization rate fixes the freights arbitrarily irrespective of Summer or Winter schedules. In some cases there is very little difference in the freights, in others it amounts to a considerable item.

CLOSE SEASON IN 1906 AND 1908.

THE Governor-General-in-Council has ordered that section 20 of the General Fishery Regulations for the Province of British Columbia be rescinded and the following substituted therefor:

"It shall be unlawful so take or fish for sockeye salmon in any of the waters of the Fraser River, Strait of Georgia and Juan de Fuca Strait, lying east of the one hundred and twenty-fifth degree of west longitude and south of the fiftieth degree of north latitude, with any pound-net, trap, seine, gill-net, net-net, purse-net, drag-seine or any other appliance for the catching of fish, or to sell, export or otherwise dispose of, or to can, pack, salt or otherwise cure any sockeye salmon, whether specifically enumerated in this section or not, on the shores adjacent within the limits above mentioned, between the 10th day of July, 1906, and the 25th day of August, 1906, and between the 10th day of July, 1908 and the 25th day of August, 1908."

WARM WEATHER SUGGESTIONS.

REALLY hot weather is possibly thirty or more days away, but it is not too early for the merchant to begin making his plans for that season. Not his plans as to the stock to be carried and sold, although they are important, but his plans as to the arrangement of the store so as to make the place cool and inviting in appearance, the keeping out of flies, the providing of fans, the keeping of the awnings down—in short, making of the store attractive and inviting on the hot Summer days—days when there is no inducement in the weather to go inside, but rather to seek the shade of the trees or the coolness of the porch.

Possibly the first thing to guard against is the flies. To get the start of them the screens must be on early. The doors should be hinged so that they will swing easily and close quietly. The windows open for ventilation should be well protected by screens. It goes without saying that the doors should be well painted. If they look at all dingy, a coat of paint will improve them wonderfully, and it does not cost much.

So much for the prevention. The cure for flies is flypaper of various kinds. You can hardly hope to keep all the flies out, but with the aid of screens and the judicious use of flypaper the store can be kept reasonably free. Flypaper is not an attractive thing around the store, either the poison or the sticky. If it must be used it whould be out of the way and out of sight as much as possible.

Another important point in keeping the store at a pleasant temperature is the awning. It should be put down as soon as the sun begins to get into the store and raised as soon as it does not bother any more. The sun beating on the pavement and into the windows will not only heat the store but may damage the window display. An easy working awning is little trouble to operate, and it is an absolute necessity in almost every store.

Drinking water should be provided in Summer if not in any other season. It should be cold, of course, for people want to drink icewater on hot days, in spite of all the doctors say against it. A tank with a number of glasses will serve this purpose.

Last Summer a merchant who had a general store served iced tea in the dry goods department every Saturday afternoon during the warmest weather. This was in the nature of a demonstration, the tea being advertised and offered for sale at the table where it was served. The expense was not great and the returns were ample, as the women learned to come there the first thing on Saturday afternoon for a cold drink, and few there were that did not spend some money. Grape juice or any sort of fruit juice could be used for this purpose, or any of the Summer home-made drinks.

Having plenty of stools and resting places is another way to make the store attractive in Summer months. The woman coming in from the hot street likes to "drop down" upon an easy chair or a seat and fan herself. Electric fans are wonderfully handy things to have around. They will create a circulation of the air where there was none, and cool off corners that cannot be cooled in any other way. They are not expensive to run where there is an electric current, and a few can be used to advantage in almost any store.

If the store is to be repainted, a light tint on the ceiling and the posts or walls will aid the cool effect. To be sure, light finishing requires more care to keep clean than a darker shade, but it is well worth the extra trouble during the Summer months.

Anything that will contribute to the coolness of the store will be a welcome change for the Summer and will do something towards making trade better. —Commercial Bulletin.

TRADE WITH NEWFOUNDLAND.

The affairs of Newfoundland are set out fully and clearly in a blue book by the Governor just issued by the British Government. It is shown that the exports, which in 1895-7 amounted only to about $5,000,000, were last year more than double that amount. These exports are composed chiefly of minerals and of the "harvest" of the fisheries. The importance of the latter industry is shown by the fact that its products contribute no less a sum than $8,275,000 of the total value of the exports. Dried codfish is the most important item, and the failure of the cod fishery elsewhere has enabled the Newfoundland fishermen to get better prices for their catch. One drawback to the accumulation of wealth in the Island lies in the fact that it is dependent on other countries for the bulk of its food supplies. The report admits that "it is not probable that there is any other country of equal size and importance that has to import from abroad practically the great mass of the necessaries of life." This being the case it is not surprising that the payment for such supplies should take the form of exports to the countries from which they are derived, and as a result we find that while the Island's imports from the United Kingdom tend to decrease, those from Canada and the United States are growing in amount.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

GROCERIES.

Montreal, June 29, 1905.

THE weather man seems to take a particular delight in sending the spirits of the grocery trade up and down. The warm Summer weather of last week provided by Old Probs. had the effect of stimulating trade, and orders were commencing to come in in large numbers and weight, and business generally was looking up. During the early part of the week, however, most discouraging weather was handed out—wet, cold and cheerless—and the effect on business was immediately noticeable. As steady warm weather is about due, it is thought that trade will assume a better tone. The sugar market has taken another drop, this time 5c. per 100 lbs., making 15c. decline in a week. Foreign beet markets are slightly easier. Orders for sugar from country buyers show somewhat better on account of early fruits requiring attention. The tea market is firmer, and better business has been done in all lines. In low-grade Chinas considerable firmness is apparent, due, no doubt, to the anticipated establishment of standards by the Government, and holders look for an advance. Japans look good value and are firm. The enormous shortage reported to date, up to second pickings, given at about 6,000,000 lbs., will undoubtedly affect buying. Even at the advances intimated they will be still available at prices under Ceylon greens. These latter are firm, and blacks also are strong. Canned goods prices for this year have been sent out by the Canadian Canners, Limited, on peas, cherries, strawberries, asparagus and rhubarb. Special reference is made under canned goods as to conditions, etc., of this year's goods. Salmon still sold at open prices, no firm figures being given out by the B.C. association. Molasses and syrups are featureless and business light. Spices continue firm with upward tendency. Coffees are unchanged. Fish business is good considering the season, and dealers appear satisfied. Green fruits and vegetables are going well, and the McGill street fruit dealers are busy, as well as the stallmen at Bonsecour market. Foreign dried fruits show no particular activity, confidential orders for Denia fruit, as usual, having been placed. Provisions are steady, with a dullish tendency, except hams and bacon, which are in fair, hot-weather demand. Eggs maintain firm position, the prices still hanging around 16 to 18c. for fine to selected stock. Butter is steady and under good demand. Receipts are good. Cheese seems to show a better trade, though not as heavy as was anticipated. Country produce, maple products, honey, etc., are in only fair demand at unchanged prices.

Sugar—A further decline of 5c. was made by the refiners on Tuesday, making fifteen cents drop in a week. Beet market is slightly weaker. Jobbers report somewhat better buying from country customers, due to arrival of early fruits.

Tea—Business during the past week has shown considerable improvement all around, and particularly in China greens, owing to the anticipated adoption of standards. In the event of standards being adopted and regulations enforced by the Government there will be an advance of from 3c. to 4c. per lb. on stocks now held in Canada. Ceylon blacks and greens have been selling more freely, especially for London account. Some very large invoices, aggregating some 1,200 packages, were sold by London houses, teas ranging from 5 1-2d to 7d. Japans locally are firm, but business quiet. The crop reports from Japan are indicating heavy shortage. Messrs. Smith, Baker & Co., Yokohama, under date of their letter, June 8th, say that this is a season notable for short tea crops—the shortest in 20 years—resulting in barely more than half a crop to date, and compared with previous years, excepting 1902, which was the frost-visited season—a result easy to realize when the figures are all in, but most difficult to anticipate during the period of first arrivals, owing to the fixed skepticism among buyers concerning short crops. The initial cause of the present shortage was frost, which cut off the buds in many districts, followed by cold, sunless weather, which retarded development generally, and the secondary cause was the keen disappointment of the producers at the poor prices realized for what they considered carefully prepared early teas. While this heavy shortage presents serious losses to the Japanese producers, it contains the germs of substantial comfort to all American tea merchants, who are carrying along stocks of unsold teas of the previous season.

Canned Goods—The new prices on certain lines have been sent out to the trade by the Canadian Canners, Limited. Peas are quoted as low prices, and this seems to meet the approval of the trade. No quotations on salmon are as yet at hand from the B.C. Canners' Association. Some outside packers' lines have been quoted, but on unknown brands there is not much buying. It is not expected that the established brands will be, if anything, lower than last year's figures. Trade is quiet on account of new fruits and vegetables getting attention from the trade.

Fish—Wholesale fish dealers report a very satisfactory week's business for this season of the year. There is a specially good demand for gaspe and restigouche salmon; and generally all fresh fish is selling very well, owing to fine quality and fair prices. Present stocks of dore will probably not last for more than two weeks, when, however, more will be coming. Fresh halibut is also scarce, both here and in the States. Salt fish is a little dull, except skinless and boneless cod and salmon, which meet with a fair demand for this season. We quote

Foreign Dried Fruits—Sultanas are in little or no demand. Prices still maintain their recent level. Stocks abroad are gradually decreasing, and it is expected will be entirely cleaned up by the time new fruit is on the market. Filberts have sightly receded from recent advances, but as yet buyers show no inclination to take advantage of the reduction. The same dullness pervades the nut trade generally, with very little or no demand. Almonds, both in shell and shelled, show no change. As to shelled walnuts, as usual during the hot weather, importations have practically ceased, and spot stocks in ice houses are not large, consequently prices maintained their firmness, and a slight advance is not at all unlikely when the demand springs up again.

Currants—This fruit remains steady. What slight fluctuations have taken place are more due to the variation in exchange rates rather than any change in the position in Greece.

Raisins—Latest reports from Denia indicate that the growing crop promises to be a good one, climatic conditions continuing favorable.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Flour—Local dealers have little new to say about flour. Trade continues very fair and steady. Wheat is firm and somewhat stronger, owing to a decrease in Canadian and American stocks. According to opinion of millers, prices will not decline remarkably, and they believe that buyers who hold their orders in anticipation of easier quotations will be disappointed. This week's prices are not changed as yet and seem firm, although some shading in prices is heard of.

Feed—Owing to the advancing season prices in brand have become easier. Mouillie and shorts also follow suit. Mouillie and bran are only in limited demand, and stocks are light. Last week's steadiness, however, is maintained, but it will wear off much as soon as warm weather becomes more steady.

Rolled Oats—Rolled oats are quiet, and business shows a large decrease below that of last week. Exports also are small, as hardly 2,000 sacks were shipped. Oatmeal follows the general dullness. Cutting in prices has been done in rolled oats, though the condition of the oat market does not seem to warrant cutting. Prices are as under:

Hay—The hay market is much easier, and prices have declined. Crop prosp ectsare very fine, in fact in some parts of Ontario it is believed that the coming crop will be larger than any previous one. Locally there is some easiness reported in No. 3, while No. 1 is scarce as ever. We quote:

Country Produce.

Maple Products—A fair demand is still prevailing in maple syrup and sugar. Business is considered good for this season of the year, but on the whole the trade lacks in activity. No improvement is looked for before the Fall. Prices are firm and unchanged.

Candied Peels—Import orders for September are now about all in the hands of manufacturers, and quantities, notwithstanding an increase in prices, have been considerably larger than last year.

Spanish Onions—Considerable sales have been made for July and August shipments at what are considered to be reasonable prices. The crop is reported plentiful, which may encourage purchases in excess of last year, when prices reached an altitude considerably above the average.

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, June 29, 1905.

THERE are three outstanding features of the Ontario grocery markets for the week, viz.: The naming of opening prices on 1905 pack peas, asparagus, spinach, strawberries, rhubarb and cherries by the Canadian Canners. Strawberries are slightly lower than last year, rhubarb is practically unchanged, and cherries considerably lower. The most interesting item, however, is peas, which are much lower than last year at the opening of the season. In fact, prices on canned peas are so low that certain members of the trade have expressed the opinion that there is no money in packing them at this price. A record business in future canned peas at opening prices is recorded. Conditions of the opening list are that orders will be filled at prices named only up to June 30; after this date condition of the pack, etc., will have to be taken into consideration. Other particulars will be found in a special article elsewhere in this issue.

The opening price of sockeye salmon at the coast has been named this week, and prices are from 50 to 75c. below those ruling at the opening of the season a year ago, but are considered abnormally high by certain interests in view of the fact that this is the big year for salmon on the coast.

During the week the price of American tomatoes has been advanced 7½c per dozen on account of unfavorable crop reports and shortage of stocks on spot. Considerable fear is expressed as to the outcome of the Ontario corn crop on account of unfavorable weather conditions. As for present supplies, they are entirely out of first hands and during the last month or two the wholesale trade have frequently had to go to the retailer. Following an advance of 5c. per hundred pounds in refined sugar in New York, the Canadian market also dropped 5c. on Monday, June 26. A declining market has unsettled local trade to a marked extent, an unsatisfactory state of affairs when it is considered that sugar is a very important item in the grocery trade during this season of the year.

Tuesday, June 27, was a record day in the Toronto fruit market, when no less than 12,000 packages of strawberries changed hands. This date also marked the departure of an experimental carload shipment of strawberries from Niagara growers to Manitoba.

Canned Goods—The item of chief interest in canned goods circles is the announcing of the opening price of 1905 pack peas, spinach, asparagus, strawberries, cherries and rhubarb. The canners have divided their brands into three groups: No. 1, Aylmer, Bowlby Bros., Little Chief, Log Cabin and Auto; No. 2, Simcoe, Delhi, Kent, Boulter, Thistle, Lalor; No. 3, Lowrey, Shenck, Saylor, Lakeport. The prices for group No. 1 are 2½c. higher than for group No. 2 and No. 3. In comparison with last year's prices the most significant change is in peas which are abnormally low. The conditions of the opening price list are such that orders can be booked at opening prices only until June 30. After that date quotations will be subject to conditions of pack, etc. A very large business is reported in future canned goods during the week on account of prices being so favorable. In fact, some of the canners are already sold out.

There is always more or less delay about this, as after coast prices are received the price committee of the Dominion Guild have to adjust the selling price.

This means that the new price list will come into effect for goods to be shipped in September of this year. It is interesting to note that the opening price is from 50 to 75c. lower per case than in 1904. Some of the trade think, in view of this being the big run of salmon, that we will see still lower salmon in the near future.

During the week there has been an advance in American tomatoes of 7½c. per dozen. Locally a brisk business is being done in canned fish and canned meats. Our quotations are as follows:

Sugar—A further decline of 5c. all round in the price of Canadian refined is recorded this week, following a similar decline in New York on Monday, June 26. At the moment, the market is in a more or less unsettled state, as is always the case on a declining market, and the trade are inclined to grumble, as this is the season of the year when the consumptive demand usually begins to pick up. Teas—A fairly good trade is reported in teas for the week. Cable advices from the east report that the market for Pingsuey teas has opened at prices showing a decline of 20 per cent. from last year's opening market.

Mr. Arthur Lampard, of Crossfield, Lampard & Co., Ceylon, in conversation with the Toronto tea trade last week, expressed the opinion that low-priced tea in all grades was likely to increase in value as the present season advanced. This opinion is at variance with the views held by the trade generally in Toronto.

It was pointed out to Mr. Lampard that London stocks show 30,000,000 lbs. more tea on May 31 than at the corresponding date last year, but he explained that these figures were quite misleading as a safe guide on which to form opinions of the future without taking into account the following facts:

Owing to the reduction of 2d per lb. of the duty in Great Britain, which takes effect on July 1, the trade throughout the country have been working stocks down to the point nearest to nil at which they can carry on business, so that practically all the tea in the country figures in the bonded returns, whereas ordinarily some 30,000,000 lbs. would be distributed over the trade and would not figure in the bonded tea stock. Also a considerable quantity of tea shown as London stock is held for Russian account and only requires financing in Russia when export will take place.

Again, last year the planters, owing to strong demand for tea for price, plucked coarse and overdid it by producing too much common tea, so that very few growing companies earned a dividend with the natural result that this year they will be more disposed to reduce the quantity and make better tea in order to secure better profits to the estates. Spices—The pepper market is beginning to show a stronger tendency and the market has begun to advance. Cloves are also in firm hands. This article has been rather neglected lately, but the trade are beginning to take more interest in it, with the result that there is better inquiry and a possibility of higher prices. Foreign Dried Fruits—Prunes continue to move freely, and reports from the coast show very little, if any, improvement in the crop prospect. Apricots are scarce on spot and business in dried fruits generally is seasonable. The following is a summary of the latest advices from the foreign countries re the growing fruit crops:

Valencia raisins—Bad weather about the end of May was prejudicial to the vines and it is believed will somewhat reduce the estimated output.

Eleme figs—The trees are in good condition and a crop as large or larger than last year's is expected. Heavy rains cause fear of "bassara," a blight that, while not affecting the extent of the yield, tells on the quality. Cool, dry winds will lessen the spread of this blight.

Sultana raisins—The vines are in good shape for a large production. With good weather exporters look for good quality and low price.

Currants—Prospects of growing crop are good. Under agreement with the new syndicate (formed to support prices and limit the export to the amount of consumption requirements) a price equal to 12s. 6d f.o.b. will be fixed as the lowest at which any grade of currants can be had this season. It is expected that the concession will be granted by parliament, the capital required by the syndicate having been fully subscribed. We quote as follows:

Foreign Nuts—1st of July trade in nuts has been quite up to the standard of former years, particularly peanuts and cocoanuts. The peanut market shows additional signs of firmness. At the some time, one or two houses are offering the article at a figure which others say is contrary to the present state of the market. Arrivals of jumbo peanuts from Japan are recorded this week.

According to latest cables, shippers of Bordeaux walnuts have rather reduced their estimate of the crop. The weather in Malaga, Spain, continues dry, and prospects for both Valencia shelled almonds and Malaga raisins continue good. We quote:

Country Produce.

Eggs—The egg market exhibits comparatively little change for the week, prices being the same as last week. Arrivals are free for this time of year, and a good local consumptive demand is reported. We quote as follows:

New laid eggs, per doz	0 16½	0 17

Honey—Very little trade has been doing in honey during the last few days, as the season is practically over, and this article from now on until the Fall will have but little interest for the trade. We quote:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

Grain—Manitoba wheat has shown considerable fluctuation on account of certain interests having sold shorts on a large scale. Northern No. 1 is up 3c., No. 2 from 2 to 4c., and No. 3 1 1-2c. Oats are firmer by 1-2c., and quotations on peas are nominal for the simple reason that there are none to be had. We quote the following prices:

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool—The market is quiet and without particular indications. Advances, however, are noted in country hides, flats, and lamb skins and shorn pelts, due to the fact that some buyers in the country are offering prices higher than city dealers can afford to pay or the export market will warrant. We quote the following:

DAIRYING IN ALBERTA.

The production of creamery butter in Alberta is growing enormously. The creameries there manufactured over 50,000 pounds in May, as compared with 23,000 pounds for the same period last year. The Northwest's butter trade with Japan is also showing satisfactory increase. One steamer recently carried 9,000 pounds to Japan, whereas formerly the total quantity going from Canada in a year did not exceed 2,000 pounds.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKET.

Montreal, Thursday, June 29, 12.30 p.m.

BUTTER—No change. Holders of Eastern Townships fancy creamery are firm, and not eager to part with stock; 20c. will not tempt them, though generally that figure rules; finest, 19½c.; good to fine, 19½c. to 19¼c.; medium, 18½c. to 19c.

EGGS—Market steady, with easier tone; demand dull; receipts light; dealers still hammering to get prices down below 15c. at country points.

CHEESE—Prices steady; good cable demand today; exporters better satisfied with prospects; Quebec, 9½c.; Ontario, 9⅝c. to 9½c.

PROVISIONS—No change; demand for fresh abattoir-killed, weak; hams and bacon, fair business, both locally and for country account.

SOUTH AFRICAN TRADE.

In view of the recent interest that has been taken in shipments of Canadian and American goods to South Africa via the direct steamship line sailing from Canadian ports, the following figures are interesting as showing the distribution of the average South African cargo:

SS. Wyandotte for S. A., May 23, 1905.

	Meast. Wt. lbs.	Cub. ft
Canadian goods shipped:
By Canadian firms	*2,509,792	5,207
	397,547	71,420
Total Canadian	2,907,339	76,627
U. S. goods shipped:
By U. S. firms—To'l.	315,538	5,119
Grand total	3,222,877	81,746

SS. Birmingham for S. A., June 2, 1905.

	Meast. Wt. lbs.	Cub. ft
Canadian goods shipped:
By Canadian firms	1,114,760	3,703
By U. S. firms	827,304	24,727
Total Canadian	1,942,069	29,430
U. S. goods shipped:
By U. S. firms—To'l.	20,908

*1,070,720 lbs. of this was shipped by one firm.

The Wyandotte cargo can hardly be taken as a representative cargo, as a million pounds of the Canadian goods shipped by Canadian firms was sent by one firm. The Birmingham cargo is a more representative cargo. From it will be seen that Canadian goods shipped by U. S. firms are not far behind Canadian goods shipped by Canadian firms, while in both cases the U. S. goods shipped by U. S. firms, proportionately, is not out of the way for the total amount forwarded.

MONTREAL GROCERY CLERKS' PICNIC.

The Montreal Retail Grocery Clerks' Association's annual picnic will be held at Plattsburgh, N.Y., on Sunday, July 2.

The officers of the association are as follows: J. G. Marchand, president; P. Guenette, secretary; A. Gauvreau, assistant secretary; J. B. Poirier, treasurer; J. A. Lacroix, assistant treasurer.

They have rented a ground, where an elaborate programme of sports, such as races, tug-of-war, baseball matches will be gone through with. Valuable prizes will be competed for. There is no doubt that this year's outing will prove to be a success.

INQUIRY FROM SPAIN.

The Grocer is in receipt of an inquiry from a firm in Spain, who wish to know the names and addresses of responsible exporters of Canadian baled hay. Fuller particulars may be obtained by communicating with the Toronto office of The Grocer.

GROCERY CLERKS' PICNIC.

The Toronto Grocery Clerks' Benefit Association will hold their annual picnic on July 1, at Queen Victoria Park, Niagara Falls. A first-class programme of sports has been arranged, and the committee are sparing no pains in their efforts to make it well worth the while of every grocery clerk in Toronto to take in the outing.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR VANCOUVER.

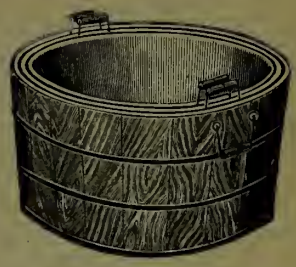
It is rumored that Swift & Co., one of the largest pork-packing firms in the world, will erect a large establishment in Vancouver. The plan is to supply the entire Northwest and if present plans are carried out at least $200,000 will be invested there by the Swift concern during the present Summer.

TO END TRADING STAMPS.

The Dominion Government will shortly bring in a bill to put an end to the trading stamp business. It is reported that the bill will decree the use of trading stamps a conspiracy against commercial interests. Their use as an inducement to sell goods will be made an offence under the Criminal Code.

CORRECTION.

In this week's Ontario sugar quotations, Acadia granulated should have been reduced 10c., instead of 5c. To-day's quotation is $4.98, instead of $5.03.



Many eastern firms are making application for space at the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition, which opens July 20.

TREATY WITH JAPAN.

CANADIAN exporters will read with interest the official announcement that Japan has given informal assurances of her willingness to admit Canadian products to the advantage of her minimum customs duties. Steps have already been taken by the Dominion Government to have this carried out.

In 1894 Japan concluded commercial treaties with Great Britain, Germany, Austria-Hungary and France, which entitled specified products of these nations to tariff concessions within the Mikado's domains. The self-governing colonies of Great Britain were privileged to adhere to the treaty if they saw fit within two years. For various reaosns Canada allowed the time to go by, the result being that since the Japanese market opened up Canadian exporters have had to compete at a disadvantage with no less than seventeen foreign countries enjoying tariff preferences extended by Japan under "the most favored nation clause."

The list of articles in which Canadians will be able to compete more favorably directly Canada comes into closer commercial touch with Japan includes condensed and sterilized milk, hops, leather and leather goods, horses, sugar, cottons, woolens, paper, enamelled kitchen-ware, rubber goods, wire and hats and caps. Speaking generally, the minimum tariff rates on these lines will be about two-thirds of what our exporters would have to face in any shipments they attempted to make to the Japanese markets at the present time.

SELLING TO RETAIL TRADE.

CONSIDERABLE dissatisfaction is being expressed in Manitoba wholesale grocery circles on account of the action of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild in enjoining the western trade to follow their fellow tradesmen in the east in refusing to sell Wallaceburg sugar to the retail trade. The latter stand was taken by the guild in Ontario following the action of the Wallaceburg people, who were obliged to go straight to the retail trade because the Ontario wholesale trade showed no inclination to help them in placing their sugar on the market. In Manitoba, up to the present, the Wallaceburg refiners have sold only to the wholesale trade; now that this channel is about to be cut off, they are naturally gravitating towards the retail trade there. A first-class demand has been worked up in the west for Wallaceburg sugar, and the wholesale trade, recognizing this, are loath to see such a profitable article pass out of their hands.

The Ontario Sugar Co. are also dissatisfied with the present arrangement. They have been selling to the retail trade in the west, but only to the wholesale grocer in Ontario. If the guild persists in pushing what is claimed to be a high-handed and one-sided policy in making it a general rule, it would not be surprising to see some organized opposition.

NEW BRUNSWICK TRADE CONDITIONS

June 21. 1905.

AS a distributing point St. John in most favorably situated. Owing to low-water freights, to all Bay of Fundy ports, to ports up the Annapolis River, as well as to ports from Yarmouth to Halifax, St. John gets a large share of Nova Scotia business. In lighter goods St. John also has a large trade in Cape Breton and Prince Edward Island. Being at the mouth of the St. John River a large territory is covered. Perhaps the heaviest of St. John business is done in the river counties, though a big business is also done along the I.C.R.

The heavy accounts in the grocery business are with the lumbermen. St. John shares as a distributing point with Fredericton, St. Stephen, and Moncton. Our wholesale men, however, do a large business at all these points, even with the strong local competition. The many railways have, of course, affected St. John as a distributing centre. Manufacturers' and millers' agents go to even the smaller towns, and cars are delivered direct from the west, in which St. John is not interested even to the extent of a brokerage. It cannot be denied that St. John is the natural Winter port of Canada, and the successful business of the past few years fully demonstrates this fact. We are the nearest open port to Montreal. Throughout the year our West India connections are large. Our harbor fisheries are extensive, and we are the natural market for the very large fishing interests of the entire bay.

While the variety of our manufacturing interests is not large, our lumber business is of the greatest importance. A very large quantity of American lumber is sawn here by American millers, which is shipped free of duty into the States. One of our largest local products is lime. The qualtiy is the best, and the cheapness with which it can be manufactured right at tide water cannot be surpassed. The trouble is to find a market. The American duty is large.

In prices there is little of interest in the way of changes since our last report. The matter of chief importance is the further decline in sugar. Rice holds firm.

Spice—Our local spice men stand for quality. Such ground goods as are imported from the west are the poorer grades. In fact our grinders feel in quality the west is usually behind. Our whole spices are chiefly bought in London or imported direct, the quality of goods via United States points being not as satisfactory.

Oil—There is but a fair business in burning oil. City retail dealers buy almost entirely from the tank wagons, finding it cheaper. In both lubricating and paint oils the heavy business for the season is over. Linseed oil is firm at quite full figures. Turpentine is high. Cod oil is being received. Price is expected to rule low. Burning oil barrels 17 to 17 1-2c., tank wagon 15c. Linseed raw 52c., boiled 55c. Turpentine 95c.

Salt—This is a large importing point for Liverpool coarse salt, chiefly on account of the bay fisheries. Large quantities are also shipped inland. While some Liverpool fine salt is imported, our cheese and butter factories use chiefly Ontario salt. A cargo of Trapani salt, which comes from Italy, is being landed this week. This is said to be the best salt in the world for packing fish and meat. It is also very cheap. Liverpool coarse salt, 65c.; Canadian fine, bulk bags, $1.15; Liverpool factory filled, $1.10; Canadian fine bulk, barrels, $1.85; Trapani salt, 18 to 20c. per bushel; Canadian cheese salt, $2.25; Canadian fine, 20-lb. boxes 23c., 10's 14c.; Canadian butter salt, $2.20; barrels, 100-3 $3.30, 60-5 $3.10, 30-10 $2.85; cartons, cases of 24, 60-5 $1.90.

Canned Goods—While we use a large quantity of Ontario packed vegetables and fruits, there is packed in this province and Nova Scotia quite a quantity, particularly of corn and blueberries: also in fish, sardines, haddies, kippers, lobsters, scallop, clams, and smaller quantities of tomatoes, peas, strawberries and plums. At present corn and tomatoes are high. Americans are freely sold. Peas are rather dull. Lobsters are very high. Salmon unchanged. New prices lower than last season. Fruits just fair business. Meats at this season have a free sale. Prices unchanged. Sardines, it is thought, will be a large pack and haddies short. It is yet early for kippers. In these last lines our packers suffer because of bad selling arrangements. Corn, $1.15 to $1.25; tomatoes, $1.25 to $1.30; beans, 90 to 95c.; peas, 90c. to $1; Flemish beauty pears, 2's, $1.55; bartlets, 2's, $1.70; 3's, $2.25; peaches, 2's, $1.90; 3's, $2.87 1-2 to $2.90; pumpkin, 85 to 90c.; cherries, 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; salmon, pinks, $4; cohoes, $5 to $5.50; springs, $6 to $6.25; lobsters, $12 to $13; sardines, 1-4's, $3.75 to $4; haddies, $4; kippers, $4; clams, $3.60 to $4.

Dried Fruit—Sales at this season are small. Except in a few lines, as peels and dates, not much future busines yet done. Owing to evaporated peaches and apricots being quite low, some sales have been made, but as prunes are higher than last year dealers are backward about placing orders. In all lines market will be well cleaned up. In seeded raisins, which are now so large a business, rather higher prices are expected. Citron peel showed a very wide range in price. While the price will be higher than last year, the difference is not as much as was expected. Spot currants are unchanged. Prunes not a large stock. Evaporated apples rather higher. Dates low. Dried apples very dull. Few are offered. Onions lower. Sale rather slow. Quality has not been very good. Valencia layers, 6 to 6 1-2c.; loose muscatels, 3 crown, 6 to 6 1-2c.; seeded, 8 to 9c.; currants, bulk cleaned, 5 1-2c.; packages, 6 to 6 1-2c.; sultanas, 7c.; prunes, 90-100, 25's, 5c.; apricots, 14c.; peaches, 12c.; dates, 4c.

Sugar—Prices are again lower. Sales have been rather quiet owing to the continued falling off in price, so that holders have not been able to clean up stocks as quickly as they would have wished. There is, however, increased consumption at this season. Stock are getting in fair shape. Granulated, barrels, $5.10; bags, 5c.; bright yellow, barrels, $4.90; second grade, $4.60.

Molasses—There are continued arrivals of Porto Rico. Market is just in fair shape. Price, however, shows little change. In Barbadoes molasses, stocks are not large. Porto Rico, 38 to 42c.; Barbadoes, 34 to 36c.

Fish—Our local fishermen are feeling good, at least in regard to gasperaux, for if the catch was not large they have found a prompt sale for their alewives at quite high prices. Shad are about out of the market. Salmon a fair catch. Prices this week are firm. The fourth of July always affects salmon. Cod and haddock are scarce. Some nice halibut are offered. Mackerel are also in season. Dry codfish continues very high. There are no pollock, nor are many wanted. In pickled herring stock is very small. Smoked dull at rather low figures. Dry codfish, $5; pickled herring, $2.25; smoked, 7c.; fresh cod and haddock, 2 1-2c.; salmon, 13 to 14c.; halibut, 9 to 10c.; mackerel, 12 to 13c.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour there has been a steady sale, stocks being small, as dealers have looked for lower prices. This week the market shows no change, and it is not thought there will be any for at least some little time. Oats are high and very hard to get. Oatmeal is higher; there is a large stock held. Cornmeal very firm. Beans are higher, but are in very light demand. Feed has a limited sale. Barley and peas, while selling at full figures, have limited sale. Manitoba flour, $6.10 to $6.25; Ontario, $5.75 to $5.90; oatmeal, $5.50; cornmeal, $2.80; hand-picked beans, $1.90 to $1.95.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax. N.S., June 26.

BACKWARD weather during the week has caused a dullness in trade. Retail is only fair. Wholesale orders are away below the average. Prices remain fairly steady, and there is a slight improvement in collections. Heavy importations of molasses continue, four large cargoes arriving here on Saturday. The barquentine Savoia, from Mayaguex, P.R., brought 2,000 tierces; the schooner Alice J. Crabtree, from Havana, has 167 hhds. and 1,206 barrels; the schooner Virginia, from Port of Spain, has 40 tierces, 30 casks, and 222 puncheons, and the schooner Coronia, from Antigua, has 346 puncheons, 40 hhds., and 54 barrels. There has been a slight decline in the price of molasses. Puncheons are quoted at 38 cents, tierces at 39, and barrels at 40 cents.

There is but little change in the wholesale price of sugar. The retail price has dropped half a cent, and is now quoted at six cents per pound. The prices quoted here follow: Icing sugar 25 lbs., $6.25; icing sugar 50 lbs., $6.15; icing sugar half barrels, $6.10; cut loaf 50-lb. boxes, $5.95; cut loaf half barrels, $5.85; No. 1 yellow, $4.70; XXX granulated, $5.20; Austrian granulated, $5.10; bright yellow, $5.

The receipts of butter are improving, but are far below the average for the season of the year. Prices are easing off somewhat owing to the freerer supply, but the market is fairly firm. There is a shortage of cattle throughout the province, and this is one of the reasons given for the limited supply. None of the factories are operating full time, and some of them are not making butter. Creamery tubs and boxes are quoted at 21 to 22 cents, prints at 22 to 23, and dairy tubs from 19 to 20. Eggs are coming in slowly. The local demand continues good, with the price firm. The shortage in receipts is unaccountable, and do not anticipate any decline in the price. Nova Scotia eggs are quoted at 17 to 18, and P.E. Island at 16 to 17. Shipments from the Island are falling off. The outlook for the cheese factories is not very promising, due principally to the scarcity of milk.

The market for flour and feed is firm, and the buying demand good. The crop outlook in the province is good, and the hay yield promises to be large. Flour quotations are: Straight patents, $5.30 to $5.45; ninety per cent., $5.45 to $5.55; eighty per cent., $5.60 to $5.70; seventy per cent., $5.70 to $5.80; Manitobas, $6.25 to $6.35. Prices quoted for feed are: Bran, $21.00 to $23.00; middlings, $24.000 to $25.00; oats, $55 to $56. Cornmeal in barrels is selling at $3.10 to $3.15, and in bags at $2.90 to $3.00. Oatmeal is quoted at $5.40 to $5.50, and rolled oats at $5.10 to $5.25.

Prices for fish are well maintained. The Lunenburg bankers are in from their Spring trips, with average fares. It is estimated that the average run of the fares will be about 500 quintals per vessel. Fishing operations on the Newfoundland coast have been very greatly hampered by ice. This will have the effect of keeping up the price of Nova Scotia fish. According to advices received here the foreign markets are in good condition. Halifax buyers are now on the Newfoundland coast buying up all the herring available. They are paying $2 per barrel cash for them for shipment to the West Indies.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, June 29th, 1905.

GENERAL conditions in the wholesale grocery market are satisfactory. Wholesale houses report a brisk demand in all lines, and improved collections are reported in some quarters. Wet weather seems to have interfered very little with retail grocery trade, and the excellent crop prospects induce generous buying.

As The Grocer went to press last week another reduction of 10 cents occurred in sugar, bringing Montreal granulated in barrels down to a basis of $5.70 per cwt. There is very little Wallaceburg sugar obtainable on the local market owing to a dispute between the refinery and the Wholesale Grocers' Guild. The trouble originated in the east, but its effects are felt in the west. The result may be that the refinery will sell direct to the retail trade. The B.C. Refinery are now carrying a stock in Regina, and from that town will ship all orders less than carload lots to different western points. Full particulars appear in another part of this issue.

The Canadian Canners have announced new season prices on peas and strawberries. Prices of peas are about 50c. per case less than last year. New season's supplies of macaroni and vermicelli have just arrived, and are quoted at 9 cents per lb.

Sugar—The reduction of 10 cents last week brings sugar down to a basis of $5.70 for Montreal granulated in barrels. As explained above, there is very little Wallaceburg sugar on the market at the moment, as, owing to a dispute between the Wholesale Grocers' Guild and the refinery, the wholesale houses are not buying new stocks. The B.C. Refinery have opened a branch at Regina and will carry a stock there. Particulars will be found in another column. Canned Goods—Prices have been announced by the Canadian Canners, Limited, for new season peas and strawberries, delivery to be made about the middle of July. No. 4 peas are opening at $1.48 per 2-dozen case, which is a very low price; in fact, it is 50 cents lower than the opening price one year ago. The difference is attributed to competition with the independent canners. Other prices in our list are steady, and we quote again as follows:

Foreign Dried Fruits—New choice apricots will be on the market in another fortnight, and, as was noted last week, the price will be 11 1-2 cents per lb. for the first arrivals. Standards will not be here for another month. The opening price will be about 9 cents. Choice arriving about the same time will be about 9 3-4 or 10 cents per lb. It is rumored among some commission men that while the crop is exceptionally large the quality is not all that could be desired, but as the fruit must come up to certain grades there is no reason for alarm here. Wholesale houses are buying their table figs now. These goods will not be on the market until November, but it is expected that the price will be much the same as last year. WINNIPEG CATERERS' PICNIC.

ON Wednesday, June 21, all the grocery, provision and butcher stores in Winnipeg were closed, the occasion being the annual outing of the Winnipeg caterers to Winnipeg Beach. The fates were kind, for the picnic fell on a fairly pleasant day in an exceptionally rainy season. Probably 2,500 people traveled by special trains to Winnipeg Beach and a very pleasant day was spent as the energetic committee in charge had provided such an extensive programme that entertainment was assured for all. The city band accompanied the first band of enthusiasts in red caps and linen dusters to the eight o'clock train and then returned to the city hall to await the second train, in which they occupied the rear coach and furnished music during the trip.

There were no special features to the morning's entertainment and the hours were spent promenading on the beach and preparing for dinner. The first event of the afternoon was a baseball match between the grocers and the travelers, in which, after a hard struggle, the knights of the grip went down to defeat by a score of 5 to 4.

The aquatic events were popular and excited general interest. A crowd lined the beach and crowded the temporary pier watching a number of closely-contested races.

Credit is due the general committee in charge of the day's programme. It was composed of the following gentlemen: J. R. Gowler, president; J. H. Treleaven, vice-president; W. G. Lock, secretary; W. A. Bartram, treasurer; B. Holman, transportation; E. Tugwell, music; G. W. Lock, sports; T. J. Coil, printing; F. Scott, refreshment; A. S. Lock, M. Richardson, C. L. Charest, Harper Wilson, W. J. STORY OF A GREENHORN.

FIRST, he gained experience on a delivery wagon, mastered details; spent two months studying stock and prices, paid $1,500 for a stock, $1,000 on improvements, using up his capital of $2,000 and $500 borrowed money. His story, as told in the Chicago Tribune, follows:

"On my opening day The Twentieth Century Grocery gave the town something to talk about. I had enameled all the fixtures in white. Everything was spick and span. The floor, scrubbed to the whiteness of a Dutch kitchen, was sanded. All the stock was artistically arranged with a view to harmonious color effects. I had rented the adjoining building to give me room for an additional stock, and at one end of this I devoted a generous space for a women's rest room. It was substantially furnished with Flemish oak pieces, upholstered in leather, with writing tables, magazines, newspapers, and, of course, I had arranged mirrors and other toilet arrangements, not forgetting electric curling iron heaters. There were plenty of flowers and lounging chairs in the room and a commodious Davenport piled high with sofa cushions.

"My clerks and myself wore white duck uniforms and caps, appropriately lettered, and I had two young women serving bouillon, wafers, and other light refreshments.

"Since then the grocery has succeeded vastly beyond my expectations. I have all the trade I can handle—every sale is a profit—and am arranging to open departments on the second floor. Last month's net receipts were $500 more than those for the corresponding period last year.

"No premiums are offered.

"All fixtures in white enamel and frequently repainted.

"A rest room for women, with writing tables, magazines, newspapers and toilet conveniences.

"White uniform for clerks, laundered daily.

"Hardwood floors, scrubbed and freshly sanded daily.

"Square business methods. Advertising goods exactly as they are.

"A strictly cash basis, many sales and reasonable profits."

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

From conversation with a prominent member of the Canadian Canners, Limited, The Grocer is able to give the following review of the fruit and vegetable outlook.

Small fruits generally—fairly good, but late. Strawberries—late, owing to cold, wet weather. Cherries—promise good. Plums—just a fair crop. Pears—short. Apples—a little early yet to judge, but so far as can be seen not very good; lots of bloom, but drying up; in some counties, Norfolk, for instance, there is but a half crop. Peaches—the wet weather has affected the peach crop quite a bit; prospects up to a couple of weeks ago were very good. Tomatoes—late, but look well in some sections; in some districts in the west have been drowned out and replanting necessary; in Niagara district very well. Corn—drowned in some sections; where not, looks well. Peas—late; drowned out in some sections, in others good; picking will begin about July 1. Beans—late in planting.

Exports of apples from Montreal and United States ports for the season of 1904-'05 show a falling off of over one million barrels, and of about 330,000 boxes, from the previous year.

Latest reports from British Columbia indicate that the strawberry crop has been a failure throughout the province, and will not amount to more than thirty per cent. of a normal yield. Cherries are doing badly, and only half a crop is expected. In the Lower Fraser country early apples will be below the average. The prospects for other fruits are excellent.

White & Co., Limited, Toronto, owing to the increased demands of their Hamilton business, have bought out T. Bowker, 34 York street, who will in future conduct this business as the Hamilton branch of White & Co. This firm are to be congratulated on the enterprise they have shown in catering to out-of-town trade.

Mr. E. D. Smith, Winona, has added 150 acres to his already extensive fruit farm, giving him a total now of over 800 acres. He has also constructed a fruit preserving factory of large capacity, and arranged to have an expert jam maker from England supervise that department of the business. With a cold storage plant conjoined, excellent railway facilities, and an immense fruit house, fitted with wire screens, Mr. Smith is well equipped for this class of industry. A detailed description of the new factory, with illustrations, will appear in one of our August issues.

A representative of The Canadian Grocer who called at Helderleigh last week found Mr. Smith a "busy" man. The conversation was frequently interrupted by telephone messages. Mr. Smith explained that they were from his representatives in the different fruit centres, such as Jordan, Grimsby, Beamsville, etc., who were sending him strawberry quotations, which were, of course, fluctuating on account of the weather. "Between the rain, the market, and my endeavor to carry out my new arrangement for shipping strawberries from the field to the dealer on a day's notice, I have no time to think," remarked Mr. Smith.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, June 30, 1905.

THE feature of the green fruit market is the free arrivals of strawberries, about 12,000 packages being marketed on Tuesday, June 27. This is the biggest day in Toronto in years for strawberries. The trade experienced no difficulty in disposing of the fruit, considerable of which went to the canners; prices, however, dropped to as low as 4 and 5c. On Wednesday morning, June 28, an experimental shipment of strawberries was forwarded to the Winnipeg market by Distributors' Co., Toronto. Strawberries have been shipped from Toronto to Nova Scotia markets for a number of years and the trade here recently came to the conclusion that it should be equally easy to send Ontario fruit to Winnipeg. Instead of the regular cold storage car, what is known as the "Blower" car is being used to transport the fruit.

Havana pines are out of the market as well as Californian navel oranges and Mediterranean sweets. The lemon market is exhibiting a very firm tendency. Prices in New York are double what they were two weeks ago, and are selling there at $4.75 to $5. Up to the present the requirements of the trade have been pretty well met by the regular Spring shipments of fruit from Montreal direct. This year's shipments were on a comparatively small scale, with the result that certain houses are entirely out of lemons at this early date, whereas they are usually selling Montreal lemons up to August 1. Some small consignments of lemons are being received direct; others are being brought on from New York. Water melons are down from 5 to 10c. First quotations on Georgia water melons were given out to the trade on Tuesday, June 27. Gooseberries have dropped 3c. The first of July trade promises to be exceptionally large this year and the wholesale trade express satisfaction at the prompt way in which orders are coming in. Our quotations are as follows:

Florida pines, per case	3 00	3 75

Vegetables.

Imported vegetables are arriving freely on the market and prices are becoming more moderate as the season for domestic vegetables is now beginning in earnest. Home-grown beets, peas and carrots are all arriving on the market. Squash is in evidence this week and is quoted at $3.50 per doz. Old carrots are out of the market. Egyptian onions are down 25c. in price as well as Mississippi and Texas tomatoes. Baltimore cabbage, Texas potatoes and imported cauliflowers are out of the market. Cucumbers are arriving this week and are quoted to the trade at $2 to $2.50 per hamper. Our quotations are as follows:

Green Fruits.

Wholesale fruit dealers agree that this week's trade is very fair and about satisfying for the season. There is some activity noticeable in every line this week and auction sales bring good results. On Monday morning were sold by auction five cars of California fruits, consisting of peaches, which brought $1.25 to $1.40, according to quality; plums sold at from 90c. to $2; apricots, 90c. to $1.15, and strawberries, 9 to 12c. Dealers do not expect to see very much more American fruit come in, as home-grown products will arrive shortly. A slow demand for oranges prevails locally, while bananas are said to be a little scarce and price not as easy. Melons, mostly of fine quality, are selling well enough, but at rather high figures, which prevents a greater demand for them. Owing to late warm weather, lemons enjoyed particularly good sales at quotations. Pineapples are not in such quantities as a few weeks ago; price for them has gone much higher. Plums, peaches and apricots, being in larger lots owing to new arrivals, are thought to meet with better demand. We quote:

Vancouver, B.C., June 22, 1905.

BIG export flour mills, and a mammoth pork-packing plant are two mooted projects for Vancouver, which have been subjects of discussion in the past week. It is early to say whether there will be immediate results from either.

The completion of the big tunnel of the Vancouver Power Co., and the demonstration of its practical utility in carrying the waters of Lake Coquitlam to Lake Buntzen, where the combined inert power of the waters is made available to produce 30,000 horse-power in electrical energy, has been the direct cause of movement looking to locating a big flour mill at this port. Manager Buntzen, of the Vancouver Power Co., states that he has been asked by responsible parties for quotations on 500 horse-power for operating a flour mill which it is the intention to locate here if conditions are favorable. Just for the present Mr. Buntzen withholds the names of the capitalists. But his personal reputation is sufficient guarantee of his assertions.

That a flouring mill could pay here, with the vast Asiatic export trade to be commanded, is the belief of many business men. Several years ago the project of establishing elevators and mills here was seriously discussed. Recently Manager Wm. Murray, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, said he had always held that the erection of elevators on the coast would be sure to come in time. It is as the complement of the lumber trade. Despite heavy freight rates, lumber is shipped in large quantities to the prairies and the trade is increasing. Many cars have to be brought west empty to carry lumber east, and, therefore, freight rates remain higher than they would be if there were cargo both ways for the cars. If elevators were built here, argues Mr. Murray, the railway could carry lumber cheaper, for the western trip of the cars would be profitable because of carrying wheat. Even for local trade a flouring mill would be an attractive industry, though it would hardly be considered a very large opening for industrial enterprise if the chance of trade with the Orient did not exist.

That the Swift Packing Co. are looking over the ground here with a view to establishing a pork-packing plant seems almost certain. Already this big American concern are interested in Canada, having a plant at Hamilton, Ont., though not run under the name of Swift. Mr. Strong, who has been representing Swift & Co. for a number of years in the Northwest, has been looking over the ground in Vancouver, and endeavoring to secure suitable locations for such an establishment as Swifts would build. It is possible that a start may be made this year, and a very large sum will be invested in plant and buildings. The plan is for the plant, which will be erected here, to supply the trade in the Northwest and in Alaska as well as in British Columbia.

Casual knowledge of the Chinese as a race is apt to lead to the conclusion that they were very correctly described as "peculiar" in the strong vernacular of Bret Harte. But if the conclusion is reached that because of that peculiarity the Chinese are not alive to business, and keen in conducting business affairs, nothing wider of the actual facts could be imagined. Not only are the Chinese business men successful, and thorough in their business methods, but they have all white races flogged to a standstill in organization. Their companies are more like families or clans than business partnerships, and the power wielded by the wealthy and influential Chinese merchants is little short of absolute.

Of recent days the power of Chinese merchants trading with foreign nations has been directed to organizing a boycott against all American goods and trade. It looks very much as if the U. S. policy of exclusion and opposition to Chinese trade in every form will have a serious result in the way of depriving Americans of any share of trade with China. The movement began in Shanghai, where the Chinese Chamber of Commerce adopted resolutions to use every means to boycott every species of U.S. goods as retaliation for the treatment of Chinese at U. S. ports. A circular has been issued to every Chinese Board of Trade soliciting their co-operation.

This week a meeting of the Chinese Board of Trade of Vancouver—a strong organization of wealthy Chinese merchants doing business in British Columbia—was held, at which members of all classes of the Chinese colony here were present. Endorsement of the Shanghai circular was unanimous, and practical, for a subscription of $1,000 was raised among the merchants at the meeting to be forwarded to the Shanghai Chinese Chamber of Commerce to aid in the carrying out of the boycott effectually. Not only will every class of American goods be put under the ban, but Chinese coolies will be coerced from handling cargo from ships carrying American goods.

At the Monday evening meeting of the Vancouver Chinese Board of Trade, held in their quarters in Chinatown, representatives from the Victoria and New Westminster Chinese merchants were present, and these will take back the account to their respective associates. When it is recalled how active the Chinese Board of Trade of Vancouver was in assisting the organization of the Chinese Empire Reform Association, wherein its efforts resulted in forming a strong association extending all over the continent it is easily to be understood that the results of their efforts to assist the proposed boycott will have great influence.

At a time when all eyes in the commercial world are looking to the awakening of the Orient to modern methods of commercialization, the situation is one of great importance to Canada, which now seeks foreign trade.

Freight conditions on the White Pass route to the Klondike are not all that might be desired. Never in the history of the north has there been such a large total of freight delivered at Skagway for transmission down the Yukon. The receipts, as shown by the Customs records, were twice as great in May this year as last. During the first twelve days of the present month the tonnage was greater than for the whole month of June, 1904.

The White Pass & Yukon Railway Co. are coping with the situation as well as possible, many extra trains being run from Skagway to White Horse every day, while the boats are all carrying full cargoes down the river, and towing heavy barges as well. But the freight piles up at White Horse as fast as it is taken away. Indications are that there will be very heavy traffic for a month yet.

A few weeks ago the low water in the Yukon prevented steamers taking full load down, but the river has risen since, so that better conditions now prevail.

Strawberries as a leading feature of the fruit market have passed the zenith for this season. Among local fruits, cherries take their place this week, and will for another week, perhaps. From California at present apricots are leading, though mixed reports as to the crop are received. In some places it is stated that California crop of apricots is small this year, while others, apparently speaking by the hook, say as emphatically that there is a large crop, but that the quality is away off, from rot and fungus. Oregon and Washington ship in apricots later, in very liberal quantities.

Raspberries are rapidly coming forward and in another week will be on the market in good quantities. It is seldom that this fruit is not a first-class crop in British Columbia. This year is no exception.

Butter is coming in from all local sources in unprecedented quantities. When it is stated that the New Westminster creamery alone is at present turning out as high as 6,000 lbs. of butter in a day, it can be readily understood that there is ample supply just now for all local needs. Every creamery on the Fraser River, and on Vancouver Island also, is turning out its limit capacity. Dairy-made butter is also coming in very liberally, and the local market is well supplied. Good prices are prevailing, however. The range can be placed at 23 to 27c., covering local dairy and local creamery stock.

The total output of the New Westminster creamery has been contracted for by Kelly, Douglas & Co., wholesale grocers, for the Yukon trade. It has gotten to be a by-word in the north now to ask for New Westminster creamery butter. For this trade it is packed in tins, sealed.

The Richmond Dairy Association, an organization of the ranchers of Lulu Island handling large quantities of milk and cream, retail and wholesale, in Vancouver City, have also added a creamery plant to their equipment, the capacity being between 1,200 and 2,000 lbs. per day. This is the first serious attempt to make creamery butter in Vancouver, and the result has been very satisfactory. The output gets ready sale locally. At present it is run in conjunction with the milk business.

CANADIAN GOODS PREFERRED.

A prominent Hamilton wholesaler reports a good demand for canned goods just now, especially for tomatoes. In this connection he was particularly glad to find that Canadian goods had a distinct preference over the American goods now on the market. In fact a higher price could always be secured for the Canadian goods.

SALE OF DOMINION PACKING CO.'S PLANT.

THE plant of the Dominion Packing Co., Limited, Charlottetown, P. E. I., was sold on June 20, under instructions of the Halifax bondholders. Mr. W. A. O. Morson's bid of $55,150 was accepted. This does not include the stock, which will have to be disposed of later by private sale. The purchaser acted on behalf of the Halifax bondholders, while Mr. J. M. Wiley, the late manager, represented the western interests in the bidding. The company will be reorganized by the present bondholders, providing they are unable to sell it at a satisfactory price by private sale, and within the next sixty days it will be definitely decided whether the present bondholders will reopen the plant or not. As the Dominion Packing Co., Limited, is the largest, and practically the only, manufacturing institution in Prince Edward Island, employing from 125 to 250 hands when operating, the closing of the works must be a very serious loss to the farming community particularly. Since the plant has been in the hands of the court farmers must have had difficulty in disposing of their cattle, hogs, sheep, fruits, etc., and the pecuniary loss been keenly felt.

B.C. REFINERY IN REGINA.

A branch of the British Columbia Sugar Refining Co. has been opened in Regina, and a stock will be carried in that town. Orders for less than car lots will be filled from this town, and it is evident that the company are making a determined effort to secure control of the western business. They announce that orders for small lots will be filled from Regina for all points as far west as the B. C. boundary, and as far east on the main line as Fleming. From Regina they will also ship to all points on the Prince Albert branch, to all points on the Portal section, and to all points on the Regina section, as far east as Redvers. The Estevan section, as far east as Alameda, will also be served from Regina.

INCREASE IN WHEAT ACREAGE.

AN estimate of the area under crop this year in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories has been issued by the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, giving a comparison with 1904, as follows:

	1904	1905	Increase
Barley	392,600	433,800	10½ p. c.
Flax	46,500	34,000	*25 p. c.

*Decrease.

The condition of growing crop throughout both Manitoba and Territories is first-class and in some localities never looked better, especially in Northwest Territories.

Figuring on a yield of 26 bushels per acre, this would give a total wheat crop in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, on the basis of the above careage, of 104,494,000 bushels, of which Manitoba, according to the Government's report, issued a few days ago, would contribute 67,700,000 bushels. Western correspondents say that some wheat will be harvested in about 45 days, and that harvesting will be general in about 55 days.

The Ontario wheat crop is only fair and is later than usual. Late reports from certain districts indicate slight damage to grain from wire worm and rust.

MORE ELEVATOR SPACE.

The chief inspector of the Manitoba grain inspection district has issued a comparative statement showing the number of licensed elevators and warehouses, with the capacity of each, in his district in the years 1902-'03 and 1903-'04. In the former year there were 822 elevators and warehouses, with a total capacity of 30,356,440 bushels; in the latter there were 982 elevators and warehouses, with a capacity of 41,186,000 bushels. The elevators increased by 178 and the warehouses decreased by 18, and the net gain in capacity was 10,829,560 bushels. In Manitoba the Canadian Northern last year had 37 more elevators than it had the year before, and 7 less warehouses. The Canadian Pacific had 56 more elevators and six less warehouses. In the Northwest Territories the Canadian Pacific Railway has increased its elevators by 85, but has 5 less warehouses.

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR ORIENT.

The latest report from the East of the awakening of manufacturers to the possibilities of the orient for the successful operation of manufacturing industries is that capitalists are about to erect a flour mill in Hong Kong, to cost $1,000,000, having a capacity of 8,000 bags a day. Labor is so cheap that it is expected that this mill will be the means of reducing the exportation of wheat from the Pacific Coast to an alarming degree. While the manufactured wheat will cease to be much of a factor in shipments to the Far East from America, the unground product will still find a ready market for a long time to come. It is predicted, however, that when Manchuria is opened up, its vast agricultural plains will produce enough wheat to supply China and other Asiatic nations.

OVERTAKING SUPPLY.

Making allowance for fluctuations due to good and bad harvests, the consumption of wheat within the United States is steadily overtaking the supply. If the crop this year reaches the large figure of 700,000,000 bushels, it is calculated by the New York Post that there will be a surplus of 210,000,000 bushels over food and seed. But in recent years the surplus has fallen far below this figure, and the time is evidently approaching when there will be no considerable export except after a bumper crop. The increase of population is constant, and the increase in acreage seems hardly to keep pace with it. All this tends to enhance the value of the wheat fields of Canada.

THE GEORGIAN BAY CANAL.

Interest is being revived in the long-talked-of Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal, which, if constructed, will virtually control the export traffic of the American and Canadian Northwest.

The advantages of the projected waterway are several. Throughout the whole distance to Montreal, vessels would be able to go at full speed, except when they are actually in the locks. There would be a saving in distance over the Welland Canal of 387 miles in the carriage of products from the west. There would be return cargoes owing to Montreal being the cheaper route. Lastly, there would be no discriminatory navigation laws and vessels could sail from Chicago or Duluth direct to Liverpool.

INCREASE IN DUTY.

Word has been received at the Department of Trade and Commerce from its agent at Cape Town, that it is proposed to increase the duty of two shillings per hundred pounds on flour to the former rate of four shillings six pence, on the ground that the reduction in duty has been of no practical benefit to the consumer, and the revenue will be benefited by the increase.

GRAIN AND CEREAL NEWS.

The Canadian Seed Growers' Association is holding its second annual convention in Ottawa this week.

At a special general meeting of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited, on June 22, the shareholders unanimously voted to issue $400,000 of preferred stock.

The directors of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. have decided to make an interim distribution of the common stock to be paid on July 15 to shareholders on record on June 30, and to fix the full dividend at the end of the company's year, August 30.

Make Change Without Loss

Mistakes that occur in making change are avoided by system. A customer gave this reason why she trades with Mr. Hardy:

"Mr. Hardy's National Cash Register counts the money that is taken in, and if a mistake is made in making change you can always have it corrected.

"I once made a 10-cent purchase and handed the clerk $5. He handed me 90 cents. I did not notice the error until I reached home. I called Mr. Hardy's attention to it and he opened his National Cash Register and balanced his cash. It showed that there were four dollars more in the drawer than called for by the sales record."

A National Cash Register accurately records each transaction, whether cash, credit, money received on account, money paid or money changed, and shows the clerk's initial.

Let our representative call and explain our system to you.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

AN INCREASE OF PROFITS.

THIS is the best season of the year for the tobacco department. The attractions for smoking are at their greatest and the consumption of tobacco for the next two months will aggregate an immense quantity. The number of small cigar and tobacco stores which are springing up in every town is ample proof of the profitableness of the business. If these stores with separate establishments to keep up and rent, light, clerks, etc., to provide for from this one business, can flourish and prosper, what reason is there why a tobacco department in a gro[illegible] not pay to a very much greater degree? There is no extra expense other than the cost of the stock itself. Any store can afford room for a case big enough to contain a selling stock of smoking goods. No extra help is necessary, unless the department is so prosperous as to require a steady salesman. What is made out of it is so much clear profit.

It should not require any special urging to convince a grocer of the advantage of keeping this department. Others in the same line of business have done well at it. It provides a chance for expansion at a small outlay of capital. Extension of business in every legitimate direction is the spirit of the time and it argues unprogressiveness for a man to neglect such an easy and palpable method of increasing his trade.

THE ART OF SELLING GOODS.

In a recent interview in Tobacco Leaf, John W. Merriam, a successful salesman and manufacturer, expresses the following sensible opinions about salesmanship:

"When a man comes into a store and wants a cigar it is easy enough to hand him out one and take the money, but to sell him one in a manner that will make him come back the next time he wants a cigar is real salesmanship. The man behind the counter should look his customer over and offer him a cigar that suits him. If a dyspeptic comes in, don't offer him a black one; a slice of pie or milk and crackers don't fit a man to smoke that kind of a cigar. When a fellow comes in that looks as if he had just annexed and assimilated a porterhouse steak, or something equally substantial and 'so wery fillin',' as Dickens puts it, he is the man you want to offer the big cigar to. If by judicious and intelligent handling, a man causes a customer who has been going elsewhere to come to his store, he is marketing his cigars; he is giving the cigars a value to himself that they didn't have before.

HOW A CHINAMAN SMOKES.

Of all smokers, the Chinaman goes to the greatest trouble and obtains the least result. "He carries," says an observer, "a little box almost twice the size of an ordinary silver cigarette case. This is half filled with water. In one end is a removable tiny tube to serve as a pipe. At the other end is the pipe stem. First of all he takes out the tube and blows through it to remove all blockage. Then he fumbles through his awkward clothes searching for tobacco, and produces a bit of rag, in which it is wrapped. Carefully he extracts a wad of tobacco, puts away his rag and slowly plugs the tube, which holds perhaps the tenth part of an ordinary cigarette. But he never has any matches, so he has to borrow or hunt out a brown paper stem and light it. It glows for a long time and can be puffed into flame again. He gives a long draw, slowly enjoying it to its full extent for a minute or two, then back again through the old routine to find his tobacco, fill his pipe and get it lighted."

GEORGE WASHINGTON AS A TOBACCO GROWER.

The leading tobacconists of Great Britain, says a pipe maker in the News of Buffalo, N.Y., is the Wills' firm. This firm is over 200 years old and in its office in Bristol, England, there hangs in a fine frame an autograph letter of George Washington.

Washington worked for this firm. He raised tobacco for it on his Virginia estate. The letter runs as follows:

"Virginia, 25th November, 1759.

"Gentlemen,—Some time this week I expect to get on board the Cary for your house 50 hogsheads of tobacco of my own and John Parke Curtis's, which please to insure in the usual manner. I shall also by the same ship send you 10 or 12 hogsheads more if I can get them on board in time; but this, I believe, will be impracticable, if Capt. Tulman uses that dispatch in loading which he now has in his power to do.

"I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant.

"G. WASHINGTON."

CUBAN TOBACCO IN THE STATES.

There seems to be great promise in growing Cuban tobacco both in Florida and Texas and it has been found that an excellent quality of domestic filler leaf from Cuban seed can be grown in Eastern Texas. Cigar tobacco has always been grown in Florida, but efforts at a superior grade were commenced only at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, and was at first carried on in an exceedingly limited way by refugees. The Government took up the experiment and has secured recommendations from a number of the largest cigar manufacturers of the country, who pronounce the tobacco almost equal to the Cuban product.

RUNNING A CIGAR STORE.

The following "floater" from some unknown source comes to us in a bunch of clippings. It hits the nail so squarely on the head that we reproduce it:

CUBAN TOBACCO EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

The value of the manufactures of tobacco exported into Cuba from the United States during the first ten months of the fiscal year ending with April 30, amounted to $95,450, as compared with $100,239 for the same period in 1903-4.

The leaf tobacco imported from Cuba increased from 17,602,235 pounds, valued at $8,498,871, in the ten months of 1904, to 18,236,420 pounds, valued at $9,173,-143, in the same months of the present year; cigars, cigarettes, etc., from 517,-273 pounds, valued at $2,381,553, to 657,887 pounds, valued at $3,324,322.

The general exports, including everything, from the United States into Cuba, have increased 43.3 per cent., and the general imports from Cuba 22.4 per cent.

EVERYTHING is looking better for freights. Tonnage is increasing every day, and prospects are bright for a very large season. Grain is coming forward more freely and the large ocean liners are well laden each week with grain. Some grain has been booked for 5c. all-water route, and 5½c. to 5¾c. lake and rail, Fort William to Montreal. Corn has been carried from Chicago to Montreal at 4c., and oats at 3½c. per bushel.

From Chicago to Buffalo some heavy charters have been reported, such as 500,000 bushels of corn at 1⅜c. Dairy produce is coming in freely to Montreal and the exports are larger than last year at the corresponding period. Heavy cargoes have been noted on all the Liverpool steamers from Montreal. The Laing Packing Co. continue to ship large quantities of meats of all kinds, and the Allan line is the chief means of shipment. On the Bavarian's last sailing, in the cargo were noticed 25 boxes of horse nails from the Montreal Rolling Mills. Immense quantities of bacon, lard and meats of all descriptions were shipped as if by the C.P.R., and as has been explained before, the shippers use the name of large railway companies partly for convenience of entry and partly to keep the name of the real shipper quiet.

To London the ss. Hurona carried 39,634 bush. of wheat, also 6,718 packages butter and 18,964 boxes of cheese. Quintal & Lynch had on this boat 459 bales of hay and O. McDonnell had 403 bales of hay.

On the Hungarian to London the Ogilvie Milling Co., Limited, shipped 2,000 sacks of flour, and the Montreal Rolling Mills had 40 boxes of nails.

On the Ionian, sailing to Glasgow, there were 3,000 sacks of flour shipped by the Great Lakes Transportation Co., Limited, and the Laing Co. shipped large quantities of meats. The Montreal Rolling Mills shipped 44 packages of wire.

These items are merely culled from the manifests of the big cargoes, and it all goes to show how Canadian manufacturers are keeping to the forefront of the trade.

The ss. Welshman, which sailed from Portland for Liverpool, carried amongst other cargo, 101,381 bushels of wheat, also immense quantities of provisions and canned meats, including also 2,226 boxes of frozen meats and 169 frozen pigs. There were also on this boat 3,147 maple blocks which, of course, must have come from Canada.

The Radnor Water Co. continue also to ship large and small consignments of their mineral water to the Old Country.
